"Take your rifles and hang 'em up at the school ,boys," he suggested to a group one day on the roadside. "As long as they're there they'll be out of mischief."

After he had spoken and ridden on several heads shook dubiously.

"Looks like Anse is changin' right smart," said one. "It beats me how some fellers let a woman lead 'em 'round."

War Cannot Slaughter MORE VICTIMS THAN PNEUMONIA.

Pneumonia is described as a preventible disease if taken in time.

Pneumonia is the scourge of the able-bodied men and women "a little run down perhaps" but strong in the belief that they can fight off a cold. Colds are not easily fought off in this northern climate.

On the first sign of a cough or cold, our advice to you is "Get Rid of It."

The slight cold, the irritating cough, the tightness of the chest, if not attended to, will sooner or later develope into some serious lung or bronchial trouble.

GET A BOTTLE OF
and you will find after the first two or three doses have been taken the cough or cold will quickly disappear.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; the price, 25c and 50c.

Be sure you see that the name of The T. Milburn Co., Limited, appears on both the label and wrapper.

Mrs. Edward Hogo, Moose Jaw, Sask., writes: "My little girl, three years old, contracted a bad cold which settled on her lungs, and turned into pneumonia, and she was given up by our doctor. I decided to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and by the time she had taken three bottles she was well again. I shall always keep a bottle of "Dr. Wood's" in the house."

WOMAN IN TERRIBLE STATE

Finds Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cape Wolfe, Canada.—"Last March I was a complete wreck. I had given up all hope of getting better or living any length of time, as I was such a sufferer from female troubles. But I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am in good health and have a pair of twin boys two months old and growing finely. I surprised doctors and neighbors for they all know what a wreck I was.

"Now I am healthy, happy and hearty, and owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies. You may publish this letter if you like. I think if more women used your remedies they would have better health."—Mrs. J. T. Coon, Lot No. 7, Cape Wolfe, P.E.I., Canada.

Because your case is a difficult one, and doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has remedied many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and it may be exactly what you need.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of women—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

Cloudy Days: Many years ago I wrote of the effect of the East wind upon the well as well as upon the sick. I showed that the Bible speaks 18 times of the ill effects of the East wind. How the plague of locusts was bourne upon the East wind. How the ships of Torshish were destroyed by it and the friendly gourd that sheltered Jonah was broken up by it. Altogether it is admitted that of all the winds that ever blow the East wind is the worst wind.

In hospitals the nurses notice that the patients are nearly all worse while they themselves are not nearly so patient and gentle, they do not feel equal to the extra tasks and the fretful demands of their patients. The business man is unconsciously influenced by it, mistakes on the part of his employees are not overlooked so readily and the salesman who expects to get a big order from him would better wait until the wind changes.

When the wind is in the East most people are cross, crabbed and fretful, and if you step on their corns there is bound to be a row. When the wind is in the South most people are good natured, rather inclined to be languid or lazy. They are inclined to "take things easy." When the wind changes around to the West or North there is another change in the mental and physical condition. Vigor, snap, energy and a desire to do things in a hurry, an aggressive spirit is in the air, but everybody feels too good to fight or even quarrel. The crowd in a street car is jolly and laugh at trifles.

Now comes the cloudy days. A part of a day or even a whole day without sunshine makes but little difference, but when day after day the sun is obscured by thick clouds we begin to feel the effects. We are depressed in spite of ourselves unless we know how to make our own sunshine.

Keep smiling, laugh out loud occasionally and practice deep breathing. Try it this way, sit erect in the fresh air, inhale all the breath you can through the teeth with the lips slightly apart. This will have a peculiar effect that is not obtained if the air is taken in through the nose. It also extends and expands the abdomen. Now hold the air in the lungs and contract and expand the muscles of the abdomen rapidly, up and down, in and out 5 or 8 times and then let the air out slowly through the nose. Repeat this 3 or 4 times and you will not only overcome and throw off all depression but you will find that you are full of energy and courage as well as through with the blues.

It's good practice any day, don't wait for a cloudy day or for the wind from the East or South, but keep yourself up to 100 per cent. efficiency all the time.

To Help Nature Shed a Bad Complexion

Beauty devotees are enthusiastic over the beautifying qualities of mercolized wax. Perhaps nothing discovered within recent years accomplishes so much so quickly, without harm, without deserting one indoors, and at such small expense. The principal reason for its wonderful merits is that it works in harmony with physiological laws. Instead of hiding, or curing complexion defects, it removes them. The wax actually takes off the aged, faded pallor or blotchy cuticle, gently, gradually, causing no inconvenience. It is Nature's way of removing complexions. When the natural process is retarded because of deficient circulation or nerve tone, mercolized wax comes to the rescue and hastens the skin shedding. The new complexion which appears is a natural one, youthful, healthy, consistently beautiful. If you've never tried mercolized wax, get an ounce of it at the drug store, use at night like cold cream, washing it off in the morning.

Another natural beautifying treatment—for wrinkled, baggy skin—is to bathe the face in a lotion made by dissolving an ounce of saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. This is remarkably effective.

The True Safeguard of Baby's Health

'Allenburys' Foods

The milk of a healthy mother confers a degree of immunity to infection to the young infant. Many mothers, however, though willing, cannot nurse their babies for various reasons. In such cases the greatest care should be taken in selecting a proper substitute. Ordinary cow's milk cannot be regarded as a safe food for infants; it is acid, contains indigestible curd, and is almost invariably contaminated with harmful germs. By using the 'Allenburys' Foods, which are free from all dangerous organisms, and effectually replace human milk, security for Baby is ensured and vigorous growth and health are promoted. The "Allenburys" Foods are largely used and recommended by the Medical and Nursing Professions; they have stood the test of time and have become a household necessity all over the world.

GETS OUT OF GERMANY

CANADIAN AUTHORITY PROCLAIMS FEELING OVER THE WAR.

He Says the Bubble Shall—the Kaiser Is High Regard, But That Germany Considers the Crown Prince "a Bit of a Fool"—He Discusses the Situation on the Military Caste, Who Have Developed Resentment.

In contrast to the well-filled university classrooms of Canada and Great Britain, the great German seats of learning are figuratively boarded up until the close of the war. At one of these, the University of Marburg, studied Rev. A. P. Menzies, graduate of Queen's University, Kingston. He arrived in the Dominion a few days ago, bringing with him many unusual observations of Germany in the grip of the war fever.

"The difference in feeling between the English student residing in Germany, and the Canadian citizen forming his opinions at long range," remarked Mr. Menzies in an interview, "is that the former places the blame on the military caste partially excusing the Kaiser, while the latter concentrates his fury upon the Kaiser first, and all other factors are a sorry second. Although a great deal of evidence may be cited to the contrary, the impression of most English-speaking persons whom I met in Germany was that the Kaiser's personal preference were strongly for continued peace. To one who has seen anything of German militarist pride and the arrogant impatience that arises from a conviction of mastery, there is nothing surprising that a war should have come when it did come. How the vast German military establishment, whetted on the expectation and desire for war, kept up to fighting pitch by what amounted to a promise of real conflict, could have been held back so long is beyond my explaining. Most decidedly, the preparations of the German nation were for war, not for the everlasting preservation of peace.

"It is an interesting fact that while practically all Germans have the highest regard for their Emperor and have little of our resentment for his autocracy, they view the succession of the Crown Prince with misgivings. Underneath the surface of good-natured toleration for him as a young, high-spirited fellow, is the rock-bottom opinion that the prince is 'a bit of a fool.' I remember, for instance, hearing many German students and others remark when they saw the flags flying in honor of the Crown Prince's birthday: "Well, we hope he'll have more sense before the flag goes up again.' While the Emperor, his father, has never outwardly encouraged the caste of fire-eating militarists, and has acted with dignity and reserve in his relations with them, the Crown Prince years ago identified himself with the most rabid of his aristocratic soldiers and became their leader in what was a truly vicious propaganda. Until one meets the German officer in his own garrison towns, one has no conception of the grotesque depths to which militarism can go. Not only is the professional soldier's mind immersed in a solution of iron and gunpowder, but he has the most benign contempt for any person or persons whose time is not devoted to the trade of destruction.

"The students of the German universities are nearly all serving at the front. They are not regarded as ordinary privates for the reason that students are made officers of the reserve after their period of service in the army. Their efficiency is maintained by periodical drill, studies, and examinations to keep them up-to-date and in close touch with their men. Scores of professors, men of magnificent ability, are serving in the trenches in this war and, without a doubt, chair after chair in the great universities will have to be filled with new material when the time comes to resume studies.

"I have been asked what the Germans think of the Belgian treaty violation. They simply do not think of it at all. To the German mind it is inconceivable that Germany should perpetrate a great wrong. If it looks wrong in the eyes of others—'that is foreign hypocrisy,' they tell you. Any act that Germany does is for the good of Germany and therefore for the good of the civilized world; such is the national viewpoint. Moreover, the causes of this war have been interpreted to the German people through the biased channels of the German press—and newspapers in that country, almost to be completely under the heel of the military masters. I have even listened with an air of childlike innocence that, as the Belgian treaty stood in the way of the Fatherland's military plans, therefore no moral responsibility for breaking that treaty ascertained. It is as if the German masters felt entitled to revamp and revamp the standard codes of Christianity, and that God stood ready to initial any and every caprice of the General Staff. Surely militarism, as found in Germany, has reached the zenith of insolence.

"Of the atrocities in Belgian peasants, I do not doubt the truth, but I would attribute part of the blame for ghoulish inction in warfare to the principle of conscription. Every male creature able to bear arms is gathered in and formed to fight his country's battles. Side by side one finds the best and the lowest types, musicians and merchants along with peasants lacking the decency of dogs. Small wonder, therefore, that in a state of anarchy such as exists at first in a conquered country, these frightful occurrences should be reported."

The Problem.

Willie—Are you going to take that fat you were speaking about? Ollie—I don't know. Of course we can keep the baby in the kitchen range during the summer, but I don't know where we can put him in the winter.—Philadelphia Record.

"A nation which labors and takes care of the fruits of labor would be rich and happy though there were no gold in the universe."—Ruskin.

Werner Horn Gets 30 Days

Bridge Wrecker Pleads Guilty to Charge of Destroying Property

VANCEBORO, Maine, Feb. 5.—Werner Horn, the German officer who attempted to blow up the international bridge across the St. Croix river Tuesday, pleaded guilty yesterday afternoon before Trial Justice Geo. H. Smith to the charge of damaging private property in Vanceboro.

He was sentenced to serve thirty days in the Washington County jail at Machias.

Just before the court proceedings, Attorney-General Pattangall sent the following telegram to Sheriff Chase: "This Department will protect you fully in holding Horn until contradition proceedings can be taken."

Several Canadian constables in uniform were present.

TURKS NUMBERED 12,000.

Big Force Tried In Vain To Cross the Suez Canal on Rafts.

CAIRO, Feb. 5. — Full details of Wednesday's twelve-hour fight on the Suez Canal show that fully 12,000 Turks, employed at three points, were beaten, with a heavy loss in killed, wounded and captured. The main attack was delivered at Tusun, near Serapeum, where a splendid brigade of British troops acquitted itself magnificently.

Shortly after 3 o'clock in the morning during a sandstorm the Turkish infantry attacked under cover of heavy Maxim fire, and made a resolute attempt to cross the canal by means of pontoons and rafts.

At sunrise the Turkish troops tried to advance on Tusun and Serapeum, their artillery opening fire on both places. Our artillery ashore and from the ships replied, but the fighting kept up until our infantry advanced from Serapeum, forcing the enemy to retire at 3.30 in the afternoon.

During this action, which was very creditable to our troops, eight Turkish officers and 262 men were taken prisoners, while a large number of Turkish dead were left on the desert below the rising sand hills on the east bank of the canal.

The British warship Hardinge was twice hit by shells, and ten men of her crew were wounded. Our other losses were two officers and 13 men killed and 53 wounded.

A battery of Egyptian field artillery behaved extremely well near Serapeum, their losses including one officer and two men killed.

The New Zealand contingent, and presumably the Australians, as well as British Territorials, Egyptians and Indians, took part in the fight. The New Zealanders had two casualties.

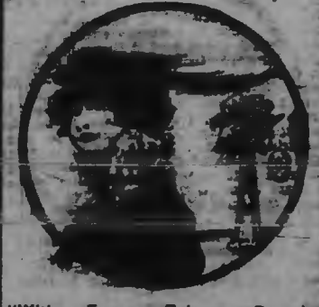
Faces As Fair As An Orchid

Are Possible When Stuart's Calcium Wafers Are Used After Meals to Clean Up Skin Eruptions And Discolourations.

When a face is covered with blotches, liver spots, pimples, blackheads, etc., Stuart's Calcium Wafers will act like some magical charm. However, there is nothing magical about them. They are nature's own way of cleansing the human blood and preventing it from filling the surface of the body—the skin—with pimples and little skin eruptions.



"With a Face as Fair as a Day in June."

The abolishing of all skin disorders must begin with the blood. Lotions, salves, cosmetics, etc., will do material good. The trouble comes from within and there the remedy must be applied.

If you really desire quick action and at the same time a common sense, natural, harmless blood purifier, then Stuart's Calcium Wafers is this remedy.

The correct and best blood purifier known to science is—Calcium Sulphide. This great cleanser is contained in proper quantities in Stuart's Calcium Wafers and that is why all blood troubles and skin blemishes rapidly disappear after their use.

An unsightly and pimply face due to impure blood is one of the most disgusting sights one can see, and yet all about us, upon the streets, in the theatre, when travelling, etc., we see these horrible results.

There is no need for this condition if you will take Stuart's Calcium Wafers daily and keep all salves, lotions, cosmetics and other harmful preparations from clogging the pores.

Every druggist throughout the Dominion carries Stuart's Calcium Wafers, which are pleasant to take, harmless, and may be obtained for 50 cents a box. A small sample package will be mailed free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., 175 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

OLD WAGON TRAINS

There Used to Be Exciting Times on the Santa Fe Trail.

TRICKERY OF THE REDSKINS.

They Employed All Sorts of Ruses to Plunder the Caravans and Murder the Whites—A Bit of Treachery and a Battle With the Troopers.

As the overland trade between the American settlements in Missouri and the Mexican pueblos in New Mexico increased in value following the opening of the Santa Fe trail the greater necessity of adequate protection for the traders and their stocks was met by both the United States and Mexican governments furnishing military convoys. The troops acted in a capacity not unlike that of warships guarding merchant vessels from piratical attacks, for no pirates were more persistent or bothersome than the savages of the plains.

The caravans usually left Franklin and later Independence and Westport in the spring. United States troops would accompany them to the confines on the Arkansas river; then Mexican troops would guard them to Taos, and sometimes even to Santa Fe. The return trip later in the summer was similarly protected. Sometimes two trips each way would be made in a year.

The presence of troops usually kept the Indians from making a direct assault on the trains. Even in his bravest moments an Indian has small relish of a fight on anything like equal terms; consequently the savages developed their aptitude for treachery and deceit.

Every part of ruse their fertile brains could devise was used to separate the various divisions of a train or lure a small part away from the main convoy, where it could be plundered and the whites murdered without serious danger to the attackers.

A favorite plan and one which many times bedeviled large parties into suffering some loss was for a small party of Indians to appear at the camp with protestations of peace. For diplomatic reasons the gods would be hospitably received and their request to eat and sleep in the camp oftentimes granted. That night the small party of Indians would attempt to stampede the live stock of the train. If successful a large force of savages would be expected pass by to aid.

Some times more far cleverer than that. One which completely fooled a Mexican officer and came near being the cause of his death was believed by the raiders to deserve the palm. That officer, Colonel Vincero, with 300 troopers, was escorting an American wagon train through the foothills of what is now southern Colorado when a party of Indians appeared and asked for a parley.

The American traders refused the request. The Indians withdrew and held a conference. When the envoys reached the Caucasian door the savages appeared again. One rode forward with an arrow tied transversely across the shaft of a spear, a symbol of the cross. Vincero was a Catholic and honored this novel banner. He rode out and spoke to the brave.

"If the Americans will move aside to some distance we will lay down our arms and surrender," the Indian said.

"Certainly, red brother," the colonel replied. He ordered the wagons to retire beyond a ridge. Hardly had they disappeared when a large force of Indians rose from concealment behind the sand dunes and poured a destructive fire into the Mexican ranks. Only the heroism of a Pueblo Indian guide with the troops saved the colonel from death. He heard one of the Comanches yell, "Now for the chief!" which was the signal for the treachery to begin. The Pueblo jumped in front of his colonel and received a charge of shot aimed at the officer.

The ruse was heard by the Americans, who returned to the troops. They rode swiftly to the flanks of the attacking Indians and charged. Caught between two fires, the savages soon scattered in flight, but not until they had been handled severely in a hand to hand encounter, where clubbed rifles and tomahawks played a part. Colonel Vincero was specially in his thanks to the Americans.—Kansas City Star.

Lighter exercise all things. It is like sense that in the course of year—not later. Nothing is impossible to industry.—Motto of Rutledge.

TARNOW HAS FALLEN.

Russians Have Captured Galician Town, Says Austrian Bulletin.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 5. — (Via London.) — The Austro-Hungarian war press bureau has issued the following:

"Artillery and infantry fighting continues along the Nida river.

"We evacuated Tarnow (Galicia) after the Russians bombarded the place with heavy mortars.

"A decisive battle is being fought in the region of Dukla, where strong Russian pressure is felt in the direction of Dukla Pass and neighboring passes. The fighting in the Carpathians is being seriously interfered with by the deep snow."

The Russians are marching on Cracow via Tarnow, which is a town of some 40,000 inhabitants, on the Piala river, a short distance from its junction with the Dunajec.

Will the time ever come when the revolver will have had its day in America and be relegated with the sword, the dagger and the bludgeon? Winter's Chills Bring Out Kidney Ills.

Winter quickly makes you realize that there is something radically wrong with the Kidneys. There can be no doubt as to just what is making your back ache all the time—what causes you to urinate so often—what makes the urine so highly colored and so painful to void.

The trouble is with the Kidneys. They are weak or strained, or you may have taken cold and the cold has settled in the Kidneys. The inflammation has also extended to the bladder, which is irritated also by the excess of uric acid.

The Toronto General Trusts Corporation

REPORT OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE THIRTY-THIRD ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING.

The Thirty-third Annual Meeting of the Shareholders of The Toronto General Trusts Corporation was held in the Board Room of the Corporation's Head Office, corner of Bay and Melinda streets, Toronto, on Wednesday, the 3rd of February, 1915.

The President, the Hon. Featherston Osler, took the chair, and Mr. A. D. Langmuir, Assistant General Manager, acted as Secretary of the meeting.

Mr. J. W. Langmuir, General Manager, submitted and commented upon the financial statements showing the operations of the Corporation for the year ended 31st December, 1914.

The report to the Shareholders was then read, as follows :—

To the Shareholders :—

The Board of Directors have pleasure in submitting herewith the Thirty-third Annual Report of the Corporation, together with the Statements of Assets and Liabilities and Profit and Loss for the year ended the 31st of December, 1914.

The net profits for the year, after payment of management expenses, salaries, inspection fees, advertising, and all other expenses at Head Office and Branches, amount to $324,361.65, to which sum must be added the amount brought forward from the preceding year of $28,861.85, thereby increasing the amount at credit of Profit and Loss to $353,743.90, which amount has been dealt with by your Board as follows :—

To payment of four quarterly dividends at the rate of 10% per annum		$150,000.00
To amount of permanent improvements to office building at Ottawa written off		5,255.85
To amounts subscribed as follows :—
Canadian Patriotic Fund	$10,000.00
Canadian Red Cross Society	1,000.00
		11,000.00
To amount transferred to Reserve Fund		100,000.00
To balance carried forward to credit of Profit and Loss Account		86,487.05
		$353,743.90

The Assets and Liabilities Statement shows an increase of assets over the preceding year of $4,386,297.02, making the total volume of assets now in the hands of the Corporation $67,421,090.99.

The Board of Directors have, on your behalf, made subscriptions to the Canadian Patriotic Fund and the Red Cross Society, confirmation of which will be asked for at the Annual Meeting.

Your Directors regret to report the death, during the year, of two of their esteemed colleagues and valued members of the Board, namely, Colonel D. R. Wilkie, who had occupied a seat on the Board for many years, and Senator Robert Jaffray, one of the Charter members of the Board.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

J. W. LANGMUIR, Vice-President and General Manager.

FEATHERSTON OSLER, President.

AUDITORS' REPORT.

We, the undersigned, beg to report that we have made a full examination of the books, accounts and vouchers of The Toronto General Trusts Corporation to the 31st December, 1914, and find same to be correct and properly set forth in the above statements of Profit and Loss and Assets and Liabilities. We have examined, and find in order, all the mortgages, debentures, bonds and scrip of the Corporation, as well as those negotiated for the Supreme Court of Ontario, and Trusts, Estates and Agencies in the Corporation's hands, and we have checked same with the mortgage and debenture ledgers and registers. The Banker's balances, after deducting outstanding cheques, agree with the books of the Corporation.

We have also examined the reports of the auditors of the Winnipeg, Ottawa and Saskatoon Branches, and find that they agree with the Head Office books.

R. F. SPENCE, F.C.A., "Can." GEO. MACBETH, } Auditors.

Toronto, January 18th, 1915.

The President, Hon. Featherston Osler, K.C., in moving the adoption of the report, which was seconded by Col. Hon. Sir John Gibson, made the following remarks :—

When we met in this room last year but few of us could have anticipated that our next meeting would take place during the progress of a war which, for its magnitude and far-reaching consequences—financial and otherwise—is perhaps unexampled in the history of the world, and in which this Dominion has taken a substantial part in the contribution of men and means to the support of the mother country and her allies.

Nine of the employees of this Corporation have now joined the ranks of the former in various positions, and the Directors have thought it right to keep their places open for them and to maintain them on half salary for at least a year.

As the war progressed it might well have been anticipated that its effect would be shown in the reports of the financial institutions of this country, but those of you who have followed these reports as published in the newspapers of the last few weeks, must have been gratified to find how well the strain has been met, under the wise guidance of the Governments concerned, and the prudent management of those responsible for the handling of our monetary institutions. The case of our own Corporation is no exception to the general evidence of successful endeavor to cope with altered conditions, and your Directors have pleasure in presenting to you a report which they have every reason to believe will be received with satisfaction and approval, showing, as it does, a large increase in the volume of the assets entrusted to their care, a substantial increase in earnings, which has enabled them not merely to maintain the usual dividend, but to add largely to the Reserve, and, notwithstanding unusual calls, to carry forward to Profit and Loss a larger sum than was shown on the Financial Statement of the previous year.

As will appear by the address of the General Manager, the payment of interest has been well maintained both in this and the Northwest Provinces, and in the latter particularly it is noticeable that where mortgages have been renewed the mortgagors have been sufficiently prosperous in a large number of cases substantially to reduce the principal at risk.

As you know, the safety of our mortgage investments is, as a rule (so far as is humanly possible), insured by the practice invariably followed—unless otherwise directed by the investor—of not advancing more than one-half of the value of the security offered—a value which is carefully ascertained by reliable valuators.

The confidence of the public in the conservative management of the Corporation is well shown by the constantly increasing number of estates entrusted to its care, and the Directorate have no hesitation in appealing to the Shareholders to use the influence which each of them has in extending this branch of the Company's business.

The Shareholders will notice with sincere regret the loss by death of two of their old Directors, Colonel D. R. Wilkie, President of the Imperial Bank, and the Honorable Senator Jaffray, to whose advice and assistance their brother Directors and the Shareholders have for many years been greatly indebted. The vacancies on the Board were filled by the appointment of two well-known men of business, Mr. Edward C. Whitney of Ottawa and Lieut.-Col. J. F. Michie of Toronto.

Certain resolutions will be submitted for your approval—the first with reference to the General Manager, the founder of the Corporation, to whose unremitting oversight and care the Corporation largely owes its prosperity.

By another resolution you will be asked to confirm and approve the action of your Directors in making grants to the Patriotic Fund and the Red Cross Society, a course which under present conditions has seemed to the Directors of this Corporation, as to those of others, to be not merely reasonable, but right.

By a third resolution the Directors ask for power to apply for a charter from the Dominion Parliament, if they should be advised that it is prudent or desirable to do so in the present or anticipated state of the law.

In conclusion I feel that in maintaining the conservative policy which has always characterised the management of the Corporation we may look forward with reasonable confidence to the future.

The President then called upon Mr. J. W. Langmuir, Vice-President and General Manager, to address the Shareholders.

Mr. Langmuir spoke as follows :—

In submitting the Thirty-third Annual Report of the Corporation, with the accompanying statements, I do so with a good deal of pleasure, believing, as I do, that the results of the year's operations will be considered by all concerned to be most satisfactory.

You will observe from the Profit and Loss Statement that the net profits for the year, after payment of expenses of every kind, and making provision for all ascertained and anticipated losses, amount to $324,361.65, or 10.47% on the total amount of the paid-up Capital and Reserve of $3,100,000. Out of these profits and the balance of $28,361.85 brought forward from last year, we paid our usual dividend of 10%, wrote off an amount of $5,255.85 expended during the year on permanent improvements to our office building at Ottawa, subscribed $11,000 to the Canadian Patriotic and Red Cross Funds, transferred $100,000 to Reserve, thereby increasing that fund to $1,600,000, and carried forward to the credit of Profit and Loss the sum of $86,487.05.

The Assets and Liabilities Statement shows a total volume of assets in the hands of the Corporation as at the 31st of December last of $67,421,090.99, being a net increase of $4,386,297.02 for the year. The new business taken over by way of Executorships, Trusteeships, Administrations, Investment and other Agencies, etc., during the year amounted to $7,217,984.28, as shown by the Inspection Committee's Report, which you have heard read, and which will be printed in full in our Annual Report.

You will be interested to know that in respect of a volume of mortgages on real estate amounting to $16,237,464.73 negotiated by the Corporation on the security of improved farm and city properties situate within the Province of Ontario, 98.30% of all the interest that fell due during the calendar year 1914, including the arrears brought forward from 1913, has been received. The average rate of interest on these Ontario mortgages is 6.03%, an increase of .39% over the preceding year. With regard to our mortgages in the three Prairie Provinces, where we have some $8,150,774.88 under investment, bearing an average interest rate of 7.68%, I am pleased to say that the interest collections have been satisfactory, and the principal payments larger than we had hoped under the circumstances. Of all the interest on Western mortgages charged during the year up to the 31st December last, including the arrears brought forward from 1913, 80% has been collected, notwithstanding the fact that interest on farm loans in the West is payable yearly, instead of half-yearly, as in Ontario, the bulk of which falls due in the months of November and December.

There is no doubt that the Western farmer in many districts this last year, notwithstanding a light crop, realised a larger return than he did the preceding year, owing to the higher prices that obtained for grain, and the lower expenses incidental to the harvesting of his crop. The outlook in the West, for the farmer in particular, this year would seem to be highly satisfactory. The reports from our representatives indicate an increase of about twenty per cent. in crop area. The autumn months were unusually open, and conditions most favorable for the preparation of the land for next spring, which, with the abundance of snow in Alberta and elsewhere, should mean a heavy crop this year, if the spring and summer weather is at all favorable.

The almost complete failure of the crop last year in a number of districts was, I think, largely due to many—the temperature of farming on a more scientific basis, for there in the most seriously affected localities farmers who had carefully cultivated their land were rewarded with satisfactory results. Another encouraging feature is the growing disposition on the part of the farmer to undertake more diversified farming, which is being evidenced by the returns from the sale of cattle, hogs, dairy produce, garden stuffs, etc.

Our Western colleagues advise us that there is some little movement in sales of farm land, the purchasers being chiefly adjoining farmers and town people who were at one time farmers and are now for one reason or another disposed to resume their former occupations. These conditions should very shortly, with the high price of grain that must surely prevail for the next two years, make for an improvement of trade, and the establishment of the whole commercial fabric of the West on a much more stable and satisfactory basis.

We have, as a nation, just completed a year a large proportion of which was so fraught with financial uncertainty and unrest as to be without a precedent in the records of our country, if not, indeed, throughout the entire business world, and while, of course, we have not by any means reached the end of our financial cares and business depression, at the same time Canada should be congratulated upon the splendid manner in which not only the banks and large financial institutions generally, but the Government, as well as the main body of citizens, bet themselves to meet in a sane and determined way the most unusual demands that were required of them on the outbreak of the war, and for the following months of 1914. It has been, and still is, no doubt, a time of real testing for our financial institutions. I may, therefore, I think, be pardoned if I take this opportunity of congratulating the shareholders and clients of this Corporation on the Report submitted for the year just closed, which, notwithstanding the financial conditions that have obtained, shows a new high record of assets under administration, and a net increase in profits of $24,364.65 over the preceding year, which was the best year in our history up to that date.

With your permission I will now pass on to a matter of a more personal nature. Thirty-three years ago I resigned my position in the public service of the Province of Ontario to undertake the organization and management of this Corporation, which began its career under the style of "The Toronto General Trusts Company," and had the distinction of being the first trust company launched in Canada. After thirty-three years of service with the Corporation I have now to state that, owing to advancing years and not too robust health, I have just recently handed to the Board of Directors my resignation as General Manager of the Corporation. During these years I have had the pleasure of seeing this institution develop from its very modest beginning to one of the largest and most important financial institutions in the Dominion. I have also had the satisfaction of knowing that the Corporation, which began its career by filling a long-felt need in the community, has continued with the passing of the years to render an increasingly important and valuable service to the public.

The advantages of the corporate over the private or individual executor and trustee have been borne in upon the public in Canada during the last thirty odd years, to such an extent that The Toronto General Trusts Corporation has not only found for itself an increasingly large field for its operations, but a large number of trust companies have since been organized, of which a considerable number have acquired an extensive volume of business of a fiduciary character. In the conduct of the affairs of the Corporation since its very inception, as most of you are aware, a very conservative policy has obtained, not only with regard to the investment of its funds, but also in the class of work it has assumed.

In concluding my tenure of office as General Manager of the Corporation I venture to repeat what I have so often stated at other Annual Meetings, that I am more than ever convinced of the wisdom of a company, organized primarily for the administration of estates and trusts, in refraining from the employment of its own Capital and Reserve, or any other funds under its control, in real estate speculation, the purchase of stocks or bonds of a speculative character, the underwriting of securities, or the acceptance of work that may embarrass it in any way in times of unusual or depressed financial conditions. A company having in its keeping the financial affairs of hundreds, and sometimes thousands, of beneficiaries, many of whom are altogether dependent upon the income received through the trust company, should not only confine the investment of its trust funds to such investments as are authorised by law, unless otherwise directed under the will or instrument under which it acts, but should be quite as careful to see that the guaranteed funds under its control, as well as its own Capital and Reserve, are equally well and securely invested. It was a matter of great satisfaction to all connected with the Corporation last August, and during the following months, to feel that, notwithstanding the acute situation that arose following the declaration of war, we were, owing to the policy that has always prevailed, entirely free from any anxiety whatever as to our financial position or our obligations to any class of our beneficiaries.

I have for a great many years at our Annual Meetings ventured to point out the evil of promiscuously granting charters to groups of individuals styling themselves "trust companies," whose chief object in organizing is to acquire the control of funds for the exploitation of this enterprise or that, the purchase and sale of real estate, etc., etc. The folly of granting such charters has been very clearly exemplified during the past year in the disastrous failure in the West of one of the so-called trust companies, that had established connections and branch offices throughout the Dominion.

In retiring from the position of General Manager of the Corporation, it is a matter of keen gratification to me to know that all its affairs are in an absolutely sound and healthy condition, not only in respect to the investments held for Trust and Guaranteed Accounts, as well as for its own Capital and Reserve, but also in the matter of its entire organization and equipment, both at the Head Office and Branches. The Corporation was never in a better position to efficiently handle estates and trusts of all kinds than it is at the present time. With the experience gathered during the years, departments have been organized for the expert administration of the various classes of assets, including businesses and going concerns of almost every description, and while the earnings of the Corporation on its Capital Stock are no doubt satisfactory to the shareholders, the most casual observer in examining our statements will see that our net profits, having regard to the volume of business in the hands of the Corporation, and the complex character of the assets under administration, are certainly very moderate.

In speaking out of an experience of over thirty years in trust company affairs, in connection with which I have had ample opportunity to compare the corporate with the private or individual administration of estates, I have no hesitation whatever in very strongly advising the public generally of the immense advantages to be had from the services of a reliable trust company in the administration of executorships, trusteeships, etc., which may be had at a cost no greater, if indeed as great, as administration by private individuals. A legitimate and carefully-managed trust company, to my mind, is a most valuable servant of the community in which it operates, in not only managing and conserving the estates of deceased persons, accumulated frequently by dint of hard work and the practice of economy, but in the care and management of the financial affairs of individuals who may, for one reason or another, wish to be relieved from such duties, and also in looking after the investments of charitable and other institutions.

In retiring from the position of General Manager I wish to express my unbounded confidence in the future success of the Corporation, knowing as I do the views of the Board of Directors and the officials and staff of the Corporation, who will be responsible for the direction of its affairs and the carrying out of its undertakings. I desire to thank in no formal way, but from the bottom of my heart, the members of the Board of Directors and Advisory Boards, the officers and the staff of the Corporation at Head Office and Branches, for the loyal support which I have enjoyed during all the years in which I have had the honor to fill the position of General Manager of the Corporation.

The report was unanimously adopted.

The report of the Inspection Committee, as signed by Mr. Hamilton Cassels, K.C., Hon. Sir John M. Gibson, K.C.M.G., and J. Bruce Macdonald, was also adopted.

The following Shareholders were elected Directors for the current year : W. R. Brock, Hamilton Cassels, K.C., Sir William Mortimer Clark, K.C., LL.D., Hon. Senator W. C. Edwards, Hon. J. J. Foy, K.C., M.P.P., Col. Hon. Sir John M. Gibson, K.C.M.G., LL.D., Arthur C. Hardy, John Hoskin, K.C., LL.D., J. W. Langmuir, R. W. Leonard, Thomas Long, J. Bruce Macdonald, Sir Daniel H. McMillan, K.C.M.G., W. D. Matthews, Hon. Peter McLaren, Lieut.-Col. John F. Michie, Sir Edmund Osler, M.P., Hon. Featherston Osler, K.C., J. G. Scott, K.C., Sir Edmund Walker, C.V.O., LL.D., and E. C. Whitney.

The President, Hon. Featherston Osler, K.C., announced to the Shareholders that Mr. A. D. Langmuir, who has been with the Corporation for over thirty years, filling the position of Assistant General Manager since 1897, had been appointed by the Directors to the position of General Manager of the Corporation, made vacant by the retirement of Mr. J. W. Langmuir, and, further, that Mr. W. G. Watson, who has been with the Corporation for eighteen years, occupying the position of Secretary since 1907, had been promoted to the position of Assistant General Manager.

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors Hon. Featherston Osler, K.C., was re-elected President, and Hon. J. J. Foy, K.C., and J. W. Langmuir, Vice-Presidents.

The Inspection Committee was re-elected, namely, Hon. J. J. Foy, K.C., Chairman; Hamilton Cassels, K.C., and Hon. Sir John M. Gibson, K.C.M.G.

The following members were elected to the Advisory Boards at Ottawa and Winnipeg :—

Ottawa—W. D. Hogg, K.C., Chairman; George Burn, Captain J. L. Murphy, Hiram Robinson and Sir Henry N. Bate.

Winnipeg—Hon. Sir Daniel H. McMillan, K.C.M.G., Chairman; H. M. Smith, W. H. Cross, A. L. Crossin, Sir D. C. Cameron, K.C.M.G., and Frederick T. Griffin.

LEADER OF INDIANS MADE A POOR START

General Sir James Willcocks Ran Away to Sea as a Boy—Has More Medals Than Any Officer

"Indian Willcocks," as the man who is in command of the Indian Expeditionary Force is so often termed in the service, is a leader whom the natives would follow to the death, for he always shared with Lord Roberts their love and admiration, while "Tommy" himself has never forgotten the tribute which Sir James paid to him when he said: "A man braver and more human than 'Tommy Atkins' was never created."

In view of the fact that in his very youthful days Sir James was regarded as the bad boy of a family which has produced many distinguished men, his achievement and the manner in which he has carved his way to military fame without the influence of money or powerful friends make his career a veritable romance of soldiering. He was the despair of his teachers, who could never get him to concentrate on his studies, and when he ultimately ran away to sea there were not wanting those who wagged their heads and prophesied a more or less terrible ending for the venturesome lad who, because of his restlessness, was nicknamed "Perpetual Motion."

And Sir James himself told how he was really in despair when he twice failed for the first examination for the army, after which he wandered about in tramp steamers, suffering many hardships and gaining bitter experience, and ultimately landed at Newhaven with twopence in his pocket. Finally he entered Sandhurst, and, on passing out creditably, was gazetted to the Leinster Regiment in 1878.

Sir James was only a freshly-joined subaltern when the Afghan War broke out, and it is characteristic of his fighting spirit that, although his regiment was not ordered for active service, he sent a telegram to Simla asking to be employed. Then he packed his scanty kit and calmly waited. In two days the answer came, and, to the surprise of his brother officers, "Jim" Willcocks was ordered to the front.

Since those days he has participated in every "scrap" of importance in which India has been engaged, fought in over a dozen campaigns, and is reported to have more medals than anyone else in the service.

Like his men, Sir James is a fatalist, which partly explains the unconcerned manner in which he has performed many acts of individual bravery. And by some people Sir James may be regarded as a faddist, as well as a fatalist. Possessed of a splendid frame and physique, he has never neglected an opportunity of preaching the value of physical fitness. "Never let a day pass," he once said to some of his officers in his mess, "without taking as much physical exercise as you can endure. Never keep on wet clothes a moment longer than you are absolutely obliged, and, lastly, whatever else you may dispense with, hold fast to your mosquito curtain." Whether he still continues the habit it is difficult to say, but for years Sir James attributed not a little of his good health to the fact that he always made it a rule to run a mile every evening before dinner.

He also has his own rules of diet, to which he rigidly adheres. One of his articles of belief is that most people eat too much. For himself, he has never taken breakfast for many years, holding that two substantial meals a day ought to suffice. He never takes liquid in any form at the table, but, though moderation is his creed, he is not a teetotaller. He always insists that in steamy, malarious districts a moderate amount of alcohol is beneficial.

Lemon juice in water is an excellent tooth wash as it not only removes tartar, but sweetens the breath.

OTTAWA UNEASY OVER THE SUPPLY OF SEED

Government's Plan to Aid the Westerners Will Be An Expensive One

OTTAWA, Feb. 5.—The campaign of "patriotism and production" bids fair to be considerably interfered with according to Western members unless the Federal Government decides immediately to extend the area to the settlers upon which advances of seed grain are to be given. Early last fall the Government mapped out a "drought area" in the southern portions of Saskatchewan and Alberta, where crops had been a comparative failure, and undertook to advance seed grain, feed for stock, and provisions for the settlers. Since then over 6,000 additional applications from persons outside this area have been filed with the Government for seed grain, and a prospective outlay of about two million dollars bids fair to reach the proportions of six millions.

The Government has shown some alarm at this, and recently made an order that only men on unpatented homesteads could get the advances, since a first mortgage upon patented lands could not be given exception by the consent of the Provincial authorities. Permission to take such mortgage has been granted by the latter, and the Government is now faced with the proposition of further extending the advances under such conditions, or of refusing to make any other extension on the ground that the grain was bought upon the first estimate and at comparatively low prices, while further purchases will have to be made at prices approximating much higher.

Western members contend that unless the extension is made many thousands of acres of land ready for crop in the West will go unseeded next spring. The question is under the consideration of a sub-committee of the Cabinet.

AMERICAN PEOPLE ARE CARRYING HUGE SUM IN LIFE INSURANCE

WASHINGTON, Feb 1.—Americans carry a total insurance on their lives of [illegible], according to Charles F. Nesbit, superintendent of insurance of the District of Columbia. According to Nesbit, there are two divisions of life insurance companies, the old line companies having outstanding $4,582,586 policies, while fraternal concerns have outstanding certificates numbering 7,804,981.

"Insurance is a social function," he says. "It is a substitution of social co-operative provision for individual provision. Technically, this substitution of social effort for individual effort is known in theory of distribution of losses and the subsequent elimination of the risk. The importance of insurance may be measured somewhat by its extent."

No Wonder.

CHAPTER XXIII.

An Ensign Feels His Dignity Offended.

IT lacked but fifteen minutes to 5 before she found herself upon the street with the jeweler who had rushed to her assistance and, after a short conference with the officers and detectives, had arranged her release, personally agreeing to produce her when desired.

"If you know Loubeque has the papers," he demanded, "why don't you call on a policeman to protect you and to rescue them?"

Lucille smiled faintly at his commonplace advice, realizing the absolute impossibility of impressing anyone with the power of her enemy. And she must hurry to the mysterious house where Ensign Howell was to call at 5:30, even as she thanked her friend, bidding him goodby at the door of her motorcar.

Hurriedly she searched the streets for the mysterious residence of Hugo Loubeque. She had ten minutes leeway before the ensign was due to call, ample opportunity if she had not forgotten any details of the message. The house was vacant, just as she had thought it would be, for Loubeque would never trust himself for a long time to the place that had once been raided. It would suffice for this short bit of business—that was all.

She let herself easily in by the door, the smashed lock of the raiding party never having been replaced. Swiftly she rushed through the familiar rooms. In the desk drawer of the spy she found a medium sized automatic, the silencer still fastened on it. The front door bell clanged.

The last act in the play was about to be begun. Ensign Howell was at the door, unless the spy had detected her trick in tampering with the message of the carrier pigeon.

Her right hand, which had been clasping the revolver concealed beneath her coat, unclasped, and a sigh of obvious relief came from her lips as she opened the door to greet a young ensign in uniform. She did not quite know what she would have done had it been Loubeque.

"Ensign Howell?" she murmured, flushing prettily at the admiration and astonishment on the officer's face at being greeted by such a vision. "I am very sorry," she murmured hurriedly, as he started to enter, "but Mr. Loubeque was obliged to leave hurriedly. He left word that he would surely be at any place convenient after 3:45."

"Any place convenient?" The officer's tones were more of surprise than vexation.

"That is," she hesitated, "where it would be convenient for a cutter or boat of some sort to take him to the Terror. That matter is of such importance he does not care—that is"—

The young man straightened himself, his face wearing an expression of wounded dignity. Lucille heaved a sigh of relief.

"That is quite Mr. Loubeque's privilege," he snapped. "I shall write the address on a card where the cutter will lie so there can be no further mistake."

Lucille accepted the card negligently, holding her eyes averted that he might not read the ecstasy that rarely flooded them. She watched his ruler straight

SHATTERED, UNSTEADY SHAKY NERVES

MAY BE TONED UP BY USING

MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. John Harper, Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have used Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for the heart and nervous system. I was confined to a grocery store for twelve years, and had to give up business, as I became terribly run down and nervous, and had heart trouble, and I am sure I am gaining very fast now. I feel that nothing did me any good until I tried your Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am positive they will cure me. The nerves of one hand would trouble and then seem to go numb so that I could not write or sew. Now my hand is quite steady, as you can see by my handwriting. This is a big change which delights me so much for I thought all was done that could be done. I was about to give up in despair when I tried this last remedy, and even after I had only taken half a box the change started to come."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will restore the enfeebled, enervated, exhausted, overworked system to full constitutional power.

Price, 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Scratch Set Up Blood Poison

Zam-Buk Cured Her

Mrs. John Peterson, Wellwood, Man., writes,—"Some time ago I scraped the skin off my knuckles. Not thinking it serious, I merely washed the wounds and applied an ointment I had on hand at the time. However, instead of getting better, my fingers got worse.

"The sores spread quickly and penetrated to the bone. They began to discharge, were terribly painful, and blood poison was starting. I became alarmed and was going to a doctor, when Zam-Buk was recommended.

"I purchased a box and began using it. The first few applications eased the pain and I noticed a decided improvement. Every day my fingers got better under the Zam-Buk treatment, and eventually a complete cure resulted."

Accidents are always happening. It may only be a pin scratch, cut, or burn, but do not forget that whenever the skin is broken there is danger of blood poison. Why take chances? Apply Zam-Buk at once!

As soon as Zam-Buk is applied it quickly kills all germs, thus eliminating all danger of blood poisoning or other complications. It ends the pain, stops bleeding, and heals.

Zam-Buk is a cure for cuts, burns, bruises, chapped hands, cold sores, piles, eczema, ulcers, and all skin diseases and injuries. All druggists and stores, 50 cents box, or postpaid from Zam-Buk, Co., Toronto.

FREE TRIAL BOX will be sent on receipt of 1c stamp for return postage, this article, and name of paper.

Buk as it disappeared down the street, then clasped the card feverishly to her breast. The first move had been made, and she had more than taken the honors. High hope beat in her heart because of the little victory. She snapped her teeth tightly shut. Yes, the papers would be taken aboard the Terror, but not by Hugo Loubeque. Neither would there be any affidavit with them from the arch spy. She was ready for anything now.

Laggard time for once flew while she waited the long interval that was to elapse before the arrival of the spy. Lucille found once more the tunnel through which she had been led, found mysterious passages and explored them, studied out the position she would be in when she completed her work with the enemy who was to come.

A step sounded overhead, slow, measured, methodical. She pressed close against the switchboard to the house of mystery, the emanation of the mysteries. Her fingers trembled slightly. The feet moved up the stairs. She waited, fingers outstretched toward a little ivory button. The cool surface kissed the finger pad, the pad upon which depended the honor of father and sweetheart, which spelled home, life, love to her.

* * * * * * *

Hugo Loubeque moved slowly to his private office on the second floor. He shivered slightly as he went up the stairs. Ghosts were in the house, ghost memories that he was about to slay finally and forever.

He seated himself at his desk to wait, wandering off in a day dream of pleasanter memories. Lucille—how her very presence here had made the place bearable. He took the precious packet of stolen papers from his pocket. The sweet he had longed for was his now and yet it was not sweet.

He slapped his fist heavily upon the table, cursing himself for a fool that such thoughts should oppress him.

What ailed the ensign that he did not come? It was past the time appointed. That was most unusual. He strode nervously up and down the floor. Suddenly the floor gave way violently beneath him, flashed down with lightning speed, bringing up upon the basement floor with such violence that everything in the room was overturned, while he himself lay half stunned against the table.

He staggered away, finding himself so weak and dazed he was obliged to clutch the table edge to keep from toppling over. Something cool and soft brushed against his hand, then the softness grew as iron and his fingers were loosened from their clutch. He staggered back, back against the basement wall. He heard Lucille's voice uttering a little cry of delight. His hands encountered the light switch, instinctively pressing. The room was a flood of yellow light, in the center of which, slowly retreating toward the tunnel exit from the house, revolver pointed steadily at him, with eyes sighting behind the revolver that were harder even than the glint of metal, stood Lucille Love, the precious packet of papers in her hand.

Slowly, without a word, she disappeared from view, departed as abruptly, as unexpectedly as she had appeared, making use of the spy's ingenuity to turn it against him in this, his greatest hour. For a moment he could not think or do anything; then he darted toward the tunnel, staggering back as a white hot iron seared his brow even as an orange spurt of flame leaped out the darkness at him.

He could not charge that way. He dashed to the stairs, rushing into the open, listless, wild, disheveled. An automobile stood before the door. He directed it wildly toward the tunnel entrance, arriving there barely in time to see Lucille step inside another motorcar and dart forward like a living thing.

Helpless, hopeless, yet fighting on with bulldog ferocity, Loubeque continued the chase. Times he would lose her, only to pick the car up again in the most unexpected place. Then, for a full five minutes, along the water front, she disappeared.

A husky, irate chauffeur stepped before his driver and slammed open the door.

"Hey, youse," he brawled angrily, 'whatin yuh mean chasin' a lolly like dat?"

Loubeque did not answer. Instead he put a question, snapping it in a tone of authority that made even the man cringe.

"Where did she go?"

The driver passed him a grimy card. The international spy turned it over in his hand, reading the address upon it and marking that it was not a block away. On the obverse side he read Ensign Howell's name. The chauffeur was pointing out upon the harbor. Loubeque looked, marked the slim figure of Lucille standing upright in the bridal manned cutter approaching the big ship. He turned away.

His shoulders seemed to have slumped in the half hour, his face to have undergone a chiseling process by the sculptor Suffering, but a smile crossed his face.

Once in the cutter, Lucille for the first time heaved a huge sigh of relief as she glanced back toward the shore and saw Hugo Loubeque jump from the car in which he had been pursuing her and glance hurriedly up and down the harbor front.

She clambered over the sides of the waiting government vessel, being met at the deck by the captain himself. His eyebrows rose in surprise as he regarded the slender slip of a girl facing him, her eyes wet with tears.

"Ensign Howell informed me that Mr. Loubeque"—he began, when she interrupted.

"The papers are here, captain. I have them. They are safe now."

For a moment he studied her meditatively. She felt an icy chill running up and down her spine. Would he turn back and force her to return the papers? At the very suggestion her face flamed in every muscle, while her eyes met his coldly and steadily, a purpose in their depths which even the officer turned away from, convinced that all was well.

"I am Lucille Love, daughter of General Love."

And now that she was safe, the nervous reaction came upon her. In her own tiny cabin, safe finally from the man she had last seen upon the shore, it seemed the very air was fraught with terrors, horrible fears reaching toward her, gibbering at her with threats of perils greater even than those she had come through already. A light tapping on the door brought her to her feet, heartily ashamed of the false terrors she had allowed to unnerve her. She opened the door, and Ensign Howell entered.

Lucille regarded him coldly, in far different manner from the coquettish young woman who had put him off at the house of Loubeque.

"Miss—Miss"— he stammered, "why did you send me away from the appointment? The captain wishes to speak with you, and when you tell him the truth it will appear as though I"—

"You need have no fear," she answered quietly. "Will you kindly conduct me to the captain? I will explain everything."

The captain of the Terror regarded her steadily as she was brought before him. Seated at his desk, in the very throne of his authority, Lucille felt him a very much more formidable being than when she met him on the deck. This man was her enemy, would

So her enemy until the question of possession of the papers had been thoroughly thrashed out.

"Your name, please?" queried the commander shortly.

Lucille felt a thrill of pride running through her.

"My name, sir," she said quite simply, "is Lucille Love—daughter of General Sumpter Love, United States army."

The commander held out his hand.

"I am in receipt of orders from Washington," he said quietly, "to meet Hugo Loubeque, who would turn over to me certain papers and orders which he received from General Love while in command at Manila, and which he sold"—

"It's a lie!" Lucille's voice rang against the sides of the cabin with vibrant force.

"Your name, please?" she repeated, quieting the fury which was racking her. "My father did receive the papers. There was a military ball in progress at the time. He gave them to his aid, Lieutenant Gibson, my fiancee, to put in the safe. That night they were stolen by a servant in the employ of Hugo Loubeque; stolen, I tell you, not sold."

The commander nodded coldly.

"Your contention is a matter for the court of inquiry to thrash out. I am under orders to receive the packet of papers and take them to that court, together with the affidavit of Hugo Loubeque that they were sold to him. If they are in your possession, I will take them; if not, I shall be forced to turn back and find Mr. Loubeque."

"The papers are in my possession, sir. They belong to me until I can turn them over to my father, to whom they were sent. What he will do with them is a matter for the court of inquiry to decide."

"That is quite impossible," the man snapped sharply. "In the first place, your story is quite incredible—[illegible] Love was drowned when the Empress took fire."

"Lucille Love is here, sir. Lucille Love was aboard the Empress. Now there with Mr. Harley, the government aviator, because she knew from a message she cut in on upon the telephone that Hugo Loubeque was aboard the Empress and that he had the papers. Ever since, through jungle, desert, land and water, I have followed him. I have seen the spy's diary. It is here with the papers—always. That will show his hatred for her father. That will explain. That will prove my story."

Even as the captain nodded, rising to his feet to eagerly watch the girl's frantic search through the packet, a little, dry sob broke from her lips.

She recovered herself with an effort, shaking her head as though to drive away the mists of faintness which this, the crowning misfortune, had delivered her. The diary of Hugo Loubeque was not among the papers she had recovered.

The captain nodded toward his ensign, who, with a glance of sympathy toward the stricken girl, scooped up the papers and laid them before his commanding officer.

Lucille turned and slowly left the room. Her eyes were fastened directly ahead but she walked as one who journeys in slumber, sweeping, benumbed. And her lips repeated over and over again:

"Too cruel! Cruel! Cruel!"

Sound Deflection.

Sound does not always travel through the air in a straight line. It often happens that two zones of sound are separated by a zone of silence. In 1906 an explosion of dynamite on the railroad then building up the Jungfrau was heard in two different zones. The first extended through a radius of forty kilometers around the explosion. The other began at a distance of 146 kilometers, the sound being unheard in the intervening 100 kilometers. Similar phenomena had been observed elsewhere, and physicists tried to explain them by the reflexion of the sound waves from certain atmospheric strata. Professor Fujiwhara, who has studied such matters during volcanic eruptions in Japan, asserts now that these phenomena depend upon the direction of the wind in the middle strata of the atmosphere.

Twitching of the Nerves Broken-down System

Now Entirely Cured—Never Used Any Medicine With Such Benefit as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Headaches, sleeplessness and nervousness are often very disagreeable, but when your nervous system gets into such a condition that the nerves twitch and jerk, and you have peculiar nervous [illegible] over you there is cause for grave alarm.

MRS. McKELLAR.

Everybody dreads the thought of paralysis or locomotor ataxia. Nothing is worse to look forward to than helplessness. Sometimes it is helplessness of body, and at other times the mind is affected, which is far worse.

The writer of this letter did not know what to expect, but fortunately began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in time to head off danger, and writes that she was entirely cured of the old trouble. The last paragraph proves that the cure was lasting.

Mrs. John McKellar, 11 Barton street east, Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"I was injured some years ago, and that left me with a broken-down nervous system. I could not sleep, and suffered from twitching of the nerves and disagreeable nervous sensations.

"I then began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and can say that I never used any medicine that did me so much good; in fact, I am entirely cured of my old trouble. The Nerve Food not only strengthened the nerves, but also built up my system in every way."

Under more recent date Mrs. McKellar writes confirming her cure, and states that she has had inquiries from many people who had heard of the great benefits she obtained from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

$25 FOR A LETTER

CAN YOU WRITE ONE?

Thirteen Prizes to Be Awarded in a Letter Writing Contest

Some years ago the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont., offered a series of prizes to residents of the province of Ontario for the best letters describing cures wrought by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Hundreds of letters were submitted in this competition, and yet there must have been thousands of other users of the pills who did not avail themselves of the opportunity to win a prize. To all these another letter writing competition is offered. The results of cures through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have never been exhausted. They will furnish the material for the letters to be written in this contest. There is no demand upon the imagination; every letter must deal with facts and facts only.

THE PRIZES.

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont., will award a prize of $25.00 for the best letter received on or before the 1st day of March, 1915, from residents of Ontario, on the subject, "Why I Recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." A prize of $10.00 will be awarded for the second best letter received; a prize of $5.00 for the third best letter and ten prizes of $2.00 each for the next best ten letters.

THE CONDITIONS.

The cure or benefit from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills described in the letter may be in the writer's own case, or one that has come under his or her personal observation.

More than one cure may be described in the letter, but every statement must be literally and absolutely true.

Every letter must be signed by the full name and correct address of the person sending it. If it describes the cure of some person, other than the writer of the letter, it must also be signed by the person whose cure is described as a character of the truth of the statements made.

The writer of each letter must state the name and date of the paper in which he or she saw this announcement.

Fine writing will not win the prize unless you have a good case to describe. The strength of the recommendation and not the style of the letter will be the basis of the award.

It is understood that The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. shall have the right to publish any letter entered in this contest if they desire to do so whether it wins a prize or not.

The contest will close on March 1st, 1915, and the prizes will be awarded as soon as possible thereafter. Do not delay. If you know of a cure write your letter NOW. Observe the above conditions carefully or your letter may be thrown out.

Address all letters as follows:

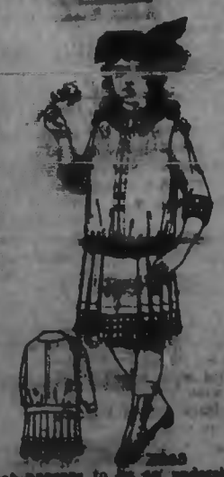
FOOD SHORTAGE BRINGS RELEASE OF BELGIANS

Amsterdam, via London, Feb. 5. — The Tijid in its issue of this afternoon describes the return to Mechlin of 540 Belgians who had been interned and held in Germany as hostages since the beginning of the German invasion of Belgium. Although there has been no explanation why these people were sent back, the opinion generally held, the Tijid says, was that Germany, unable to feed all the prisoners in her hands, was seizing the opportunity to send some of the Belgians back home. The correspondent says the returning Belgians were all ragged and dirty.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE



What appears to be an undershirt is merely another excellent garment to be worn under a shirt waist. The broad centre and lines blended as one, which is easy to manage, quite as easy as to make a perfectly plain skirt would be. The dress is rather long waisted, though not extremely so. It is the kind that makes a most satisfactory school and play frock. The pattern, No. 7,099, comes in sizes from two to eight years. Price 10 cents.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and the size desired and send your order to The Examiner Pattern Service, The Examiner, Peterborough.

Census Proves Italy Is Overrun By Very Active German Spies

Despatch From Venice to the European Edition of the Herald Shows That Teuton Aliens Outnumber the Nationals of All Other Belligerents There Now by Four to One.

VENICE, Feb. 5.—A striking exposure of the gigantic system of espionage which the Germans have established all over Europe is afforded by a census of the number of subjects of belligerent nations now residing in this country.

The result of this census, which has just been completed by the Italian government, shows an overwhelming percentage of Germans, who are numerically more or less four times as strong as all the other nationals put together.

The approximate returns are:—6,000 Russians, 4,000 French, 3,000 English, some hundreds of Servians and 62,000 Germans. No fewer than 42,000 Germans are to be found in Northern Italy, Lombardy and Venetia.

Striking as are these figures at first glance, their significance becomes even greater when it is explained that the great majority of the French, English and Russians are merely visitors to this country. It is very different with the Germans, who are represented in nearly all the big trades and industries of Italy.

The business of this country has been permeated by Germans, and it is obvious that a vast number of these aliens, ostensibly ordinary business men, must be the agents of the German government, or, to put it more bluntly, spies. This conclusion is confirmed by the fact that the 62,000 Germans now in Italy include a large percentage of men who are fit for active service. When war first broke out many of these went to Germany, but they have since come back here.

In view of the fact that Germany has need of every available fighting man, the German Government's sanction of their return on the pretext that they might be able to resume their business can have only one explanation.

It is notorious that Germany is making a tremendous propaganda in Italy, spreading her usual false statements in regard to the responsibility for the war and in regard to her own method of conducting it. Evidently she regards her nationals in Italy as of more use in developing this propaganda, and perhaps for other political reasons, than as fighting men. Prince von Bulow's Germanophile campaign is thus aided and abetted by thousands of his less distinguished countrymen throughout the country.

Fortunately the Italian people are not deceived. They know that the whole responsibility for the war must be borne by the Kaiser and the Potsdam war party. Italy unhappily knows what brigandage is, although that is a thing of the past, and the people regard Germany as waging not war, but brigandage on a wholesale scale with its usual accompaniments of cruelty, lust and bloodshed.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

The Apologists for Germany.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

After reading the various apologies for the violation of Belgium's neutrality by Germany, I find that the various apologists have formulated at least nine reasons in defence of Germany, as follows:

1. Von Bethmann-Hollweg: We know we are doing wrong, but we are impelled by military necessity.

2. Count von Bernstorff: French officers violated the neutrality by flying over Belgium in aeroplanes.

3. Dr. Dernburg: Gladstone said it was all right.

4. A report from Berlin: Brussels archives reveal A plot between England and Belgium.

5. German professors: It was merely a hypocritical excuse on the part of England.

6. Judge Grosscup: The treaty was not binding as a contractual obligation.

7. Prof. Burgess: Belgium had outgrown the necessity for the use of the baby long at neutralization treaties.

8. Prof. Hiecke: Thou fewer was a treaty.

9. Maximilian Harden: Tell them to go to h——.

AUTOMOBILE GARRISON

Is Proposed For Peterborough—Would Facilitate the Mobilization of Troops

IN EVENT OF ATTACK

The Officer Commanding the Peterborough Home Guard and Lieut.-Col. Walker, officer commanding the 57th Regiment, has requested the co-operation of the automobile owners of Peterborough and surrounding district in a scheme for the speedy mobilization of the Peterborough Regiment and the Home Guard for home defence in case of an emergency. There is no doubt but what the mobilization of the Peterborough forces could be greatly facilitated by the use of automobiles It is felt that in [illegible] or the possibility—however remote—of an attempt on Canada by the enemies of Great Britain, some attempt should be made at once to organize the automobile owners in such a manner that they could be immediately mobilised and used to rush troops to any point that might be threatened

Can Requisition Them.

There are a large number of automobile owners in Peterborough and surrounding country. If they were organised it would be possible to assemble them at any given point in time of danger. If an attack were delivered at some point remote from the railways it would be difficult and slow to move a body of troops to that point. If the military authorities had all the automobiles in the County at their command it would be possible to requisition them, and send hundreds of men to the scene of danger. As matters now stand the authorities can now requisition them, but much valuable time would be lost in locating them. A preliminary organization would put the automobile owners on the qui vive, awaiting the telephone summons from his Captain to come quickly to the defence of his country.

Expressed Approval.

This organisation would be arranged by the Peterborough Automobile Association, who would act in conjunction with the Ontario Motor League. The officials of the Ontario Motor League have been communicated with and they expressed their approval of the scheme. They are very enthusiastic over the success they have attained in Toronto, where they have a strong automobile garrison under the auspices of the League.

The Means Adopted.

Following is the means adopted to accomplish the organisation of an automobile garrison for military purposes

Organisation of Motor Cars for Military Purposes.

Preliminary Meeting.

1. Call a meeting of the Executive of the Automobile League and arrange for the following organisation:

Territorial Organization

2. Divide the City into districts, each with a Commandant.

Interior Organization.

3. Organisation into squadrons, lettered from "A," of 10 cars each, with a Captain.

1 squadron—4 troops.
1 troop—4 cars.

A Commandant is appointed to each 10 squadrons.

Capacity

4. One squadron will take about one company, one troop will take about one section.

Badge.

5. A distinguished badge to be adopted, i.e., a flag attached to the radiator.

Headquarters Squadron.

6. Headquarters squadron to carry flag lettered "AA." and G.O.C's. car only in addition to carry a Union Jack.

Other Squadrons.

7. Other squadrons to carry letter of their squadron on the flag.

Squadron and Troop Commanders.

8. Squadron and troop commanders will, in addition to the flag bearing the letter of their squadron, have the letters "S.C." and "T.C." respectively.

In Case of Alarm.

9. In case of alarm the channel of communication will be through Headquarters to squadron and troop commanders, who will notify the car chauffeurs where to assemble.

Commandants.

10. Commandants to be chosen by the Executive of the Automobile League to complete the organization, as outlined herein.

Chief Commandant.

11. The Commandants will assemble and choose a Chief Commandant who will be responsible for the whole organization

CANADIANS ARE NOW IN FRANCE

Bulk of the First Contingent Has Safely Crossed the English Channel and the Troops Are Situated in the Rouen District, According to Private Despatches Received

SPECIAL CABLE:

TORONTO, February 6.—(Special.)—That despite Germany's threats to exterminate the transports it is apparent from private despatches received here this morning that the bulk of Canada's first contingent has safely crossed the English channel, landed at Havre, and are now encamped or billeted in or near Rouen, which is a city of a hundred thousand populatin on the Seine river, about 80 miles north from Paris, and not far from the port of Havre. Other despatches tell of a large concentration of British troops at or near Boulogne, and it would seem that Britain has been pouring perhaps hundreds of thousands of troops into France this week.

Some time ago letters and cables received here indicated that Rouen would very probably be the base of the Canadian expeditionary force in France.

Grandson of President Kruger at Pretria Charged with Treason

PRETORIA, via London, Feb. 5, — Pieter Globler, a member of the Parliament of the Union of South Africa and a grandson of Paul Kruger, has been committed for trial on a charge of treason.

An official announcement issued here sets forth that seventy-one burghers who declined to serve against the Germans in the Southwest have been ordered court martialled. Five hundred others who professed willingness to join their commands but urged various reasons for exemption will be sent back to their home districts, where local board will inquire into the facts.

MOST HEARTY LOYALTY NOW MARKS ATTITUDE OF ENGLAND

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Most hearty loyalty, which has stamped out any germ of sedition that ever existed, now marks the attitude of India toward Great Britain, accoring to Mr. Henry Dunster Baker, who has recently relinquished his post of American Consul at Bombay to accept the appointment of United States Commerial Attache at Petrograd.

Mr. Baker has just come from Bombay and will be here until Saturday, when he leaves on board the St. Louis for America. Mr. Baker believes that Russian offers great opportunity to American manufacturers. The German preferential tariff, he said, and the close proximity of Germany to Russia were of course great competing factors before the war.

HENS CONFINED IN THE CELLAR

Sanitary Inspector Spence Proposes to Put a Stop to the Practice

That a number of people residing in the city are keeping poultry in the cellars of their houses is the latest find of Sanitary Inspector Spence. Needless to say he has undertaken to put a stop to the practice on the grounds that it is unsanitary. Future offenders may be invited to appear before the Police Magistrate. In the cellar of one house there were at least a dozen hens fenced in with wire netting. At the top of the stairway was the pantry. The Inspector ordered the hens removed. Another instance where hens were kept in the cellar, it was found necessary to remove them owing to an outbreak of cramps, probably caused by the close confinement.

On Machine Gun Squad

Pte. Heber Rogers Appointed From His Company—Leaving for France

Mr. E. B. Rogers received a letter this morning from his son, Pte. Heber Rogers, with the 31st Canadian Contingent, at Salisbury Plain, England, stating that he had been appointed to the machine gun squad, for service at the front, and Pte. Gordon Graham, formerly of the staff of the Lakefield Preparatory School, has also been chosen with Pte. Rogers. Pte. Graham's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Graham of Lakefield, are at present in Lakefield.

Pte. Rogers also intimated in his letter that they intended leaving for France in three weeks' time, which would mean that they are about due to leave now.

WILL SEND A PROTEST

United States and Dutch Officials Confer To-day in Regard to the German Admiralty's Warning

SITUATION IS GRAVE

Special Cable to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—An informal conference between Acting Secretary of State Lansing and the Dutch Minister Van Rappard this afternoon marked the first movement towards the concenarated action of these neutrals to the German Admiralty's warning to their shiping to avoid the English Channel after February 8.

The administration officials to-day repeated their hints that a protest will be forwarded to Germany. Just what ground it will cover they would not say. Moreover they were reticent concerning the situation in advance of receiving from Berlin the note already published.

No effort was made, however, to conceal the gravity of the situation as viewed by officialdom. For this reason, the officials explained any lengthy discussion at this moment might complicate what they admitted is already a delicate matter.

Listen To The Graphophones

On Charlotte Street—Free Concerts in the Home Furnishing Co.'s Store—Catchy Song Hits

Charlotte Street is growing fast and becoming one of the busiest thoroughfares of the city. The newest thing on the street is an importation of a new line of graphophones by the Home Furnishing Co., 298 Charlotte Street. Mr. Florence is introducing to this section the new February, 1915 machines made by the oldest company in the business, the Columbia Graphophone Co. The new "favourites" have a great reputaion, and are the very latest machines on the market. They range in price from $12.75 to $600, to meet the requirements of all classes of people. The perfect motor mechanism revolves the turn-table at unvarying speed, and the reproducer is a marvel of naturalness and roundness of tone. They can be sold for cash or on easy payments, as desired. The new records gives the latest popular operatic recordings of artists, mid-winter song hits, dance music, and popular concert and folk songs. Worth your while to drop in and hear the music of the graphophone on Charlotte Street.

ARTILLERY DUELS THE ONLY FEATURE

British in the Trenches Are Given a Fearful Shelling, But Held All Their Ground—French Guns Destroy German Observation Balloon

SPECIAL CABLE:

PARIS, February 6.—(3 p.m. Official.)—The despatches to-day indicate a lull in the operations at all points. Artillery duels are a feature. At one point the French captured a balloon from behind the German lines. The British in the trenches near the Ysar river were given a fearful shelling from the German guns but held all around.

PARIS, Feb. 6.—French artillery work was further emphasized by reports from the battle front around Amiens. There a French shell from a distance of several miles tore through a German observation balloon, inside the German lines. The balloon collapsed. The French aviators reported that the three German officers who were surveying the German positions, were dashed to the earth and killed. Artillery conflicts continue from Arras southward to Rheims with the French showing the superiority in the shelling of trenches. Despatches from Alsace indicate the resumption of the fighting around Hartmannsweiler, where the Germans are renewing their attacks upon the strong French position on the hill.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 6.—Thrilling details of the great battle now in progress west of Warsaw, were contained in the official despatches to-day, that announced the repulse of all German frontal assaults.

Between Skiernnwice and Bohinoff the Germans threw a bridge made of barrels across the Rawaka. The Russians concealed in entrenchments on the opposite bank allowed three German infantry companies to cross. Then they charged from their earthworks, and bayonetted the Germans. Those that escaped were forced into the river and drowned. The Russian artillery wrecked the bridge.

Near Borzimoff the Germans brought armoured autos into play in a new attack. A squadron of armoured motor cars carrying light guns sped over the frozen roads and into the outskirts of a village held by the Russians. The Germans have brought 16 1-2 inch guns into play in their efforts to force a gap through the centre of the Rusian position between Bolimox and the Vistula. The Russians have now crossed the Bzura River in two places.

MR. DALY'S "GRAND OPERA" MADE NEW RECORD AT OTTAWA

Grand Opera, that split the money in the 2:10 pace and trot in Ottawa on Thursday, is owned by Mr. Jas. Daly of this city. The stake was $1,000 with four entries, Homer Mac, Eel Direct, Grand Opera and Point Boy. Homer Mac took the first two heats, and Grand Opera won easily in the last two, in the third heat making a new track record of :18¾, the former record of 2:14¾ being held by Jennie W., made two years ago. The race was called on account of darkness, the judges deciding to split first and second money between Grand Opera and Homer Mac.

C.P.R. Bridge dynamited by German—The bridge on the C. P. R. at Vanceboro, Maine, marks the boundary between Maine and Canada, where the C. P. R. crosses. Werner Van Horne, a self-styled German officer, dynamited a section of the bridge, recently. He claimed his act was a "political" one and, therefore, not extradictable. He is now serving sentence for damage to surrounding property caused by the explosion.

SCENES OF ENTHUSIASM

That Prevailed When It Was Announced in Germany That Japan Had Declared War on Russia—Officers Crossed Swords

THE GUNS AT LIEGE

Interesting and informative was the address that was given by Mr. M. H. Staples last evening, in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute. At the outbreak of the war, the speaker was completing his theological course in Dresden, Germany, where he was interned, until the powers that be were prevailed upon to waive all restrictions and permit him to cross the Holland border, by which means he was enabled to return to his home in Cavan. Those who attended the event are indebted to the Women Teachers' Guild for the privilege of hearing a first hand narrative dealing with conditions in Germany, prior to and following the declaration of war. Mr. Staples was forced to remain in Germany for about three months after the homeric struggle commenced and that he eventually made his escape, is attributable to the efforts of a number of good friends, supplemented by his own diplomatic persistency.

Two Classes.

The speaker who was introduced by Inspector A. Mowat of the Public school staff, prefaced the more important phase of his address with a description of his initial arrival in Dresden, which was accomplished by way of Ostend, Brussels and Louvain, three cities that have since fallen into the enemy's hands. That was in April last when peace and industry walked hand in hand over the now battle-scarred fields of Europe. Arriving in Dresden the speaker was amased at the interest that was manifested by the civilian population, in the militaire. Each day a body of about one hundred and fifty soldiers, headed by a military band would march down the main street to the castle, which is located in the heart of Dresden, where the ceremony of changing the guard would take place. In Germany there are two distinctive classes—the military and the civilian. The latter look up to the former with profound respect. The first thing an alien is required to do when he locates in Germany is to report to the police, from whom he receives a pink slip for identification purposes. Before the war actually commenced, the daily press inspired by the military authorities traced the "murder to the door of Servia," and intimated that Servia was backed up by Russia.

A Woman Patriot.

At times the aliens would become uneasy when they would be advised by the police to go home and be quiet and no harm would befall them. The best source of news was the cafes. The cafe system is highly developed in Europe. The managers of these institutions made a specialty of securing the latest news for the benefit of the patrons, and if this was not available they would manufacture some. The speaker recalled a visit which he had made to a cafe on the thirty-first of July when the situation was so intense that the ordinary run of patrons had given way to business and influential men, who met there to discuss the events of the day. They insisted that the orchestra play patriotic airs contrary to military regulations designed to avoid arousing the feeling of the people. This was followed by cheers for the Kaiser and a speech by a woman patriot who questioned the convential rights of a woman to make a patriotic speech upon the grounds that women were required to make sacrifices as well as the men. About three o'clock in the morning a man entered the cafe with a telegram which stated that Japan had declared war on Russia. This being in accordance with Germany's desire was received with loud acclaim. Scenes of wildest enthusiasm followed. Beer glasses rattled and officers stood up on the tables and drawed swords. It was useless to remain quiet so that the speaker felt constrained to cheer for the Kaiser with the rest of those that were present. It would have been inviting physical violence to have done otherwise. A few days prior to Great

MORE TINKERING.

The Toronto Telegram forecasts a change in the licensing system of Ontario devised by Hon. Mr. Hanna, late Provincial Secretary. The idea seems to be the abolition of local license boards, and placing the whole licensing business in the hands of a commission of five men. The Telegram, which seems to speak with authority, indicates the advantages of the new scheme, and the disadvantages of the old system. It is pointed out that the commission plan will remove political pressure, a naive confession of the influence of politics in license administration, in face of the claims of the government, that politics was no factor in dealing with licensing matters. The new plan, in addition to emphasizing the evils of centralization of authority, will also permit of the concentration of political pressure. The Telegram admits there is need of advanced legislation in dealing with the license interests. We have been told that the policy of the Ontario Government was the best possible thing in the interests of temperance, even with the two-fifths clause stumbling block, immovably fixed in the path of temperance progress. It is doubtful if Mr. Hanna will get his legislation through. Representatives have so largely profitted by the local political pull that has been, and can be, exercised through the present system of local licensing boards, to readily consent to being deprived of the advantage. If Mr. Hanna's new system is brought into effect, it will not be an advance that will meet the demands of the temperance forces. There is a growing feeling that tinkering the with license system in the interests of the liquor traffic and of party, has pretty thoroughly served its day.

THE PAPER BLOCKADE.

The threat of the German government to inaugurate a blockade of British ports is disturbing on the face of it; but on a little analysis it suggests the proverbial recipe for cooking a hare — "first catch the hare." The importance of the threat depends upon the ability of Germany to carry it into effect. We know the will is not lacking. If we pay attention only to the existence of German submarines, and forget that their employment is a game that two can play at, we may well be dismayed. But Germany is not the only country that has submarines. At the beginning of the war the submarines of Germany totalled thirty-six; and at the same time Great Britain had eighty-six. We don't know how the relative count stands now. Five or six of Germany's thirty-six submarines have been put out of action, and though in the meantime a few more may have been built, there is no doubt that Great Britain's numerical preponderance of submarines still obtains. Anyway, the British Admiralty knows more about the matter than we do; and the fact that it considers such a blockade as that declared by Germany to be effectively impossible, is reassuring. "Sailings as usual" is the general declaration of ship-owners; showing their confidence that the British navy will handle the situation adequately. One of the effects of the German declaration, that involves the safety of neutral as well as belligerent shipping, is that it threatens to get the idea of international responsibility through the rather thick skin of the United States government. The latter shows a disposition to doubt the correctness of the German allegation that Britain has issued an order as to the use of neutral flags, an allegation that has probably no foundation in fact, and a disposition to take some action, at least of protest, under the menace which its shipping, as a neutral, incurs from the proposed action of Germany.

WHY THIS INDIFFERENCE?

It is popularly assumed that people are generally on the alert in regard to any matter in which their pockets are concerned. But there is one notable exception to this—interest in municipal administration. To begin with the people of the average municipality, elect, or permit their representatives to be elected, with the utmost indifference; without any sort or semblance of investigation as to the ability, or honesty ,or fitness, in any respect of candidates for the position to which they aspire. Then the same indifference extends to the actual work of their representatives. There's not one inten of the general body of ratepayers that knows or cares a jot, apparently, about the business of the city involving the expenditure, wasteful or effective, of the thousands of dollars of the people's hard-earned, and not easily-paid taxes.

Why this is so, why the people are so apathetic, is difficult to understand. Generally speaking the cause of it is lack of public spirit—lack of sense of both civic and personal responsibility in respect to the welfare and good name of the city.

This indifference is not confined to Peterborough. It is noticed elsewhere; and, in Hamilton an effort is being made to remedy the evil. In Hamilton ward improvement societies are organized, whose object is to arouse and stimulate larger interest in municipal affairs. It is stated by the president of the organization that either he or some other member of the association, would attend every meeting of the board of control to keep in close touch with the movements of the representatives of the city, the report thus obtained to form subjects of discussion by the members. This is a very important movement. Though its practical results, its direct influence on civic administration may be slight, yet it represents a cure of the most deadly evil in municipal government, indifference of the governed or, as things too largely go, the misgoverned.

Municipal representatives, even if most closely watched, may not do wonders in effective administration; but they will certainly do better work by being watched. The most capable and conscientious domestic servants will do better under the eye of the mistress of the house, than if her watchfulness and interest were withdrawn. Civic representatives will be put upon their mettle of they know that the people for whom they are doing business take an interest in their work.

Do we ever see any of the public at the meetings of our City Council and Board of Education? Not to speak of, except a few habituals—the same few from year's end to year's end—who do not by any means represent the public. One reason may be that the meetings are held where there is no accommodation for spectators or auditors; but this is only an excuse. If the public were in earnest, they would be clamouring for access to the meetings of these bodies, and would compel the provision of accommodation for the public.

The trouble seems to be that there are only a few who take an interest in public affairs, and in the welfare and good name of the city. The Board of Trade is supposed to be an auxiliary to the City Council in protecting and advancing the city's interests. But its meetings can be classified with the proverbial scarcity of hen's teeth. The Board of Trade and the City Council, see Peterborough side-tracked in the matter of railway service, and by their indifference virtually obstruct the efforts of a few public-spirited citizens to remedy the undesirable conditions that make the railway train service of Peterborough a farce, compared with what the commercial and traffic importance of Peterborough demands.

The popular indifference to civic administration and civic welfare seems to have penetrated our business men to the bone, and permitted the civic and other authorities, to enjoy their slumber unmolested. It is an admirable thing for every man to attend to his own business; but there are matters. there are interests, that demand concerted action; that demand the exercise of the most powerful and necessary instrument in promoting community interests—cooperation. We are too much addicted as citizens to ploughing the lonely furrow, intent on our own comparatively petty, but essentially important affairs; and forgetful that there is work to do that demands the aroused and collective interest, and practical cooperation of the community. It is a wonder that Peterborough is what she is as a progressive and important city; but not anything like we should be if the public at large were interested actors instead of indifferent spectators, in the work that is being done by a few public-spirited citizens.

SHOULD NEWSPAPERS PRINT GOV'T ADVERTISING "D.H."?

If one is to judge from the amount of literature sent out by the Government for publication free of charge, a natural conclusion would be that the papers of the country were philanthropic institutions. The Government seems to labour under the impression that the press of the country should publish any and everything which they may send along, forgetting that newspaper space costs money, and readers are only interested to a very small extent in Government reports and publications.

It would be just as reasonable for the Government to ask the banks to make their returns and collect for the Government free of charge, as it is for them to ask the newspapers to publish whatever they send out free of charge. The banks and other parties who do business with the Government take good care to charge for any services rendered, and the press of the country should act in exactly the same way. There is not a single good newspaper in the country but what has to leave out every day a great deal of interesting matter, and why they should do this and fill their paper with Government Departmental "dope" passes comprehension.

Concerted action should be taken by the Canadian Press Association, and an agreement reached by which all papers would refuse to publish Government pamphlets and reports. The newspapers of the country are just as loyal and probably more anxious than are the Government officials to assist in the betterment of social and economic conditions. Under even the most favourable circumstances they give a great deal of valuable space to the activities carried on by the various departments of the Government. There are limits, however, to what a paper can do, and the proper and just thing would be for the Government to put their departmental business upon an advertising basis, and pay for it just the same as a departmental store, a bank or a trust company pays for its advertising. It can be argued by a bank or departmental store that the business they transact has to do with the welfare of the people, and they have just as much reason to make an appeal to the press as have the Government. The papers of the country are not philanthropic institutions, but exist primarily as business propositions. The sooner the Government treats them as such the better it will be for all parties concerned.—Journal of Commerce.

TRUSTS AND GUARANTEE COMPANY, LIMITED.

The report presented to the Shareholders of the Trusts and Guarantee Company, Limited, at heir annual meeting held at the Head Office of the Company on January 29th, shows that at the close of the year 1914 the volume of assets in its hands for administraion was the largest in the history of the Company.

An excellent indication of the confidence of the investing public enjoyed by the Company is shown by the substantial increase in Guaranteed Trust Funds, which now aggregate $4,026,003.76. This fund represents money placed in the hands of the Trust Company for investment on behalf of their clients.

The increased business of the Company is further shown in the total assets, now over thirteen million dollars, and is additional proof of the ever increasing demand for Trust Company stewardship in preference to private trustees as the safest and most economical medium for the administration of Estates and Trusts of every nature.

While the net profits show some slight decrease owing to existing conditions, they were ample to permit the Directors to pay the usual dividends and allow a further substantial balance to be credited to Reserve or Profit and Loss account, which now stands at $273,280.21.

The President, Mr. James J. Warren, in his report to the Shareholders stated: "With reference to the Company's mortgage investments, notwithstanding the unusual financial stringency interest payments and instalments of principal maturing have been satisfactorily met, from which results it is obvious that the Company's policy in regard to the selection of loans and security accepted is a conservative one The confidence of the public is evidenced by the increase in the volume of assets under the Company's control and appointments under wills deposited for safe keeping.

There seems to me no reason why the interruption of our national activities and productivities shall be more than temorary. Canada is essentially an agricultural nation. With the largest area ever under cultivation in our Great West—with our Eastern farmers well prepared for this year's crop—with the certainty of a strong demand for our field products at high prices, it would appear that our progress, though temporarily arrested, will soon be resumed with vigour. If the farmer prospers the manuacturer must, as the purchasing power of the armer dominates the whole situation"

A vote of thanks was passed to the officers and staff, including the Western Advisory Board. Mr. E. B. Stockdale was re-elected General Manager and Mr. C. S. Hamilton Secretary of the Company.

MR. ROWELL'S PATRIOTIC ITINERARY

Mr. N. W. Rowell, leader of His Majesty's Loyal and Liberal Opposition, has been down to the Maritime Provinces and to Montreal, and in parts of Ontario, making addresses on the war, and urging upon Canadians a greater realization of the responsibility of this country in connection with the European struggle. Some of the subjects of Mr. Rowell's speeches have been "Brittanic vs. Germanic Ideals of Empire," "Canada and the War," "Democracy vs. Militarism," and "The Churches and the War." In addition to his speeches in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Quebec, Mr. Rowell has also addressed a number of meetings in Ontario on the same theme.

His itinerary on his Eastern trip was as follows:

Friday, Jan. 29, Moncton Canadian Club.
Saturday, Jan. 30, Halifax Canadian Club.
Sunday, Jan. 31, Mt. Alliston University and Methodist Church, Sackville, N.B., on "The Churches and the War."
Monday, Feb. 1, St. John Canadian Club.

The reader may be interested in one or two comments which have been made on Mr. Rowell's speeches on the war:

The "Canadian War," for example, a non-partisan paper published in Toronto, says editorially: "It is bare justice to say that Mr. Rowell has, in his speeches, shown more realisation of what we are up against than any other political leader who has recently spoken. His speech at Hamilton, in which he appealed for more and more recruits, and called for united campaigns for them, similar to what they have had and still have, in the Old Land, displayed more statesmanship and patriotism, more of the essence of unity and of the promise of victory than anything which has been uttered in Ontario for many days. His responsibility for striving for unity is no whit greater than that of every other man, each in his own sphere.

The Hamilton Herald (Independent), said: "Mr. Rowell's speech, on Saturday, was not merely fervently patriotic, but was practical, also. He set forth the obligations of Canada to the Empire in the present war and the obligations of Canadian men of military age to volunteer their services. Such speeches as that of Mr. Rowell's are needed to arouse our young men to the needs of the situation and to the realization of their own obligations.

No Search For Murderer?

LAKE MEGANTIC, Feb. 6. — A week ago yesterday the murdered body of Ethel Vintinner was found on the C. P. R. track about three miles west of this town. Not a move apparently has been made by the authorities to investigate the murder.

The coroner reported the matter to the Attorney-General's Department last Saturday. The murdered girl's family have employed private detectives.

No Audience.

NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that an application will be made by the Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation for the Diocese of Peterborough in Ontario, Canada, to the Legislature of Ontario, at the next Session thereof, for an Act amending the Act of Incorporation of the said Corporation, passed in the Forty-Sixth Reign of Her Late Majesty Queen Victoria, Chapter 65, so as to enlarge the powers of the said Corporation, to borrow moneys on the security of Promissory Notes and Bills of [illegible] and for [illegible] purposes; to make, draw, endorse, become a party to and deliver Promissory Notes and Bills of Exchange, without the necessity of affixing the Corporate Seal thereto.

The reasons for the enlargement of the powers of the said Corporation as aforesaid, is that it requires to borrow moneys from time to time for its purposes in various sums and on such terms of repayment as to render it highly inconvenient to execute and deliver mortgage securities on the real estate of the said Corporation.

WORLD'S GREATEST KIDNEY REMEDY

"Fruit-a-tives" Have Proved Their Value In Thousands of Cases

WONDERFUL RECORD OF A WONDERFUL CURE

Only Remedy That Acts On All Three Of The Organs Responsible For The Formation Of Uric Acid In The Blood.

Many people do not realize that the Skin is one of the three great eliminators of waste matter from the body. As a matter of fact, the Skin rids the system of more Urea (or waste matter) than the Kidneys. When there is Kidney Trouble, Pain In The Back and Acrid Urine, it may not be the fault of the kidneys at all, but be due to faulty Skin Action, or Constipation of the bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" cures weak, sore, aching Kidneys, not only because it strengthens these organs but also because "Fruit-a-tives" opens the bowels, sweetens the stomach and stimulates the action of the skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Boy Scout Happenings

Scouts Participate in a Sleigh Drive—Items of Interest

A very pleasant evening was spent last Friday evening, January 28, when about forty Scouts and their friends partook of a sleigh drive to the home of Mr. Sedgwick, in Otonabee. The evening was spent in games and songs, after which tea was served by the hostess and her lady friends. The party broke up about 12 o'clock that night.

All members of the Junior Troop of Boy Scouts the requested to meet at 7 o'clock, sharp, Friday night, in the Labour Hall.

All girls taking part in the play to be put on in the near future, are asked to meet Friday night at 8 o'clock, sharp, when all are asked to be present.

MASK IS NOW OFF.

Britain Should Take Drastic Steps Against Germany Says Post.

LONDON, Feb. 6. — The Morning Post in an editorial yesterday characterizes The Hague conventions and the declaration of London as nothing but a carefully prepared conspiracy engineered by Germany against the British sea power. The paper argues that Germany now has thrown off the mask and declared for full rigor of the game. Great Britain should throw off the whole paraphernalia of declarations and conventions with which the navy is encumbered and reply to the German threats with another screw in the blockade.

The Morning Post also urges practical measures such as the arming of British merchantmen and trawlers with rifles, maxims, bombs and quick-firers—not to make them belligerents, but for employment against piratical attack.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Feb. 6. —A further expeditionary force of 10,000 men has been offered by Australia and accepted by the British Government. This is in addition to reinforcements of 4,000 monthly.

THE PLEASURES OF READING

TRAVEL AND DESCRIPTIVE

By F. M. DELA FOSSE

It may be a matter of opinion as to whether books of travel are to be classed amongst the lighter works of literature or otherwise. A great many will be inclined to affirm that they belong to a weightier class and should be placed with History, to which they undoubtedly play a concomitant part. But there are very many who would demur to this for there is nothing that appeals so much to the average reader as tales of derring-do, such as are to be found in the accounts of explorers, missionaries or soldiers of fortune, or in narratives descriptive of such scenes as lie well in the path of the ordinary tourist.

The present war has doubtless brought to the minds of thousands, visits that they have been in the habit of paying periodically to the cathedrals and art galleries of Europe, and their hearts will be filled with poignant regret that since their last visit many priceless works have perished forever. For those who have seen these glories and for those who have not, the merest monetary outlay in a book may transport them whither they please, whether it is to the countries of Europe, the snow-clad mountains of Thibet, the romantic land of the Aztecs, or to those fast Arctic and Antarctic regions to explore whose hidden mysteries so many gallant heroes have laid down their lives. The Library, however, offers this entertainment absolutely free of charge. The whole universe is represented amongst the books of travel that it contains.

There was a time when tales of travel were looked upon with misgiving owing to the fact that impostors had so often gulled the public that they were really afraid to believe anything that they read. Mungo Park, one of the earlier African travellers, was a sufferers on this account, as was Paul Chaillu, the noted French explorer. Many of the statements that they made were receive with a smile of incredulity, but later explorations testified to their truth. We are living in a time now when nobody can pose as an impostor, for facilities to travel have so vastly improved that it is comparatively easy to make a trip which fifty years ago would have been scoffed at as impossible, and it is safe to say that it is in the highest degree improvable that anybody can lay claim to having planted foot on any part of the habitable globe where someone else has not been before him.

In the days of our fathers it was easy enough for a man to be an impostor, for most people were untravelled and unread. As I write two names occur to my mind of men who are in the art of imposition were unrivalled. They were George Psalmanazar and Louis de Rougemont. The former made his appearance in London in 1703. His real name is still a mystery. All that is known is that he came to England at the invitation of the Bishop of London, to whom he had been recommended by a chaplain of a Scotch regiment stationed at Sluys, Holland. At that time he was nineteen years of age. He pretended to have been born on the island of Formosa, off the coast of China. All London was interested in him. He was young and good-looking and it was something to see an individual who said he was once a cannibal, converted into a seemingly sincere prosetyte of the Christian faith. In order to meet the demand for his life story he wrote a book entitled "An Historical and Geographical Description of Formosa, etc." It was an absolute fabrication from beginning to end. One or two specimens of his writing will suffice. "Cannibalism," he says, "is not habitual, but the inhabitants eat the bodies of prisoners of war and of malefactors legally executed. The flesh of the latter is our greatest dainty and is four times dearer than other rare and delicious food."

"The Formosans are accustomed to beat live serpents with rods until they be very angry and when they are in this furious passion all the venom that was in the body ascens to the head, which being then cut off, there remains no more poison in the body, which may be safely eaten."

The book was a success. The first edition was rapidly sold and a second one called for. But the public awakened at length to the imposture and Psalmanazar fell from favour and almost disappeared from public view. In 1716, at the age of thirty-two, he experienced a change of heart and became a real model of domestic virtue, Dr. Johnson mentions him as a man for whom he had the greatest respect and esteem.

Louis de Rougemont, the second named, sprang into prominence through a series of wonderful descriptions of travel which he contributed to the "Wide, Wide World" magazine some few years ago. He was successful for a very brief period, but has now absolutely passed from the public ken.

In the next article an attempt will be made to enlighten the reader as to the exact nature of the works contained in the Travel section of the Library.

OXO CUBES at the War

More Letters showing how OXO CUBES are valued

"FOUR MONTHS UNDER FIRE."
A diary by Corporal A. J. Spreston, Motor Cyclist Despatch Rider, with the British Expeditionary Force.

Food has been for some days almost unobtainable in the villages, and shops and cottages have been cleared out by the enemy. We beg a little hot water at Serches and make OXO, the bread I had obtained the previous day at Neuilly St. Front proving a boon.

Reprinted from the London "Daily Mail," December 24th, 1914.

Diary of a Rifleman of the Queen's Westminsters with the British Expeditionary Force.

For City men we have shaken down wonderfully, and our health generally is very good. The only change we can get from cold food is tea, OXO, etc. We cook in fires and pails, etc. The Germans, from the smoke we see rising from their trenches, seem to do things more elaborately.

Reprinted from the London "Star," December 9th, 1914.

The handiness of OXO CUBES is almost as great a recommendation as their food value. By simply adding an OXO CUBE to a cupful of hot water a delicious warming cupful of OXO can be made in a moment. OXO CUBES are prepared by intricate scientific processes: they provide in handy form the nourishing Beef-fibrine, which builds up the body and creates energy, combined with the valuable Beef-extractives which promote nutrition and ensure ready-assimilation.

The Board subsequently met and unanimously elected Mr. James J. Warren, President; Messrs. D. W. Karn, C. E. Ritchie, Vice-Presidents; E. B. Stockdale, General Manager, and C. S. Hamilton, Secretary.

A Sensitive Soul

The good wife of an estimable Frenchman was awakened by her husband's weeping and bowling in the middle of the night. He was evidently having a dream, and she woke him and asked what was the matter.

"Oh, my dear," he said, rubbing his eyes, "I dreamed that you were dead."

"Ha!" she said bitterly and turned away from him. "Great griefs are mute."

Appropriate.

"What kind of binding will you have?" asked the bookbinder of a customer who wanted new covers put on his dictionary.

"I think spellbinding would be very appropriate," was the reply.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Our Great Land.

We dared other countries in the very thing for which they are noted. Italy, old as she is, can boast of but one Rome, while the United States has fifteen. Greece can show on her map but one Athens, while we have nine teen.—New York Post.

Raising Things.

Even the amateur farmer can raise good crops with fertile ground, but it isn't a marker to what you can do with a fertile imagination.—Kansas City Journal.

LAXATIVE FOR OLD PEOPLE—"CASCARETS"

Salts, Calomel, Pills Act on Bowels Like Pepper Acts in Nostrils

Get a 10-cent box now.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets, and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

Trades and Labour Notes

There was another record meeting of delegates this week, President J. J. Hartley calling the men to order promptly at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Burnham and Orientals.

Mr. Burnham wrote asking the Council's opinion regarding his stand on the Oriental labour question. As can be expected the Council are to a man in favour of excluding the Oriental, and his cheap product develops the resources of the country developed by intelligent administration there is no need for the working men of Canada to toil long hours for a pittance just enough to save them from being called slaves. A committee was appointed to write Mr. Burnham a letter endorsing his actions.

Another Visiting Brother.

Mr. Lucas, business agent of the Moulders International Union, is a visitor to the City, and was granted the floor on Wednesday evening. Mr. Lucas is "business" all right, as exemplified in the neat speech he subsequently made. One point he presented, which is worthy of note at this particular period, is that the demand for pig iron (which is the barometer, so to speak, of the moulding business), was on the increase, this commodity obtaining $2 per ton more than it did six months ago. Times may not be as good as formerly; still they were on the mend. Mr. Lucas is in the City adjusting business for the local sand manipulators.

One for the City Fathers.

It was remarked that a man, on applying for work by the City, was not given any encouragement if he lived outside the City limits, the City having enough of its own to look after. Nevertheless Sanitary Inspector C. A. G. Spence lived outside the City. Discussion of the anomalous situation brought forth the fact that the "dictator on back yard conditions as they should be in the City" kept his own in a most deplorable condition. It was moved and seconded that the Secretary write the Township of Dowro notifying them of the insanitary condition of the Sanitary Inspector's back yard.—Carried.

The Independent Labour Party.

This question was again brought up and although eloquence was as plentiful as the snow which fell the early part of the week, yet the members would not allow themselves to digress from the question. As an intellectual delegate from the Hodcarriers' Alliance pointed out, such subjects as cold feet among probable labour candidates, the probabilities of expensive butter this week-end; the absence of socialists in so-thought Socialistic Germany, whether or no the Trades Congress of Canada was affiliated with the American Federation of Labour, and others of a like nature, crept in, and the original proposition got another dose of procrastination; in other words, was put off till "next" meeting.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Soldier Boys Hold Concert

Enjoyable Affair in the Recreation Room of the Armouries Last Night

A most enjoyable concert and at home was held under the auspices of the 57th detachment to the Third Canadian Contingent in the recreation room of the Armouries last night. The hall was appropriately and tastefully decorated with flags and bunting, while the stage was similarly adorned. In addition to the seventy-five members of the contingent a number of guests were present, and the affair was a great success.

His Honour Mayor Buller presided, and the following programme was given:

PART I.

Pianoforte Solo—"Les Reveries," Pte. H. Follis, 39th Battalion.
Song—"The Veteran's Song," Pte. Lightheart, 39th Battalion.
Song — "The Deathless Army," Sergt. B. Hartshorn, 57th Regiment.
Selection—Salvation Army Saxaphone Quartette.
Song—"You Made Me Love You," Pte. Challis, 39th Battalion.
Accordion and Banjo Duet—Mr. and Master Parkins.
Recitation—"The Kaiser's Football Match," Mr. Wm. McLaren.
Humourous Quartette — Messrs. Hartshorn Bros.
Selection—Saxaphone Quartette.

PART II.

Selection—Saxaphone Quartette.
Song—Mr. Douglas Carlisle.
Song—"Let Me Like a Soldier Fall," Mr. A. Lee.
Banjo Duet—Mr. and Mrs. Parkins.
Recitation—Mr. Geo. Lynch.
Song—"Tommy Atkins," Company Sergt.-Major H. Wilford, 39th Battalion.
Bones and Piano Duet—Ptes. Sinclair and Dawson, 39th Battalion.
Humourous Quartette — Messrs. Hartshorn, Lee, Ridyard and Naish.

In the interval dainty refreshments were served by Mr. T. H. Hooper, and a number of short speeches made. Lt.-Col. Walker, of the 57th Regiment, complimented the men of the contingent upon their exemplary behaviour and upon their appearance.

Lt.-Col. Miller also complimented the soldier boys and expressed his regret that there was no chance of his accompanying them.

Hon. Major (Canon) Davidson, chaplain of the 57th Regiment, reminded his hearers that they were not colonial troops but that they were representatives of a nation belonging to an Empire of nations.

Rev. J. M. Clarry, of St. James' Methodist Church; Mr. Meserve, secretary of the Y.M.C.A., and Major R. E. Layfield, of the Home Guard, all spoke briefly, expressing their appreciation of the invitation to be present, and their admiration of the conduct of the 57th members of the third contingent.

A vote of thanks to the artists from outside the contingent was unanimously passed, and the feelings of the soldiers being expressed by Sergt.-Major Wilford.

Convention in Lakefield

Was Well Attended Despite Adverse Weather Conditions

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 6.—The annual Sunday School Convention of Smith Township and Lakefield Village, was held in the Baptist Church on Wednesday, Feb. 3rd.

Owing to the roads being blocked by the recent snow-fall, neither the president, A. Mann, of Bridgenorth, nor the secretary, F. Bell, were able to attend. Also some of the country Sunday Schools were unable to send representatives for the same reason. However, the village turned out royally, and the convention was considered to be a success.

In the afternoon the session was opened by use of Hymn 174, following which, Rev. H. A. Ben-Oliel led in devotional exercises.

The reports of the various schools were then read. As the secretary had the reports these were not as complete as if he had been present.

Rev. H. A. Ben-Oliel reported for the Anglican Sunday School. Mr. George Payne for the Methodist S.S., Mr. J. Riddel for the Baptist S.S., Miss L. Burgess for the Presbyterian S.S., and Mr. Nicholls for the Selwyn Baptist Sunday School. These reports were all very encouraging and showed that the schools were making excellent progress in their work.

Round Table Conference.

A round table conference was held, conducted by Mr. Orwig, of Toronto. One result of the conference was that the need of better methods in teaching scholars in the teen age, was shown.

An offering was taken up.

The afternoon session was closed with Hymn 896, followed by prayer led by Mr. Nicholls, of Selwyn.

The evening session was opened by use of Hymn 517.

Rev. M. Slimon read the Bible lesson, I Samuel, 3rd Chapter. Rev. Slimon then pointed out three thoughts brought out by the book of Samuel, viz.: (1) A mother praying her son into the kingdom; (2) Eli's failure as a teacher; (3) The child itself, a promise of great things.

Rev. M. Sliman led in prayer.

Mr. Milburn gave a beautiful rendition of the solo, "He Lifted Me."

It was moved by Mr. Riddel, seconded by Miss Sherin, that the officers be re-elected for the ensuing year. Carried unanimously.

Hymn 846 was then sung.

Mr. Orwig gave a spirited and exceedingly interesting address on the subject, "The Teen Age Teacher."

Mr. A. Mac W[illegible] of the evening session, spoke a few words.

A vote of thanks and of appreciation was tendered Mr. Orwig for his efforts and addresses in connection with the convention.

An offering was taken up followed by the singing of Hymn 570.

The convention was closed with prayer by the president.

A Splendid Entertainment

Given by the Daughters of the Empire at Hastings

HASTINGS, Feb. 5.— A very large and appreciative audience assembled in the town hall to enjoy the programme which had been provided by the local Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire on Friday night, and seldom has an audience retired to their homes better satisfied that they had indeed got the worth of their money. The several characters, which were all local talent, appeared to be at their very best, and acquitted themselves with a marked degree of credit. It would be impossible to individualize, as each character was so well represented and each role so well carried through, reflecting great credit, both on the performer themselves, as well as on those who had charge of the training. The entertainment consisted of a comedy in four acts, and was entitled, "The Dust of the Earth." Following is the cast of characters:

David Moore, of Maple Farm Cottage—Chas. Plant.
Susan Moore, his wife—Pansy Runnels.
Elizabeth, their daughter—M. Halpin.
Jerry, their son—Harry Chapman.
Rev. Dr. Templeton—J. J. McPhee.
Miss Arabella—Mrs. G. Kerr.
John Ryder—Keith Waters.
Wandering Tom—W. Atchison.
Old Mose, his companion— Jack Wilson.
Nell, the dust of the earth—Lillie Carter.

The proceeds were in aid of the Patriotic Fund.

Several young people of the district drove to Westwood on Friday night to attend the Foresters' 'At Home' given in the Town Hall and report a very large attendance.

Rev. Mr. McDonald of Warkworth, spent Sunday in town and occupied the pulpit in the Presbyterian church, morning and evening. His addresses were very highly appreciated by the congregation present.

The body of the late Robt. Melville, of Seymour, was interred in the Trent Valley cemetery on Tuesday of last week. Friends of the family extend their sympathy to the bereaved ones.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church met at the home of Mrs. (Dr.) Hess on Thursday last with a very large attendance. Several important items of business in connection with the church were discussed and disposed of.

The play, "The Minister's Bride," is expected to be ready for presentation about the middle of February.

Mrs. B. F. Doxsee spent a few days during the past week in Toronto, attending the convention of the Adult Bible classes, whither she was sent as a delegate by the Hastings class.

Several of our young people went to Norwood on Wednesday evening to attend the musical treat provided by Mr. Asa Huycke's orchestra of Peterborough, and report quite a treat.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Porter visited last week with Mr. D. Fife and family.

Miss Annie Shaw, from Winnipeg, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Shaw.

Some of the Norwood curlers came down on Thursday night and played a friendly game with the locals.

Mrs. H. Wilkinson of Pembroke is with Mrs. P. M. Howard.

Mr. J. J. English is entertaining his brother, Mr. Wm. English of Rochester.

Mr. Cecil Watson of Norwood, visited friends here on Thursday.

Mr. B. Cardwell of Westwood, was in town on Friday.

Miss Luella Archer an Miss Nelson, of Campbellford, spent Tuesday in Hastings.

Mr. V. Lamey of Vancouver, is holidaying with friends here.

Miss McCauley of Young,s Point has been visiting at the home of Mr. T. Coughlan.

Mr. Thos. Bibby of Chicago, is visiting friends in and around Hastings.

Mrs. T. Huycke is visiting her sisters, the Misses Tate, Peterborough.

Mr. Alf. Parsons has purchased the building across from the post office from Mr. J. Sullivan, and is busy moving his implements, etc., into it.

Girl Fought as Man In Nineteen Battles

MOSCOW, via Petrograd and London, Feb. 5—Among the wounded who have arrived in Moscow from the front is Olga Krasilnikoff, a girl of nineteen years. After taking part in nineteen battle in Poland she was wounded in the foot.

The girl enlisted under a man's name, and this deception has just been discovered. The Cross of St. George, fourth degree, has been awarded to her.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE

Friday and Saturday, Feb. 12th and 13th—Matinee and Night

The Wonderful "America."

The engagement next week at the Grand Theatre of that astonishing pictorial reproduction of "America," the New York Hippodrome's most spectacular extravaganza, brings, as it were, that mammoth playhouse, with all the wonderful effects made possible by its wealth of technical equipment, to the very doors of the people of Peterborough.

The New York Hippodrome, the largest theatre in the world, is the pet project of Lee and J. J. Shubert, the famous amusement purveyors, At its head is a staff of highly trained men who receive enormous salaries for devising and staging sensational incidents amid gloriously beautiful scenic mountings. They specialize in combining thrill, human interest, inspection and art in one superb whole. The tremendous vogue of the Hippodrome is proof that they have done their work well.

At the head of this staff is that Grand Master of Stagecraft, Arthur Voegtlin. When it seemed that the limits of human invention were reached in the Hippodrome productions his genius conceived and executed an idea that made New York gasp and gave inspiration to his colleagues for future endeavour.

Invented by Mr. Voegtlin and staged by Mr. William J. Wilson, another of the Hippodrome wizards, "America" was at once proclaimed the greatest spectacle ever devised by mind of man. For daring of conception, for novelty of execution, for beauty of staging it was a revelation. New York gasped and [illegible] thronged the [illegible] week.

That this stupendous success would rouse a desire everywhere to see the Hippodrome masterpiece was inevitable. People who lived outside of New York resented the fact that they were denied the pleasure and privilege of seeing the scenic marvel of the age. The response of the age. It stirs the blood and pleases the eye, and withal it is instructive and it teaches its lesson while it thrills and delights.

In the production take part 1,000 people, 200 horses, 200 chickens, 50 Indians, 25 fire engines, troop of cavalry and bevys of pretty girls. The carnival of sports, a plunging automobile, fire scenes, the passage of the first ship through the Panama canal and a host of other features concluding with the famous finale, "The Court of Honour," make it indeed a rare entertainment.

"America" comes to the Grand Theatre on February 12th and 13th. There will be two performances daily during the two days, and to enable everyone to see it the prices are fixed at 10 and 15 cents and 25 cents.

ANOTHER RESTAURANT TO BE OPENED HERE

SCENES OF ENTH ASM

Britain's declaration of war, the Germans were loud in their praise of Sir Edward Grey and his efforts to preserve peace. This feeling gave way to intense bitterness when war was actually declared.

War Bulletins in Order.

On the following Sunday evening upon returning from church, the speaker found the town placarded with war bulletins announcing that a French aviator had flown over Nurnburg, dropping bombs on German territory. This lately proved to be a fake, inspired for the benefit of the people. Upon the following Tuesday night, Mr. Staples was attracted to the street by the noise of a howling mob that had been appraised of Britain's intention to wage war on Germany. Curses were uttered for Sir Edward Gray and everything English. English signs were torn down and it was only by escaping down a side street that the speaker was able to make his way home. Next morning it was learned that an attack had been made upon the British Embassy. Patrols of police were supervising the dismantling of English signs and everything that would tend to incite the anti-British feeling. The police contended that they had to do this as a precautionary measure. No war news was received until next morning when it was announced that Liege had fallen and next day one of the forts of Namur had been destroyed, until the whole town had capitulated.

A Krupp Product.

Upon reaching London, Mr. Staples was informed by a Belgian engineer with whom he had developed an intimate acquaintance, and whose home was in the vicinity of Liege, that some years ago when the Belgian Minister of War decided to fortify Liege with modern guns, the tender was awarded to the Krupp works at a cost of about three million marks. Later the authorities became suspicious and ordered the guns to be tested out. It was then discovered that the guns were defective at the breech and after a few shots were useless. They were replaced with guns of French manufacture. This he claims was the reason that the Germans marched up to Liege without seige artillery believing that the Krupp product was still in existence. It is claimed that this mistake cost the Germans in the neighbourhood of seventy thousand men. They swarmed right up to the forts and were mown down with the French guns.

The fall of Antwerp created considerable enthusiasm in Dresden. On the twelve of September it was arranged to celebrate the fall of Paris. The celebration never materialised for on that date it was learned that the German navy had suffered a crushing defeat off Heligoland and the Germans were falling back from Paris.

Alien Students Imprisoned.

Any chance that an alien might have of leaving the country prior to the outbreak of the war was elminated when hostilities commenced. Even German citizens were not allowed to move from one town to another as all the railways were commandeered by the militaire. On August the eleventh Mr. Staples, together with other aliens were instructed to present themselves at police headquarters, bringing with them necessary identification papers and a certified photograph. A receipt was given in return for these. On the receipt was printed instructions prohibiting aliens from going near the waterworks and other specified places; also demanding that they present themselves at headquarters twice a week. More freedom was allowed students in Dresden than anywhere else. In other towns they were imprisoned in three foot cells and compelled to live on prison fare. Many of the students in Dresden, including the speaker were without money and had no means of getting any until the proprietoress of the house at which Mr. Staples was staying volunteered to loan him some money until the war was over, which she claimed would be in the course of four or five weeks. She even went so far as to knit them articles of clothing prior to their removal to the detention camp. While the authorities were strict in respect to aliens they were equally as strict with their own people. If their own men did not fall into line trouble would ensue. A German friend of the speaker's was shot when he refused to join his regiment. There were few homes in Dresden that had not suffered the loss of one or more members of the family. They seemed to regard such losses as necessary sacrifies.

Industrial stagnation.

Industrially Germany was at a standstill. Those who were unable to take their places in the army were armed with picks and shovels and put to work at digging trenches along the eastern frontier until the whole eastern front presents one vast chain of fortifications to the invader. The speaker was of the opinion that the world would have to wait many a day until Germany was invaded to any extent by the allies. The German people were standing shoulder to shoulder, yet the civilian class were not anxious for war. They are a peace-loving people. Militarism is imparted to the German from the time he enters school. They are taught to respect the law of the country from early childhood. A German with whom Mr. Staples conversed justified Germany's action on the ground that France and Great Britain were the first to violate the neutrality of Belgium. Asked where he obtained his information, she replied that he had read it in the paper. He would not believe that the information was false, because he was convinced that there was a law to prevent the publication of fictitious news. The German is taught to believe that the state is the thing and that the individual counts only so long as he takes his place in the state. The whole thing is illological like Bernhardi's double standard, which was referred to by the speaker.

British Ideals.

As to who was responsible for the war, the speaker was of the opinion that this would never be settled by common consent. Britain would win because she was fighting for the ideals of democracy, not like the ideals of Germany, where even free speech is prohibited.

Mr. Staples concluded his remarks with a very lucid account of his departure from Germany and the difficulty he had in securing a passport permitting him to cross the border into Holland. He was first given a passport which he was told would only take him as far as the border, where he would be arrested. He was apprehended a couple of times before he got that far, but was released following an examination.

CAN'T FIND DANDRUFF

Every bit of dandruff disappears after one or two applications of Danderine rubbed well into the scalp with the finger tips. Get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store and save your hair. After a few applications you can't find a particle of dandruff or any falling hair, and the scalp will never itch.

FRENCH ARE WITHIN FIFTEEN MILES OF THE GERMAN SOIL

French General Reports Progress North of Beausejour and the Repulse of a German Attack at Massiges

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The gaining of more ground in the Champagne district north of Beausejour was reported by Gen. Joffre last night, and an attack of the Germans north of Massiges was defeated. This district has been the centre of distinct French progress in the past week, and if this progress is continued a little longer it will put the German lines in a predicament that may cost them thousands of lives and a disastrous defeat.

Reinforcements in the Argonne have enabled the French troops to resume the offensive and to capture some ground from the Germans near Bagatelle.

The extent of the French advance in Alsace is becoming more apparent each day. This time the Germans were forced to attack the invaders from south of Altkirch and were hurled back. The lines of battle continue to draw closer to the Rhine and are now only twelve to fifteen miles from that stream. In the Vosges exchanges of artillery fire took place yesterday.

The effectiveness of the French guns continues to receive favorable mention from the general staff. At four different points along the River Aisne German batteries were silenced and put out of action, and further effective work in disorganizing the enemy has been done.

Beyond Notre Dame de Lorette, German detachments which endeavored to move from their trenches were scattered.

On the whole the French have made notable progress in the midst of winter during the past week, and the positions in which the Germans will shortly find themselves will be one of much peril for the preservation of the German armies in Belgium.

Military critics declare that the failure of the Germans to make headway or to hold their ground at many points will have a demoralizing effect on the rank and file, but it is also conceded that the unthinking obedience of German troops leads them to be less analytic of the effectiveness of their work than other soldiers are, and that they will not lose their nerve till they are driven back to Germany. This is not expected for some months yet.

A despatch from Geneva says:

"Gen. von Borduagen, staff commander of the German operations in lower Alsace, with headquarters near Altkirch, has been forced by allied aviators, who bombarded the headquarters, to return to Muhlhausen, from which place state papers and valuables are being removed to Freiberg.

"A German aeroplane fell at Muddert, near the Swiss frontier at Basel, Thursday. The two officers in the aeroplane were seriously injured and the machine was smashed."

The Amsterdam Telegraaf has received a despatch from its correspondent at Sluis which states that stubborn bayonet fighting has been taking place for the last two days in the vicinity of Westende. The Germans assaulted the Belgian trenches in a desperate attempt to take the positions there. A stubborn hand-to-hand fight was made by the Belgians, who held their ground and still maintain their positions.

A large number of wounded Germans from this part of the battle line arrived at Bruges Thursday evening and during that night.

Heavy gun firing from British warships off Zeebrugge was audible all Thursday.

The movement of German troops to the western front continues. The soldiers who had been garrisoned for training at South Valkenswaard, near the Dutch frontier, started for the front Thursday, singing German national songs.

WOULD HELP THE ALLIES

Many American Militiamen Seek to Enlist Under British Flag

OTTAWA, Feb. 6.—Efforts are being made by a number of officers of the United States militia and National Guard, some of them of high rank, to form a regiment or brigade of their compatriots for service at the front with the allies. The Department of Militia here has for months past been in receipt of daily applications from American citizens for permission to join the Canadian expeditionary forces. The Department of Militia could, of course, take no direct action in encouraging enlistment by citizens of a neutral country, but the answer in each case has been that by taking the oath of allegiance and enlisting they could become British subjects, and as such would be accepted. As a result, it is stated that possibly 3,000 former American citizens are now members of the first or second Canadian expeditionary forces.

The movement now on foot is to form a complete regiment or brigade of the men from across the line who wish to fight for the cause of the allies and of liberty. The Department of Militia, while not yet taking any official recognition of the movement, is advised that a number of officers who have served with the United States army are now enrolling their compatriots from the Atlantic to the Pacific at various centres, and that enlistments are very numerous. The men will, of course, have to come to Canada and take the oath of allegiance here by enlisting before any official action is taken toward forming a regiment or brigade.

MR. J. CORKERY ADDRESSES THE LADIES' LITERARY

Subject Was "The Work and Life of John Henry Newman—Large Audience Enjoyed the Lecture

MISS COUGHLIN PRESIDED

The Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T.A.S. enjoyed a decided treat last evening in the lecture given by Mr. John Corkery, Jr., on "The Works and Life of John Henry Newman," one of the most interesting and notable figures of the last century. His life, long and varied as it was, forms a picturesque background for a consideration of his works, and the speaker did full justice to it, showing a close and careful study of his subject. "John Henry Newman, cardinal, philosopher, men of letters, leader of the tractarian movement and convert to the Catholic church," was born in 1801. It is interesting to note that many claim him to be of Jewish descent, a contention, however, that has never been proved. In his early school days, he had a leaning toward the bar, which was abandoned later for the church, and was for two years curate at St. Clements, Oxford, and later on, vicar of St. Mary's. In 1832, owing to a quarrel with one of the Oxford professors, he resigned his offices and went for a long voyage through the Mediterranean. It was then he composed the first series of poems, the most notable being, "The Pillar of the Cloud," better known as "Lead Kindly Light." He returned to England in 1833, and on the Sunday after his return home, the Oxford movement was begun, when Keble preached his famous sermon on "National Apostacy." Newman now began to issue his "Tracts of the Times," promulgating the theory of the "Ola Media." He made disciples on every hand, and in the year 1839 stood without a peer at the head of the movement. On the publishing of his famous agitation No. 90, however, in 1841 a furious agitation broke out at Oxford, the heads of the various houses censuring Newman and denouncing him as a traitor. His tracts then ceased, he gave up his vicarate at St. Mary's and retired into lay communion. In 1845, he was received into the Catholic church, was later ordained priest in Rome, and returned to England to found the community of St. Philip Meri. His famous "Apologia juo Vita Sua," portrays with great candor and sincerity this period of his life.

In regard to his works, the "Apologia" stands pre-eminent in the prose establishing as it did, for all time, Newman's fame as a writer of classical English prose, while "The Dream of Gerontuis" gave him the same superiority as a writer of lyric poetry This masterpiece doomed by its author to the waste basket, was rescued by a friend, who was thereby, the means of preserving to the world "one of the most unique and original" poems of the nineteenth century. It has been described as a metrical meditation on death, and it was the oratario based on this masterpiece and first performed in Westminster Cathedral, London, that made Dr. Elgar famous as a musical composer. The speaker gave several extracts from this poem, illustrating the changes in the movement as the soul progresses to its final destination. In its exalted purity and its beauty of expression, "The Dream of Gerontius" stands high among the few great poems that deal with life after death. Death came to its author at the ripe age of ninety years, and his tomb bears the epitaph, "From shadows and symbols into the truth."

Miss Nora Coughlin presided in the chair, and before the lecture Master Joseph Clancy gave a vocal selection.

NICKEL SITUATION IN ONTARIO WILL BE SUBJECT OF INQUIRY

Ontario Government Will Select An Expert Tribunal to Consider Problems of Refining Ore at Home—To Appoint Commission

TORONTO, Feb. 6. — The nickel situation is going to be investigated by a commission appointed for the purpose. This decision was last night announced by Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, who, since his accession to his new office, has been giving the matter close attention. If the report of the commission makes clear the practicability of refining nickel in Ontario, the necessary steps will be taken to see that this becomes an accomplished fact.

The statement which Hon. Mr. Ferguson issued to the press is in part as follows:

"Conditions that have arisen out of the present war have made the nickel industry of Ontario the subject of a great deal of discussion.

"The nickel lands of the Canadian Copper Co., the Mond Nickel Co., the British American Nickel corporation and other corporations and individuals were sold years ago under a former Government in fee simple, without any restrictions or limitations as to the working of the mines or the disposition of the products thereof.

"The question, however, of refining nickel in Ontario is by no means a new one. It has received the attention of successive Governments, and it was the well-known policy of the Whitney Government, as it is of the present Government, to do everything possible to secure the refining of nickel in Ontario, when satisfied that it was commercially practicable to do so.

"To this end legislation was passed in 1907, authorising the payment of a bonus of six cents per pound on nickel refined in this province, and that legislation is still in force. Moreover, the Department of Mines has constantly had this matter in view with the same object. The nickel industry in Ontario is a very large and important one, expending several millions of dollars in labor and supplies in this province, and up to the present time the Government has not been convinced that any action preventing the export of nickel would not have the effect of transferring the nickel business, or a substantial part thereof, from Ontario to New Caledonia, Norway or elsewhere.

"Up to the present there does not appear to have been any known process of refining the Sudbury copper-nickel matte that would have permitted of the operation being a commercial and economical success in Ontario.

"Metallurgical science, however, has made rapid advances in recent years, and it may be that the conditions with respect to the nickel industry have materially changed. In order to ascertain all the facts and acquire full knowledge of the situation, it has been decided to appoint a commission to investigate the whole question. If the report of the commission makes clear the practicability of refining nickel in Ontario the necessary steps will be taken to see that this is brought about.

"This commission will also consider whether the nickel and other mining industries of the province are paying their full share of provincial taxation, and the proper basis upon which such taxation should be levied. The commission will have plenary power to exhaust every possible source of information and make a careful study of every phase of the question, and make a complete report thereon to the Government.

"It is scarcely necessary to add that a subject of such magnitude and complexity can only be properly dealt with by men of exceptional ability, and those to be selected will be men of special qualifications, who will command the fullest confidence of the public."

How You May Reduce Your Weight

Overstoutness is a very unwelcome condition especially in the present day, when slender figures are so fashionable, and every reader of this paper has noticed the tendency of some people to put on an excessive amount of fat.

If you suspect you are one of those whose weight is more than it should be, don't try to starve yourself, eat all you want, but go to your druggist and get oil of orilene in capsule form and take one with each meal.

Oil of orilene increases the oxygen-carrying power of the blood and dissolves the fatty tissue, in many cases at nearly the rate of one lb. per day. Be sure to get oil of orilene in capsule form. It is sold only in original sealed packages. Any good druggist has it, or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00. Address D. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1240 Montreal, Can.

BRITAINS' ARMY IS 780,000

A Million More Men Can Be Sent to Front at a Minute's Notice

OTTAWA, Feb. 6. — Capt. Ernest Janney, formerly of Galt, commander of the Canadian detachment of the British Royal Flying Corps, arrived here yesterday from England to consult with the Militia Department on aviation matters. Capt. Janney has been doing considerable reconnaissance work for the British forces at the front. In his opinion the war is one of duration and will not get well under way till next May, when the allies will begin to move. The British forces in France and Belgium now number 780,000, and the French have 2,900,000 on the firing line, he says. The British at a moment's notice can put a million more in the field.

The following official memorandum was issued by the Government yesterday afternoon:

"The King has recently inspected the Canadian division with Lord Kitchener and was much pleased with their appearance. While they have experienced many hardships, through bad weather and heavy rain, they have borne all cheerfully."

FORMER "EMPRESS OF INDIA" NOW COMPLETELY EQUIPPED AS HOSPITAL SHIP WITH 500 BEDS FOR WOUNDED.

No passenger steamer on the Pacific was better known than the "Empress of India," of the C.P.R. Pacific fleet, but in the last six months this vessel has suffered so many changes that she would not be recognised by her old friends. When the British Admiralty first requisitioned her, she was painted a dull grey and her fairy-like character was almost lost in the transformation. Then the Maharaja Scindhis of Gwalior and other Indian princes bought her and fitted her as a hospital ship, and as such, with the new name of the "Loyalty," she left Bombay a short time ago, repainted white with long black stripes on the water line and on the deck line with large red crosses amidships.

His excellency the Governor and Lady Willingdon paid a visit of inspection to the ship shortly before her departure. Deck space which was made for holiday seekers with idle hours is now mostly covered with beds for injured soldiers, just as all the available cabins are reserving as private wards for wounded officers On the main deck of the steamer space has been provided to fill the purpose of wards. Cleared of everything unnecessary the main deck is well suited for this purpose, for it gives two wide strips of space on each side and gives accommodation for a large number of beds in most pleasant positions on the steamer. Here rows of beds have been fitted and all the requirements of a hospital are installed. The work of reconstructing the interior of the vessel was put in hand soon after her arrival and this work completed, the fitting up of the wards, etc., has been carried on under the supervision of Major J. W. Watson, Major J. R. J. Tyrrell and Major C. W. E. Kerr, of the Indian Medical Service. Between the two wards a small operating room has been constructed and has been completely equipped. Then here and there wherever space could be taken small wards have been arranged, while on the top deck a number of private wards for officers have been prepared. Altogether some 500 beds are available on the vessel.

Dress-Making Taught

Learn The Practical Tailoring System of Cutting, Fitting and Making

Miss Rosenburgh, a pupil of Miss Valera, and who has had ten years' experience, will organize classes at the Y.W.C.A. Rooms, to commence Monday, February 15th, 1915, to be held daily for two weeks until Saturday, February 27th. Hours for classes will be from 9 to 12 a.m. and 2 to 5 p.m.

There is nothing that will prove of more value to you than a practical knowledge of Dressmaking. You will be thoroughly taught in the principles and system of Cutting, Fitting and making Children's as well as Adult's Clothing.

Full particulars will be given by Miss Peacock at the Y.W.C.A. rooms when arrangements can be made.

Lou Marsh Gets $1,200

Judge Tells The Jury That They Were Very Moderate

TORONTO, Feb. 6—The jury in the Assize Court at the City Hall yesterday awarded Lou E. Marsh $1,200 damages against the Sanitary Wet Wash Laundry as compensation for the injuries he sustained when defendants motor truck collided with him as he was motor-cycling along Wilton avenue. Chief Justice Mulock said that the jury had shown great moderation in assessing the damages.

In the course of the evidence Mr. E. Cowan, K.C., counsel for the defendants, took exception to the manner in which one of the jurymen questioned the first witness for the defence. He complained to his Lordship, Chief Justice Mulock, that the juryman was biased. His Lordship, however, told the lawyer to proceed with the case, stating that the juryman was only displaying his interest in wanting to get at the facts.

Successful Banquet Held In The Y.M.C.A.

A very successful season for the Y.M.C.A. Senior Basketball League was celebrated in grand style last evening by a banquet at which there were present about seventy-five basketball enthusiasts. The occasion was also in honour of the winners in the League, the Veterans, to whom the Cressman Trophy was presented.

League a Success.

The Senior Basketball League has been a great success. Eight teams were entered and most of the best players of the city were on these teams. The personnel of the winning team, the Veterans, were Messrs. Ross Dobbin (captain), Geo. Robertson, Will Richardson, W. B. Campbell, Ray Best and Niel McCaskill. They are all old players and make a very strong team.

Another League will be formed at once, and the teams represented in the league just finished have signified their intention of entering. Any other organization wishing to enter a team would do well to communicate with the Physical Director before Wednesday next.

If there are any players interested who are not members of any team at present, they are asked to hand in their names to the Physical director at once.

The money which was to have gone towards buying medals for the winning team was voted to provide a banquet last night. The Mothers' Club of the Y.M.C.A. provided the banquet and contributed the money to the Piano Fund.

Good Programme.

After justice had been done to the supper, Mr. H. B. Cowan, chairman and toastmaster, announced the numbers of the programme and toast list as follows:

The King—Honoured by the singing of the National Anthem.

Our Volunteers—Proposed by Mr. J. H. Connal and responded to by Mr. C. M. Meserve. Five boys who played in the last Basketball League have enlisted for overseas service, and two of these were captains of teams in the League.

Mr. A. W. Cressman presented the Cressman Trophy to the Veterans. Mr. Ross Dobbin, (captain), and Mr. Geo. Robertson, replied in behalf of the team.

The captains of each of the other teams congratulated the winners.

Mr. C. E. Sisson spoke on Basketball and its progress in the city. He referred to the first games being played in the Old Collegiate Building when baskets were suspended on poles.

Toast to the Ladies—Proposed by Mr. C. E. Sisson and responded to by Mrs. Gumpricht.

During the evning Messrs. Doug. Carlysle and Bert Staples favoured the gathering with solos, and Mr. D. Eldred, with a reading.

A Series of Three Lectures

To Be Given by Prof. Chant, of Toronto University

The local branch of the Royal Astronomical Society has arranged for a series of three lectures to be given in the Normal School by Dr. Chant, of Toronto University, the first of which will be given on Friday night, February 12th.

The course of lectures is intended to be an introduction to observational astronomy. It deals with the motions of the heavenly bodies and includes three lectures, the subjects of which are:

1. The motions of the earth and the moon.
2. The motions of the planets.
3. The motions of the comets, meteors and the stars.

The paths which these various bodies trace out in the sky will be described and suggestions as to the times and manner of observing them will be given.

The lectures will be illustrated by astronomical models and lantern slides. If possible, the rotation of the earth on its axis, will be ocularly demonstrated by means of a swinging pendulum.

Especial care will also be given to explain how the Handbook issued by the Society can be used. The various portions of the book will be explained in detail.

Each lecture will be complete in itself, but the three are required to cover the whole field.

An invitation is cordially extended to the public to attend and all who are interested in astronomy should make a special effort to attend.

Programme of the Patriotic Concert

The following is the programme that will be presented at the Patriotic Concert in the Grand Opera House on Monday, and its merit, and the merit of the presenting artists, and the claims of the cause for which the concert is given, should insure a large attendance. Mr. Frank Oldfield's singing of "Why do the Nations" from the Messiah, will be exceptionally well worth hearing, both for the manner in which he will sing it as well as its appositeness to the present time:

Is Electric Cooking Expensive?
No! It is Not.
IN the first place, the present low cost of electricity enables the average family to operate their Electric Range at a cost as low, if not lower, than they are now paying for their gas or coal Range.
For example: on an actual test in the Moffat Electra oven a 5lb. Roast of Beef was cooked in 1 hr. 55 minutes at a total cost of a little over 2 cents. Surely this is far from being expensive!
Then, the shrinkage in the meat after cooking was only 2 ounces. Compare this with the shrinkage when roasted by gas or coal, when on actual tests a 5 lb. Roast loses as much as 1 pound! You can readily see what you would save in a short time by Electric Cooking. The saving in meat alone is over ten times the cost of roasting it.
The perfected Electric Range of to-day is practical, efficient and economical. We would like to tell you more about the

IS IN DESTITUTE CIRCUMSTANCES

East City Man Suffers a Severe Loss This Morning—Was Burnt Out

Edward Harran, East City, who was burnt out this morning is in destitute circumstances. He lost everything with the exception of the stove, even to a five-dollar bill that was in his trouser's pocket, and which he had earned by shovelling snow. Now that he has got his hands severely burned he will be unable to work for some time to come. He has dependent upon him a wife and two small children, one of whom is only two weeks old. Relief Officer Miller states that this is an extreme case of destitution, as Harran lost everything including clothing.

WILL ATTEND DIVINE SERVICE

Members of the 3rd. Contingent to Hold Church Parade

The members of the local units of the 8th Mounted Rifles and 39th Infantry Battalion, will attend Divine service to-morrow morning, falling in at the Armouries at 9:30 o'clock. There will be over 200 of the overseas contingent in the parade, which will be headed by the Band of the 57th Regiment. The Protestant members of the contingent will attend a special service at St. John's beginning at 10 o'clock, while the Roman Catholic members will go to St. Peter's Cathedral.

The New 1915 Ford Model Car

Have You Seen the New Shipment to the Dufiss Garage?—Made-in-Canada for Canadian People

What 1915 will bring to Canada depends entirely upon Canadians. This is a simple statement of fact so self-evident that one is inclined to overlook it.

A careful analysis of some of the first factors in our prosperity is the splendid prospects for a bumper wheat crop, with bumper prices. This is going to give a stimulus to manufacture, and to business men of all classes, who must find themselves working shoulder to shoulder with the men on the farms. Those familiar with the temper of the Canadian people know there is no cause to worry if we only put forth our every effort to keep "business as usual."

Right in line with these cheerful prospects is the hopeful outlook of the Ford Motor Car Co., who are this early in 1915 making extensive preparations for meeting the demand for their cars.

The Ford is typically Canadian—it gets there. From present indications the sales for 1915 for Ford cars is likely to break all past records—phenomenal as they have been. Salesmen are all alive to the situation, and it is predicted that, by January first, 1916, there will be approximately one million Ford cars in service throughout the world. More than 17,000 Canadian farmers alone run transportation lines of their own. They drive Fords.

Shipment of New 1915 Cars in Peterborough.

Mr. Joseph DuTiss, the live local Ford dealer, has just received a shipment of the new 1915 model Ford cars, as a starter.

This year will be a very appropriate year for the Ford car. The excellent value of $590 for a Five Passenger Ford Touring Car is especially in keeping with the present condition of the money market.

Then again, the fact of its being a made-in-Canada year is appropriate, owing to the reason that the Ford car is absolutely from start to finish, made-in-Canada. It is up to Canadians, therefore, to buy made-in-Canada goods, and to make Canadian money keep Canadian workmen busy in Canadian industries.

The new Ford model for 1915 is equipped with a cowl dash and new style wind-shield and lamps, and is electrically lighted. It is the same reliable and economical car it has heretofore proved itself, and which has won for it the name "famous Ford, the universal car."

The price is $590.00 for the Touring car and $540 for the Runabout, with a rebate of from $40.00 to $60.00 off, according to the Ford Motor Company's profit sharing proposition.

A visit to Mr. Dufiss' commodious garage on Simcoe Street will repay [illegible] the [illegible] a Ford on

The Farmers Are Optimistic

Concerning the Crop Outlook—To-day's Market Prices

The farmers are more than optimistic concerning the crop outlook for the ensuing year. Enquiry among the farmers on the local produce market, this morning elicited the information that a superfluity of snow is usually a forerunner of good crops. Many are contemplating a policy of increased crop production in accordance with the campaign inaugurated by the Department of Agriculture. There was a fair attendance on the market this morning, which is some indication that the country roads have been pretty well opened up since the blizzard of Tuesday last. Prices were about the same with the possible exception of chickens. The latter show a tendency to become dearer instead of cheaper, which may be due to a decreasing supply. This morning they sold as high as seventy-five and ninety cents each, with good quality hens selling at one dollar each.

The Prices.

Prices ranged as follows:
Potatoes, per bag, 65c to 70c.
Apples, per bag, $1.25 to $1.50.
Onions, per peck, 30c to 35c.
Carrots, per bag, 50c to 60c.
Cabbage, per head, 5c to 10c.

Dairy and Poultry.

Turkeys, each, $1.65 to $3.
Geese, each, $1.50 to $1.75.
Ducks, each, 80c to 90c.
Chickens, each, 50c to 90c.
Butter, per lb., 28c to 30c.
Eggs, per doz., fresh, 32c to 34c.

Presentation To Soldier Boy

Pte Allan Sharpe Receives a Wrist Watch From Farm and Dairy Staff

The call of the Empire for men at the front has taken from some of our Peterborough firms some of their most efficient and most appreciated employees. The Rural Publishing Company have contributed their share. This morning the staff of Farm and Dairy and The Canadian Horticulturist presented to Mr. Allan C. Sharpe, who has joined the Third Contingent, a gold wrist watch. Mr. Sharpe has been with this local publishing house for several years and he leaves for the front with the very best wishes of his one-time associates.

Mr. Sharpe is the second volunteer from the staff of this Company, the first, Mr. E. H. C. Blanchard, being probably already with the Canadians at the front.

Five Dollars For A Name

The Princess Theatre, which is being remodelled and made up to date in every particular, is going to change its name, and a prize of $5 (five dollars) will be paid to the party who sends in the name that will be selected. Further particulars will be announced in a few days. In the meantime, think of a good name for what will be the most up-to-date moving picture play house in the city.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

This morning Sanitary Inspector Spence received a sample of pork that was said to have been purchased in the city. The person who left it in, claimed that it was unfit for food. It will be forwarded to Toronto for examination.

Moving Day.

This is moving day for the band of the 57th Regiment. To-day the band changed its headquarters from the city hall to the band-room of the Armouries. This was done with the sanction of the City Council.

Committee Meetings.

Committee meetings of the City Council have been an unknown quantity this week. It is seldom that a week goes by but what some one of the six committees hold a meeting.

Is Improving.

Assistant City Engineer Hay is recovering from his recent operation to such an extent that he will be removed from the hospital to his home some time during the next week.

THE DODGE CAR

Quite a number of people viewed the Dodge car, which made its initial debut in Peterborough to-day. It was placed on exhibition in the show window at 196 Hunter Street. The car represents the accomplishment of an unusual manufacturing experience, a very valuable equipment and complete financial independence. The car will be sold locally by E. M. Williams, of the Peterborough Machine and Lubricator Company.

LINDSAY AND PETERBOROUGH WILL PLAY FOR THE GROUP HONOURS

Port Hope Suspended — First of Home and Home Games Will Be Played Here on Monday Night, With Lindsay Running Excursion

WILL BE A BATTLE

The action of the O. H. A. executive in suspending the Port Hope Club for playing "Finnegan" Hills under his younger brother's certificate, puts the Peterborough juniors back into the running and leaves them tied for the group championship. The O. H. A. has ordered Lindsay and Peterborough to play home and home games for the honours. The first game will be played on Monday night and the return in Lindsay on Wednesday, goals to count on the round.

Lindsay will be down with a special train over the G.T.R. and will bring down several hundred fans. The Lindsay fans are naturally tickled to death that their pets are to get another chance, while there was a lot of excitement in Peterborough when the news was received. Now that the intermediates are out for the season, all the hockey interest will settle on the juniors and there should be a grand crowd on hand Monday night. The Lindsay-Peterborough game last week was the best game of the season and it is safe to say that none of the fans who saw the go will be absent when the puck is faced on Monday. The Petes will practice at Brock Street rink to-night after the skating and all the players are requested to be on hand as this will be the only practice before the game on Monday night.

Judgment Deferred In Moinse Case

TORONTO, Feb. 6.—At a meeting of the O.H.A. sub-committee held yesterday at the Telegram office judgment was deferred on the case of Joe Moinse of the Peterborough Hockey Club, who was charged with being Joe Tetrault, a professional hockey player, who figured in the Maritime Provinces several years ago. Moinse was present and stated that he was 28 years of age, born in Sharon, Vt., where he lived for some years, coming to Canada in 1911 and playing hockey with the Garry juniors in the City League at Winnipeg. In 1912-13 he said he was in New York and New Haven, and in the summer of 1913 went to Cavan Township, near Peterborough, where he has worked and lived ever since with C. R. Jones. He denied having ever played professional hockey anywhere, or that he had ever assumed or gone under the name of Tetrault. He played in five championship games for Peterborough this winter, and this, he said, was the first hockey he had played since 1911. A witness present said he thought he had been introduced to Moinse under the name of Tetrault in the Queen's Hotel, Montreal, last winter. This Moinse emphatically denied. The case will be further investigated.

The charge against Robert L. Hills, of Port Hope, was reopened at the request of the Lindsay club, and the Port Hope club admitted upon investigation they had found that Wilfred Hills, an older brother, had played under the name and birth certificate of his brother, Robert L. Hills; in fact, had done so for the past three years. He was known as "Finnegan" in the town. The peculiar part of it is that Wilfred himself is still under age, and there was no apparent reason for the deception. He will not be 20 years of age until next September. The committee decided to expel Wilfred Hills and suspend Robert L. Hills and the Port Hope club. The game billed for Kingston Monday night with K. C. I. has been cancelled.

REGINA CHAPLAIN'S CURLING LESSON

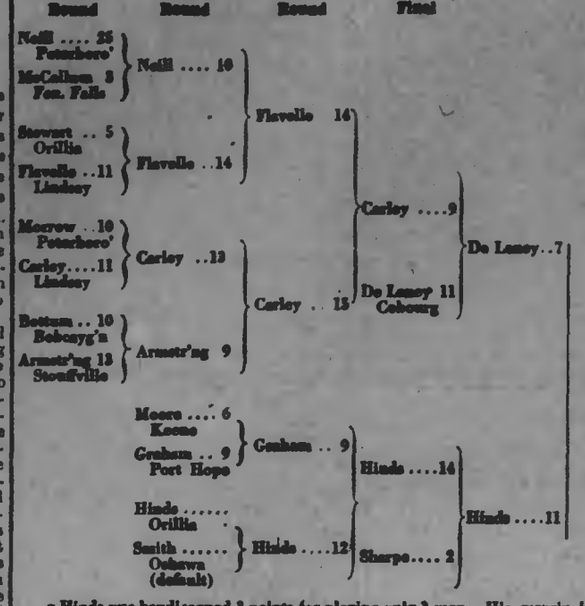
"I like curling. It is the cleanest and best of sports. No disputes, quick decisions and no gambling on the outcomes. It is the finest of games for old men and young men," said Rev. S. J. Farmer, chaplain of the Regina Curling Curling Association, from the First Baptist pulpit in that city last Sunday. The church was filled with regular members and with the 400 and more curlers gathered in Regina for the annual bonspiel.

From the game of curling Rev. Mr. Farmer drew lessons of life which apply in ever avenue of labour. The subject title was "Get the Broom."

"You can never be a successful curler unless you forget yourself. If you contemplate yourself you will never succeed, either as a curler or in anything else. Some men are so lavish in contemplating the defects and faults of others that they have no time to consider their own. Men charge other men with those faults and defects with which they themselves are most afflicted.

"Play is as neutral as breathing. We cannot have children healthy and normal without play. If men would unbend to play there would be fewer failures, fewer people in the hospitals and madhouses."

CONSOLATION SERIES OF PETERBOROUGH BONSPIEL



x Hinds was handicapped 3 points for playing only 3 men. His margin is therefore a single point.

Eddie Hinds and his three brothers, of Orillia, returned home to-day, each carrying a handsome new travelling bag, the trophies to the winners of the Consolation Series of the Peterborough bonspiel DeLaney's Cobourg rink as runners-up secured the carving sets. And it is all over but the entry in the Curling Club's archives, the 915 bonspiel which not only occupies Ben Adams' place at the head of the list of success, but will also be difficult to supplant.

The consolation final closed quietly last night at 7 o'clock, when the Hinds brothers wone from DeLaney. Both rinks were playing under handicaps. The Cobourg stones had been sent home with those of the other rinks from the Lake Shore town. DeLaney had to use strange stones loaned by Peterborough Curlers. Skip Hinds was without his vice-skip who was taken ill early in the day and was unable t ogo on at four o'clock. Following the rules, they were set back three points for playing only three men, and consequently opened the game three down. Percy Fitzgerald went out to help them sweep and had a large share of the work, for the Hinds lead was sore from previous strenuosities.

The winners are four brothers, the lead and second being in their first year of curling. Without his vice-skip, Ed. Hinds, the eldest, was unable to present the real strength of his rink against DeLaney. The latter got away to a good start, but fell off after the fifth end and the Orillia skip took advantage of every opening and really had whatever breaks in the luck that offered. DeLaney missed several shots that were much easier than the most of his work in previous games. At the same time, Hinds was steady, made a number of fine draw shots and finished four up on the score board, and one point to the good when the handicap was wiped out.

Mr. Morrow presented the club bags to the Hinds rink, and Mr. Robert Hicks paid the honours to the DeLaney rink. Mr. Hinds and Mr. DeLaney made brief speeches, thanking the local club and felicitating the Peterborough curlers upon the success of the bonspiel. A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Foote and Mr. Brownscombe upon the smooth working of the draws, both replying in appropriate speeches. Mr. Morrow was escaping without any reference to his own efforts, but Mr. Hicks singled him out for a vote of thanks which was warmly supported. He remarked that Mr. Morrow had given a great deal of attention to the bonspiel, and in a large measure was responsible for the big success attained. Mr. W. G. Ferguson, a member of the Bonspiel committee, adde a few words of congratulations to the winning rinks.

CURLING NOTES.

The Hinds rink was undoubtedly the youngest at the bonspiel.

You may remember that they reached the 3rd round in the primary when they were defeated by Farwell, also of Orillia.

DeLaney, of Cobourg, went out to the primary semi-finals, where he was defeated by Fitzgerald.

The members of J. E. A. Fitzgerald's rink met this morning for a few minutes and selected their individual pairs of stones. They were of different weights, hence the possibility of a choice.

Old Country Soccer News

Will Newcastle win at Swansea to-day? That is the question and it is a tickler to answer. They failed last Saturday to take full advantage of their own home territory and this generally leads one to believe that they will collapse in the enemy's trenches. Birmingham should win the replay with Brighton, but we have our doubts about Bolton Wanderers at Millwall. They will have to employ their best trotters to win.

First League.

Oldham Athletic, the leaders of the first division of the League, will again be in danger of losing points at Sheffield to-morrow, for the Wednesday are going strong and the result of this game may seriously affect the position of the clubs aspiring to the championship. Manchester City should beat Blackburn Rovers and keep their position. In other games we look for Bradford City, Burnley, Aston Villa, Everton, Sunderland and Bradford annexing the points.

Second Division.

In this division, Derby County, the leaders, should advance two points with Hull City as their opponents. Other winners should turn out as follows: Orsenal, Clapton O., Bristal City, Bury, Wolverhampton, Huddersfield, Lincoln City and Preston North End.

Southern League.

Reading may again suffer defeat at Crystal Palace, and in most of the other games the home team should also win. A probable exception may be Portsmouth's visit to Gillingham.

Scottish League.

To-day was left open in the Scottish League schedule because it was a Cup tie date. The S. F. A. have, however, vetoed all Cup ties for the season and the League have possibly re-arranged their programme.

British Casualties.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The following British officers are reported killed: Lieut. Viscount Northland, Coldstreams; Lieut. Shapter, Suffolk Regiment. Died of wounds: Second Lieut. Stevens, Seaforths. Wounded: Lieut. Currie, Royal Scots; Capt Douglas, Sherwood Foresters; 2nd Lieut. O'Brien, Leinsters; Lieut. Stocke, Worcestershires; Lieut. Stewart, Royal Munster Fusiliers.

DELICIOUS ACCESSORY.

How to Use Flaming Fruits With Ice Creams and Cold Puddings.

Burning fruits, or, literally flaming fruits (des fruites flambes), as an accessory to ice cream or cold puddings are a French novelty which Canadian hostesses are adopting. There is something just a little daring in the process, which appeals to many women, and by preparing the brandied fruit in a small chafing dish at table it is possible to introduce an interesting feature just at the close of the meal.

Any of the seasonable small fruits, such as red raspberries or cherries, are suited to this use, and larger fruits, peaches, plums, pears and apricots, cut in medium sized bits may be used in the same way. The fruit is covered with equal parts of brandy and kirsch, the lamp of the chafing dish lighted and the mixture stirred gently as it cooks, sugar being sprinkled in from time to time. When hot apply a match to the liquor and have the dish passed while the contents are flaming. It will be found that the hot sauce does not melt the frozen pineapple shell at the last moment. The shell of a large grapefruit holds sufficient for two portions, and the burning fruit sauce is so served at a restaurant noted for its French novelties of service.

When the burning fruit is to be served at a dinner party it is a pretty idea to have the mold of ice cream placed on a large platter with individual sponge cakes at intervals as a border. By previously removing the inside of the little cakes there will be sufficient room for a generous portion of the brandied fruit, which should be flaming when brought into the dining room. Each guest takes one of the fruit filled cakes with a portion of the cream.

The same idea may be carried out with a rich and ice cold rice pudding or with a mold of Bavarian cream When fresh fruits are not obtainable, canned or preserved fruit, drained from their juices, will answer the same purpose, and unique methods of serving will easily suggest themselves to the hostess who is searching for novelties.

Gave Orders to the King.

Shortly before the European conflict broke out the King of the Belgians, one of the most democratic European monarchs, spent a few weeks in Switzerland. At Territet the King and Queen were motoring. His Majesty was driving, and there were no attendants. The Queen went into a shop to make some purchases.

The King was standing by the car reading a newspaper when a woman tourist came out of the shop, jumped into the car, which she mistook for a public conveyance, and bade the monarch to drive her quickly to her hotel. "Certainly, madam," said the King and deposited the woman at the hotel.

Accounts vary as to whether the King accepted or did not accept any fare.

In the meanwhile the Queen had come out of the store and was surprised to find that her husband and the car were absent. However, they speedily returned, and their Majesties laughed over the incident together.

Only the "Effects."

On one of the western rivers some years ago the steamboat F. X. Thompson ran on a snag and was sunk. It settled in the water in such a way that only the initials of the name painted on the side of the boat showed above the surface. The wreck was regarded with much interest by the passengers on the next boat that went up the river. One of them, more curious than the others, hunted up the captain.

"Captain," he asked, "do you know the name of that steamboat?"

"Yes, sir," answered that officer. "That's what is left of the F. X. Thompson."

"What happened to her?"

"She seems to have sunk."

"But what do you suppose was the cause of her sinking?"

"The cause?" said the captain. "I don't know, sir. All we can see is the F. X."

Belgium and U. S. Agreed.

PARIS, Feb. 6.—The Belgian Government has issued a protest against the recent action of Germany in annulling the exequaturs of the consuls of neutral powers in Belgium. The United States and Belgium agree, says the protest, that Germany has no right to annul the exequaturs. The two countries, it adds, only recognize the right of Germany to suspend the mission of consuls when military exigencies make such a step necessary.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Feb 5.—There was an improvement in the enquiry from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat today and as cables were stronger for the regular grades at an advance, sales of several loads of No. 1 northern were made to London at 65c. The local trade in oats was active and the tone of the market is very firm. Sales of 50,000 Manitoba extra No. 1 feed were made at 63 3-4c and 50,000 No. 2 C.W. at 65½c per bushel, f.o.b. cars Fort William for shipment, and 27,000 No. 2 C.W. were sold on spot at 69 1-4c ex-store. In addition to the above sales, a number of carlots changed hands at higher prices. There was also a fair demand for American corn and sales of 10 cars of No. 3 mixed were made at 85c per bushel ex-track. There was no further change in the condition of the market for flour, prices being very firm with a fair trade passing. Millfeed stronger and $1 per ton higher. Butter fairly active and firm. Cheese quiet. Eggs easy.

Sevenfold Increase in Papers.

LONDON, Feb. 6. — Postmaster Hobhouse, replying to a question on the new scale for newspapers, etc., to Canada, said that the quantity of such packets had increased sevenfold since the establishment of the magazine post. He did not think that the new scale introduced with the concurrence of the Canadian Government would hamper in any way the spread of British sentiment.

A BIT OF INSIDE HISTORY.

It Has to Do With the War Between Russia and Japan.

In Albroy Stanhope's book of reminiscences as a special correspondent, "On the Track of the Great," he tells a curious story relating to the war between Russia and Japan and helps us to understand the value of diplomatic assurances and the sources from which contemporary history is written:

"I remember once, being at that time correspondent in Petersburg and being on very friendly terms with Marquis Nishi, the Japanese minister, and one day after I had communicated to that diplomat some news of special interest to his country, he said: 'I know I can trust you to keep silent. In eight years' time Japan will make war upon Russia.'

"My astonishment was immense. 'What,' I said, 'Japan make war on Russia!'

"'Yes,' he replied, 'inevitably. And you will see that when it takes place Russia will be found utterly unprepared.'

"Eight years later I was again in Petersburg. This time the Japanese minister was M. Kurino. 'There is going to be no war,' he assured me.

"'There is going to be war, your excellency.'

"M. Kurino gave a quick, sharp look. He had just returned from the foreign office, where he had assured Count Lamsdorff that Japan had no warlike intentions.

"'What makes you say that?'

"'Because Marquis Nishi told me eight years ago that Japan would make war on Russia in eight years' time.'

"'It was told you in confidence. Keep it as such,' he replied.

"At that moment Marquis Nishi was in Tokyo and formed part of the ministry which was organizing the details of the sudden attack upon Russia which occurred a few days later.

"And, as Nishi had said, Japan found Russia quite unprepared."

POLICE WARNED TO TAKE SPECIAL CARE

Col. Sherwood Fears Further Outrages by German Sympathizers

Colonel Percy Sherwood, Commissioner of the Dominion Police, has advised Chief of Police Thompson to use extra vigilance and follow carefully the movements of all suspicious strangers.

The following advice was sent by Commissioner Sherwood:

"In view of the recent outrage at Vanceboro, Maine, it would appear that we have genuine reason to fear similar occurrences at other points, and I would earnestly request that you would instruct all officers under your command to use extra vigilance and give special surveillance to all suspicious strangers with a view of their detention for investigation if the circumstances warrant."

Local Policeman is With Coldstream Guards at Front

Chief of Police Thompson is in receipt of a letter from Sergt. E. Downes, formerly on the local Police Force, now with the 3rd Coldstream Guards, Expeditionary Forces, on service.

Sergt. Downes was a reservist, and answered the call to arms as soon as war was declared. The letter was written on Dec. 22nd, and has been delayed, owing to having to pass through the hands of the censors.

He was well at the time of writing, and sent his greetings to his friends in Peterborough.

Fire Destroys East City Home

Clothes Caught Fire — Chinaman Turned in Alarm

Fire partially destroyed the home of Edward Harran, East City. The house, which is situated on Hunter Street, opposite the Albion Hotel, is a frame structure. When the firemen arrived this morning at six o'clock in response to an alarm sent in by a Chinaman, who resides next door, the rear portion of the dwelling was in flames. A line of hose was laid and the fire extinguished. The damage will not exceed one hundred and fifty dollars. Harran states that he was drying a pair of socks at the stove, when they caught fire, while he was away for a few minutes. The rear of the upstairs suffered the worst damage.

The Chinaman who turned in the alarm ran to the corner of Hunter and Mark Street. Investigation revealed the fact that the celestial knew as much about the manipulation of a fire alarm box as the majority of the citizens who have resided in the country all their lives.

Eight Cars Were Derailed

Eight cars were ditched last night on the Grand Trunk Peterborough-Belleville line, when there was a smash-up on a freight which left here about 7 p.m. for Belleville.

A loose wheel presumably caused the run off near Downer's Corners. The passengers from the evening train from Belleville had to be transferred to a train sent out for that purpose.

The auxiliary was sent out and had the track clear for the morning train, but the cars are not all replaced on the track yet.

The accident occurred at a crossing, and all vehicular traffic was blocked until this morning. A couple of farmers who were on their way home were forced to turn back and spend the night in Peterborough.

Its thinness is in the movement

Come in and let us show you how thin, modern and elegant arrangement of wheels forming the plan of the ordinary watch is when enclosed.

Then you will understand how this watch can "fit your pocket like a silver dollar," yet embodies the highest standards of guaranteed timekeeping.

Then you will know how different and this genuine thin model timekeeper is from watches made to appear thin by such methods as reducing the number of parts, jamming the works into the back cover, or putting a "fancy" case over-sized for the comfort of a thin edged man's vest.

Before you buy any watch, be sure to come in and see this genuine thin model watch—the Gruen Verithin.

OFFICERS ENTERTAINED

Enjoyable Affair at Home of Mr. R. B. Rogers Last Night

About forty guests spent a very enjoyable evening at the home of Mr. R. B. Rogers, East City, when he entertained in honour of the officers of the Third Contingent last night.

Among those present were His Honour Judge Huycke, Lt.-Col. T. J. Johnston, Major Medd, Major McLaughlin, Lt.-Col. Miller, Lieut. Rathbun, Lieut. Hunter, Messrs. John Crane, E. G. Patterson, R. H. Parsons, Robt. Fair, J. J. Turner, Jr., E. A. Peck, F. D. Kerr, C. H. Pennefather, W. H. Dunsford.

After supper there was a pleasing programme of speeches, singing and social amusements.

The guests appreciated the kindness of Mr. Rogers in entertaining.

The evening was brought to a close by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem.

D. D. D. Opens New Era In Cure Of Skin Disease

We want all skin sufferers who have endured for many years the torture of disease and who have sought medical aid in vain to read about this wonderful skin remedy. It has opened a new era in the cure of skin disease.

We, as old established druggists of this community, wish to recommend to you a product that has given many relief and may mean the end of your agony. The product is a mild, simple wash—not a patent medicine concocted of various worthless drugs, but a scientific compound made of well-known, antiseptic ingredients. It is made in the D. D. D. laboratories of Toronto and is called the D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema.

This is a doctor's special prescription—one that has effected many wonderful cures.

The effect of D. D. D. is to soothe instantly, as soon as applied; then it penetrates the pores, destroys and throws off all disease germs and leaves the skin clean and healthy. All druggists sell D. D. D., 25c. and $1.

We are so confident of the marvelous power of D. D. D. that we have taken advantage of the manufacturer's guarantee to offer you a full-size $1.00 bottle on trial. You are to judge the merits of the remedy in your own particular case. If it doesn't help you, your money will be refunded.

OBITUARY

SAMUEL BENNETT.
Samuel Bennett, aged 73 years, brother of Major George Bennett, with the first contingent from Peterborough encamped at Salisbury Plain, passed away this morning at his home in Bowmanville. Deceased was born in Cavan, but resided in North Monaghan the greater portion of his life. He had lived in Bowmanville three years.

He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Mrs. Edgar Butson, of Bowmanville; also two brothers, Major Bennett and J. J. Bennett, of this city, and one sister, Mrs. Pope, of Montreal. The funeral will be held in Bowmanville on Sunday.

MRS. SARAH LAMPARD.
The death occurred early this morning of Mrs. Sarah Lampard, at her home, 174 Aylmer street. Deceased who was in her 73rd year, was in good health up until a few hours of her death. She is survived by two sons and four daughters, namely, Charles, of Peterborough, and George of Manitoba. The daughters are: Mrs. John Alder of Melrose, Ont., Mrs. G. Flanigan of Masonville, Ont., Mrs. C. Barnes of London, Ont., and Miss Jessie Lampard, of Detroit. Her husband predeceased her about five years ago. The late Mrs. Lampard was born in England, and for a large number of years resided in Western Ontario, removing to Peterborough in July last.

A short service will be held at 174 Aylmer street this evening, after which the remains will be shipped to London, Ont., for interment.

MRS. ROBERT INNIS.
The death of Mrs. Robert Innis removes one of the most respected members of one of the oldest and most highly esteemed families of Peterborough; one which has been prominently and creditably associated with, and a part of, the highest moral and industrial influences that have moulded the character of Peterborough and its citizenship. Her demise followed a long period of illness. Mrs. Innis passed away at the family residence, 356 Rubidge street, on Friday night, Feb. 5th at 8.45, at the age of 76 years.

Isabella Hamilton Innis was a native of Peterborough, born in this city when it was a comparative hamlet, on Feb 1st, 1839. She was a daughter of the late James Hamilton, and sister of the late Peter Hamilton, also a sister of Mr. John Cameron, Reid street, of the Custom House staff, and at the time of her death was one of the oldest continuous residents of Peterborough. She was also one of the oldest members of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church and active in movements pertaining to the promotion of its interests. She was Vice President of the Ladies' Aid Society; and was, also, prominently connected with the Ladies' Foreign Missionary Society, a charter member as well as life member, and for many years filled the position of treasurer. The death of Mrs. Innes will revive many touching recollections among her church associates, and among a large number of our citizens who have learned to regard with affectionate esteem a life of quiet and unostentatious merit and usefulness.

Funeral services, held at the residence on Monday, Feb. 8th, at 2 p.m., will be followed by the funeral at 2.30 p.m. with interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

MR. WM. BIBBY.
The death occurred in Chicago of Mr. William Bibby on Jan. 19th. He was the seventh son of the late Thos. and Margaret Bibby, born in Seymour Township, at the old Bibby homestead ,about seventy years ago. About forty-two years ago he married Mary H. Masterson, daughter of the late Mr Patrick Masterson of Alnwick Township. He then lived in the Township of Percy for fifteen years. Afterwards, with his wife and family, he moved to Gravenhurst, Ont., where he had been employed with the Rathburn Company, until six years ago He then went to Alberta with his son, John, to take up farming. For about the past six months his health failed, and he decided to go to Chicago to visit his sons, Thomas and Hugh, and to consult a specialist. Everything was done that medical and could do, but of no aavail, and he passed away, peacefully, at his son's residence, receiving the last rites of the Church, and surrounded by his sons, Thomas and Hugh and their families. Faithful in all his duties towards his employers and of a kind disposition towards everyone, he made a host of frends. Accompanied by his sons, the remains of Mr. Bibby were brought to Gravenhurst from Chicago and placed in the Catholic Church until Saturday morning, when a High Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Casey for the repose of his soul. From thence the funeral cortege proceeded to the Catholic cemetery, where his body was interred beside that of his wife, who predeceased him about seven years ago.

The funeral was largely attended by old friends of all denominations. He leaves to mourn his loss one daughter, Mrs. Dan. Connelly of Peterborough, and three sons, Thomas R. and Hugh T. of Chicago, and Patrick John of Alberta, and a number of grand-children, two of whom are now serving as soldiers of the King, Dannie and James Connelly. Mr. Bibby is mourned by many friends.

MR. P. KANE INJURED IN A HEAVY FALL

Ladder Slipped on Third Floor and He Fell About Twenty Feet

Mr. Patrick Kane, caretaker of St. Peter's T.A.S. rooms, is confined to his bed as the result of a painful accident he sustained a few night ago. On the third floor he had raised a ladder to adjust a trap door that opened on the roof and was engaged at the top of the ladder in placing the door in position. The floor is of oak and is frequently oiled. The ladder slipped throwing Mr. Kane against a chandelier. He fell on one shoulder in which, it is reported, a small bone was broken. In addition he received a severe shaking and will probably be unable to resume his duties for some time.

GERMANS VIGOROUSLY ASSAULT RUSSIAN POSITIONS

The Use of the American Flag Was Justified

Menace to Left Wing of German Army Must Be Lifted At Any Cost

Kaiser Wilhelm Keeping a Watchful Eye on Proceedings in the East---Germans Putting Forth a Big Effort

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PETROGRAD, Feb. 8.—Under the eye of Kaiser Wilhelm, German regiments are vigorously assaulting new Russian positions near Kamien, on the left bank of the Bzura.

Gen. Mackensen has ordered that the menace to the left wing of the German army in front of Warsaw be lifted at any cost. The Germans are attempting to capture the heights occupied by the Russian troops after they forced the crossing of the Bzura near its confluence with the Vistula. They are fairing a galling fire from Russian light artillery wheeled across the river on hastily constructed bridges.

Czar Nicholas, it was unofficially stated here to-day, is watching the battle in the Bolimow region. The Russians are again on the offensive around Bolimow and are smashing against the German positions with series of infantry charges that have resulted in satisfactory gains.

The Austro-German forces have been unable to follow up their temporary successes in Beskid Passes. From positions evacuated by the Russians two days ago they attempted a further advance, but were thrown back and forced to surrender ground taken Saturday, retreating along the line of nearly a quarter of a mile.

Hurled Shells Into Turkish Land Defences

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, Feb. 8.—British destroyers hurled shells into Turkish land defences near the Dardahelles with telling effect, according to despatches from Athens to-day.

A Turkish fort opened upon the destroyers. They promptly replied firing nearly two hundred shells. Heavy explosions were heard from the direction of the fort, suggesting that the shells had exploded magazines.

BRITISH DRIVE ENEMY BACK TO THEIR SECOND LINE

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PARIS, Feb. 7.—The past two days of lessened activity in Western Europe have been marked nevertheless by two extremely significant operations. To-day the Germans opened fire with their heavy guns upon the French line north of Soissons, in the sector where the Germans, in the middle of the month, scored their only important success since they took root in Northern France. The bombardment of the French line suggests that the invaders are preparing to make another onslaught similar to their drive which bent the French line back about 1,800 yards about January 15.

Due probably to unfavourable weather conditions, there was little energy displayed by either side to-day iin the long front between the North Sea and Alsace. The report issued to-night by the French Government mentioned only unsuccessful attacks by the Germans near Nieuport.

The other operations of interest marking a period of lessened activity was the victory won by the British troops yesterday between La Bassee and Bethune. For many weeks the Germans had maintained themselves in a brickyard which dominated a road between the German base at La Bassee and the French base at Bethune. Yesterday a detachment of British troops stormed and captured the German position in the brickyards and drove the Germans to a second line.

The only other infantry movement yesterday was an attack by the Germans in the bitterly contested region of Beausejour, in the Champagne district. It was repulsed.

IS SERVING THIRTY DAY SENTENCE

Special to The Examiner:

MACHIAS, Me., Feb. 8. — Werner Horn, who says that as a German sympathizer he dynamited the international bridge at Vanceboro on Tuesday as an act of war against England, on Friday began to serve a sentence of thirty days' imprisonment at the county gaol here. This imprisonment imposed by the trial justice at Vanceboro after Horn had pleaded guilty to a technical charge of maliciously damaging property on the American side of the border, is expected to keep him in custody until the Department of State at Washington determines what disposition shall be made of Canada's request for his extradition.

Extra guards were placed in the jail and around it to-night. Sheriff Woodman said the precautions were taken because of a possibility that an attempt might be made to free the prisoner.

Horn, who asserts he is an officer in the German army reserve, entered upon his jail term without apparent concern. Asked if he had any statement to make before he was locked up for the night, he said:

"No, only that I wish to repeat that I am a German and committed the act in the interests of my country, which is at war."

It was necessary for Horn and his custodian, Deputy Sheriff George W. Ross, of Vanceboro, to travel 200 miles to get to this city, only eighty miles from the border town which they left this morning, in order to avoid going into Canadian territory. The trip was made without incident.

Aviator Sinks A Submarine

LONDON, Feb. 8—A despatch to the Daily Mail from Rotterdam says:

A Flanders correspondent in whom I place great reliance says that on Thursday night an English warplane hovered over Zaebrugge, and, defying the concentrated fire, made a sudden dive to within 300 feet of the ground. About forty German soldiers returning from the disciplinary court, where they had been sentenced to punishment, ran for cover in all directions.

The airman coolly dropped his bombs a short range in a submarine moored alongside the Mole. There was a terrific explosion, and the submarine was sunk. The aviator got safely away.

ROYAL YEAST

Death of a Well Known Lakefield Man

In the Person of W. R. Strickland —Was Widely Known as an Architect

FUNERAL TO-DAY

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 8.—Walter Reginald Strickland, a well known architect, died in Lakefield Saturday from arterial sclerosis, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Rolleston-Tate.

The late Mr. Strickland was born in Lakefield at the homstead in August, 1841. He was a son of the late Colonel Samuel Strickland, Reydon Hall, Norfolk, Eng., and a nephew of the late Agnes Strickland, the English historian. His early training as an architect was under the late Kivas Tulley, for many years architect for the Provincial Government of Ontario. He was partner in the firm of Stewart & Strickland, a firm which was prominent in Toronto some years ago. It was this firm that laid out and built the original Toronto Industrial Exhibition with its old Crystal Palace which has now been entirely removed, but at the same time was both a novel and important structure of Toronto.

Union Station Erected.

The firm of Stewart & Strickland was subsequently dissolved, and after practising alone for some years Mr. Strickland took into partnership Mr. W. L. Symons and Mr. W. Rea when the firm was known as Strickland, Symons and Rea. During the career of this firm some large and important buildings were erected in Toronto, amongst others the Union Station and the plant of the Consumers' Gas Co. After practising for some years the firm was dissolved upon the retirement of Mr. Strickland, who did not practice his profession for some years, living retired in Lakefield where he was born 74 years ago.

One Son With Colours.

He has two sons and two daughters, namely, Harry F. Strickland, Chief Electrical Inspector of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission; Reginald W. with the second contingent; Mrs. Harry E. Myrton of Winnipeg and Mrs. Rolleston-Tate of Lakefield.

He married Miss Charlotte Emelia Morgan, youngest daughter of the late Peter Morgan, of Toronto.

Mr. Strickland was well known to all the old architects and builders of Toronto, and his transactions were always characterized as fair. He was a member of the Church of England and one of the earliest supporters of old St. Anne's church on Dufferin Street, Toronto, where he worshipped for many years.

Funeral in Toronto.

The body of Mr. Strickland will be sent to Toronto for interment. The funeral, which will be private, will take place to-day from the residence of his nephew, Walter D. Strickland, of his nephew, Walter D. Strickland, Meredith Crescent, Rosedale, to St. James' cemetery.

FOOD AND FUEL SCARCE IN LODZ; 500,000 ARE IDLE

LODZ, Poland, Feb. 6—Lodz might almost be called a city without food or fuel. The coal supplies are almost exhausted, and what remains has been levied on for the use of the hospitals. The price of bread has risen to three times its normal figure. The factories in this great centre of the wool and cotton industry, with its half million inhabitants, are closed, and its great industrial population is idle, cold and hungry.

Only one hotel in town is heated, and that is occupied as headquarters by the military governor and his staff. The streets are jammed with the idle and unemployed. A "tag day" was held to raise money for the most pressing needs, and tags were seen on virtually every uniform.

There is little kerosene left in town and the stock of candles is exhausted. Residents of means still have gas or electric light, the authorities having so far succeeded in keeping the plants in operation, but the poorer people either sit in darkness or burn turpentine and other substitutes. The supply of these is very short.

Vessels To Escape Capture May Fly Flags of Other Nations

Admiralty Claims That Such Was the Principle Upheld by Germany and the United States as Well as Britain

England Does Not Expect Formal Protest From United States

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

WASHINGTON Feb. 8—International law experts felt to-day that while England, in some circumstances, might fly the Stars and Stripes without violating this nation's honour, her use of the flag at this time distinctly and directly jeopardizes American commerce and American lives.

Hence, they believed, there is ground for vigorous protest.

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 8. (Special Cable)—England does not expect a formal protest from the United States because of the Lusitania flag incident. The foreign office believes it has been shown clearly that the use of the American flag was justified. Any diplomatic exchanges resulting from hoisting the Stars and Stripes over the British liner are expected to pass between Germany and the United States, not Great Britain and the United States.

This was the position taken by both the Foreign Office and the Admiralty to-day. It was held here that not only the British and German governments, but the United States, had tacitly upheld the principle that vessels, to escape capture, are justified in flying flags of other nations.

In the Spanish-American war one official asserted, the American navy resorted to this practice on two occasions, though the American naval code specifically forbids it.

That Germany will seize upon the Lusitania incident to emphasize her warning of the danger to neutral shipping off the English coast is deemed certain here. On the other hand, the foreign office attaches said they believed the same incident would be cited by the United States and other neutral nations as a basis for even stronger protests against Germany's blockade of the English coast.

With a concrete example furnished by the Lusitania, Washington is expected to point out to Germany the danger attached to indiscriminate submarine raids upon merchant shipping.

EXILE LAW BARS ROYALISTS WHO WANT TO FIGHT

Prohibits Members of Any Former Ruling Family in France From Enlisting

PARIS, Feb. 4.—The royal exile law which prohibits members of any former ruling family in France from serving in French armies, continues to be a thorn in the patriotic pride of the Duke of Orleans and other royalists.

The duke, who recently failed in his attempt to enlist as a private in the English army, has also failed to get any reply from his appeal to Premier Viviani that parliament be asked to suspend the law in his case.

His latest plan is to bring the question before the chamber in the form of a friendly interpellation by one of the big royalist deputies.

Royalists Are Patriotic.

Leon Daudet, one of the most vigorous royalist leaders and editor of the Action Francaise, says that among many legends that have vanished is the "fiction that the royalists hoped for a disastrous war on the supposition that a monarchy might be rebuilt upon the ruins of France."

"We have been represented," he said, "as royalists first and Frenchmen afterward. We are doing all we can to prove that we are for France first and for monarchy afterward.

"Twelve hundred of our members, most of them officers, have already fallen in the battle. We have lost seven of our presidents of sections, and among the staff of the Action Francaise, Pierre Gilbert and Alfred de Bret-de-Nanteuil have paid their debt to their country.

"The heroic Mayor of Verneuil, Riguad de Verneuil, assassinated by the Germans for his firmness in defending the population, was president of the section of Verneuil.

Resisted Enemy 56 Days.

"Pierre de Jouffrey, one of those energetic royalists leaders who formed the organization called 'Camelots du Roi' from Grenoble, and Lieut. Bernoud, another 'Camelot du Roi,' were the two heroic survivors of the French detachment that resisted fifty-eixht days behind the enemy's lines.

"Neither the Action Francaise nor the 'Camelots du Roi,' two organizations which are closely allied in the royalist propaganda, talk about their numbers, but there are thirty groups of the former and 300 groups of the latter, some of them, particularly in Paris and in the Vendee, are very numerous, and that is said to be a conservative estimate that the new energy given to the royalist movement by these organizations has resulted in the enrollment of 100,000 followers.

"At the outset of the hostilities the 'Camelots du Roi' sent a representative to the government to assure them that they need look for no obstacle from the organization during the war, at the same time the Action Francaise announced that, until peace be re-established, they would support the government. Thus far the royalists have faithfully followed this policy and have considerably strengthened the hands of the government in the prosecution of the war."

YESTERDAY'S DESPATCHES IN BRIEF

PETROGRAD, Feb. 7.—The War Office statement says the Russians have gained important advances on the Bzura. In East Prussia the battle has become more severe with terrific losses.

PETROGRAD Feb. 7.—Fighting in the Caucasus is very severe. Many attacks of the Austrians have been repulsed. The Russians took two thousand prisoners in the Carpathians.

LONDON, Feb. 7. — The British steamer Lusitania arrived in Liverpool yesterday. On receipt of a message from the White Star liner Baltic of the proximity of submarines she flew the American flag for protection.

PARIS, Feb. 7.—A heavy fire in Belguim and the Aisne Valley. French made progress in the Champagne district.

LILLE, France, Feb. 7.— German army surgeons conferred here relative to serious advances of Tetanus amongst German troops.

PARIS, 3 p.m. (Sunday Official Statement).—In Belgium the day has been very quiet. The British have taken a brickyard from the enemy east of Cuinchy. From Arras to Rheims we had the advantage of an artillery fight. Artillary combats were handicapped by a heavy fog between Argonne and Vosges.

BERLIN, Official, Feb. 7.—The statement admits the allies have penetrated the trenches south of LaBassee. There is nothing else of importance.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The German Ambassador, Von Bolnstorff, tonight hastened to assure the United States that Germany would spare American shipping in British waters.

NISH, Siberia, Feb. 6—Though terribly decreased by earlier fighting the Servian Army to-day inflicted another smash on the Austrian invaders

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 6—The London Times declares the United States is taking Germany's threats too seriously. There can be no blockade.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 6. — The Germans again sustained terrific losses in night attacks on Warsaw defences.

Mounting of the New Telescope

SPECIAL CAR NEEDED

It is confidently expected that the mounting for the great new 72-inch reflecting telescope of the Dominion Government Observatory at Ottawa will be completed by October. Excellent progress is also being made on the great disc for the main mirror. The glass casting measured 72 5-8 inches in diameter 13 5-8 inches in thickness and weighed 4,800 pounds. The disc started from Antwerp about a week before the war broke out, and in due time it landed in New York. The Pennsylvania railroad was about a week finding a suitable car to transport it to Pittsburgh, as the package was an enormous one, the crate adding 1,200 pounds to the weight. Then it was some time before an iron waggon could be got to take it to the workshop, and on arriving there the six-foot doorway had to be removed to admit the disc, stripped of its packing case. But at last it was safely placed on the grinding table which had been prepared for it.

Then the first operation was to grind off the edge, and in doing so about half a cubic foot was removed. The grinding was done with a 30-inch steel circular saw, rotated so as to touch on the side of the saw near the edge, coarse emery mixed with crushed steel being supplied to it. The steel cuts about three times as fast as the emery. After about three weeks labour the edge was successfully trued up and preparations were made for grinding out the central hole which was just six inches in diameter on the upper side, tapering irregularly.

Boring the Hole.

Flexible cutters were used at first, so as not to endanger the disc by undue pressure. The cutter was shaped somewhat like a letter S, and was rotated about an axis through its middle, and the wings being so curved they readily yielded to any extra pressure coming upon them. In this way the hole was bored out to nine inches in diameter, when cast-iron cylindrical cutters were put in place of the sheet steel cutters, and in a short time the hole was enlarged to over ten inches. Its edge was then smoothed up, and made exactly square with the surface, and after that the top edge of the hole was bevelled off. This work of enlarging and smoothing off the central hole was the most dangerous part of the operations and, happily, it was done with complete success.

The upper and lower surfaces will next be made plane and then the surface which seems the best, will be ground into its parabolic form. The more the disc is examined the better it seems to be, and hopes are high that it will prove a great success.

"THE BATTLE CRY"

Charles Neville Buck

"Ef a woman's leadin' him round," retorted a more loyal defender, "no one else don't. I reckon hit hain't hardly becomin' fer none of ye folks ter criticise Anse Havey. As fer me I hangs my old rifle-gun up on the peg this same day, an' ef anybody's got any remarks ter make about hit I'm ready ter listen."

In a few days the boy came back. He never alluded to his outbreak or breathed a word of apology, but he put the gun back in its place and once more attacked his books.

Sometimes a lad or older man, going out, would pause irresolute at the rack and eye his weapon covetously, but in the end he hearkened to counsel and left it there.

"What are you doing, Bruce?" inquired Juanita one day as she found a tow-headed lad of twenty standing before her shrine with a look of longing in his face.

"I was jest feelin' kinder lonesome withouten my rifle-gun," was the reply. "Hit used ter be my dad's, an' hit's done some good work in hit's day."

Juanita nodded, and it was her smile rather than her words which proved disarming.

"Yes, I know," she sympathized, "but those days are over. These are days of peace."

The girl did not realize how much she was leaning on the strength of Anse Havey, how she depended on him for counsel and encouragement, which he gave not in behalf of the school, but because he was the school teacher's slave. She saw the little hospital rise on the hill and thought of what it would do, and she believed that Anse Havey must be, in his heart, converted, even though his mountain obstinacy withheld the admission.

Then when the roads and hillsides were joyous with spring came a squad of lads bearing transit and chain who began running a tentative line through the land that Jim Fletcher had bought. Anse Havey watched them grimly with arms folded, but said no word until they came to the boundary of his own place. There he met them at the border. "Boys," he said, "ye mustn't cross that fence. This is my land an' I forbids ye."

Their foreman argued.

"We only want to take the measurements necessary to complete our line, Mr. Havey, we won't work any injury."

Anse shook his head.

"Come in, boys, an' eat with me an' make yourselves at home," he told them, "but leave your tools outside."

Men from the brick house patroled the fence line with rifles and the young men were forced to turn back.

But later they drew near the house of old Bob McGreegor, and he, stealing down to a place in the thicket of rhododendron, saw them perilously near the trickling stream which even then bore on its surface little kernels of yellow corn. Deeply and violently Old Bob swore as he drank, from his little blue keg, and when next day he saw them again he asked counsel of no man. He went down and crept close through the laurel, and as his old rifle spoke a schoolboy from the Bluegrass fell dead in the creek bed.

CHAPTER XXXII.

After that death, the first murder of an innocent outsider the war which Anse Havey had so long foreseen broke furiously and brought the orders of upland and lowland to the grip of bitter animosity.

Old McGreegor's victim had been young Roy Calvin, the son of Judge Calvin of Lexington, and the name of Calvin in central Kentucky was one associated with the State's best traditions.

It had run, in a strong bright thread through the pattern of Kentucky's achievements, and when news of the wanton assassination came home, the State awoke to a shock of horror. The infamy of the hills was screamed in echo to the mourning, and the name of Bad Anse Havey was once more printed in large type.

Editorial and news columns alluded to him as the patron saint of the lawless order, which made such outrages possible. Though Anse held his peace, Juanita saw lines of stoical sternness settling around the corners of his lips, and knew that he was silently burning with the injustice of reports which he pretended not to hear.

The men whose capital sought to wrest profit from the hills and whose employee had been slain, were quick to utilize this hue and cry of calumny.

They hurled themselves into their fight, for gaining possession of coveted land, and were not particular as to methods.

Jim Fletcher came and went constantly between the lowlands and the highlands. He was all things to all men, and in the hills he cursed the lowlander, but in the lowlands cursed the hills. Milt and Jeb and Anse rode constantly from cabin to cabin in their efforts to circumvent the adroit schemes of the mountain Judas who had sold his soul to the foreign syndicate.

Fletcher sought a foothold for capital to place fields acquired at the price of undeveloped land and then to take the profit of development. Anse sought to hold title until the sales could be on a fairer basis, and so the issue was made up.

Capitalists like Malcolm, who sat in directors' rooms launching a legitimate enterprise had no actual knowledge of the instrumentalities being employed on the real battlefield. Lawyers tried condemnation suits with indifferent success, and then reached out their hands for a new weapon.

Back in the old days when Kentucky was not a State, but a County, land-patents had been granted by Virginia to men who had never claimed their property. For two hundred years other men who settled as pioneers had held undisturbed possession, they and their children's children. Now into the Courts piled multitudinous suits of eviction in the names of plaintiffs whose eyes had never seen the broken skyline of the Cumberlands. The purpose was deceit, since it sought to drag through long and costly litigation pauper landholders and to impose upon their poverty that galling burden as should drive them to ultimate terms of surrender.

Men and women who owned, or thought they owned, a log shack and a tilting cornfield found themselves facing a new and bewildering crisis. Their untaught minds brooded and they talked violently of holding by title of rifle what their fathers had wrested from Nature; what they had treaded with sweat and endless toil.

But Anse Havey and Milt McBriar knew that the day was at hand when the rifle would no longer serve. They employed lawyers fitted to meet those other lawyers and gave them battle in the Courts and these lawyers were paid by Anse Havey and Milt McBriar.

The two stood staunchly together less people and the encroaching tentacles of the new octopus, while Juanita, looking on at the forming as a buffer between their almost help-of the battle-lines, was torn with anxiety.

Once she said, "Anse, Roger Malcolm speaks of coming here."

"Ye'd better warn him not to come," said Anse grimly. Then he added: "Oh, he wouldn't have no call to fear nothin' from me. There's a reason why I ain't licensed to harm him. But there's a spirit in the hills I won't answer for. If he comes he mightn't get back."

He paused, then added: "But maybe ye wants to see him?"

She shook her head, a little mournfully, but with decision.

BACKACHE
WAS SO BAD
COULD NOT SWEEP THE FLOOR.

Germans and French Similes.

There is one marked difference, wholly psychological, between the German and the French wounded, who are constantly arriving at Bordeaux, writes a correspondent.

Physically there is little difference between the German wounded soldier being carried by and his wounded French antagonist in a nearby cot—the bullet or shrapnel has torn the German's flesh no more cruelly than it has torn the Frenchman.

But almost all the German prisoners are suffering extremely from nervous exhaustion. Therefore the popular opinion of the outlander of the characteristics of the two is wholly reversed.

The French wounded, instead of showing signs of nervous excitement, are comparatively calm, whereas the wounded among the Germans, despite their reputed stoicism, spend the greater part of their waking hours sobbing piteously.

War Distances.

War, besides being a great leveller, is also a great educator. Places we had never even heard of previously are now becoming as "familiar in our mouths as household words." The distances so often mentioned in despatches are apt to be somewhat confusing unless understood. It ought, however, to be quite easy to remember that a metre measures about 1 1-12 yards, or more exactly 39.37 inches. A decametre is 10 metres, a hectometre is 100 metres, and a kilometre is 1,000 metres, or a little more than three-fifths of a mile. Our Russian allies express the length of their marches or the distance from place to place in versts. A verst is rather more than a kilometre, the exact distance being 0.66288 of a mile, or between three-fifths and four-fifths of that distance.

Painful Economy.

Economy has its pains as well as its pleasures, if the experience of an old darky count for anything. One spring, for some reason, old Mose was going round town with the face of dissatisfaction. When questioned he poured forth a voluble tale of woe in these terms: "Marse Tom, he come to me last fall an' he say, 'Mose, dey's gwine to be a hahd winter, so yo' be keerful an' save yo' wages.' An' Ah believes Marse Tom, yassuh. Ah believe him, an' Ah save an' save, an' when de winter come it ain't got no hahdship, an' dere Ah was wid all dat money on mah hands!"

ECZEMA AND SORE EYES.

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mr. H. W. Lear, Port Pinkford, Nfld. "The child was in a bad state and suffered greatly. The doctor failed to help her, and on recommendation of a friend, I used Dr. Chase's Ointment, which made a complete cure. With a grateful heart I write you this letter."

Saw Him.

Ebenezer Holcombe had a 1,200 pound hog which he had exhibited in a tent at the fairs for three years, charging 10 cents admission.

One day a traveling man who was passing through the town in which Mr. Holcombe lived called at the house and asked if he might see the hog of which he had heard so much. Ebenezer proudly led the way to the hog house, but at the door he turned. "Cost you 10 cents," he drawled.

The visitor took a dime from his pocket, passed it to the farmer and turned back.

"Why, you ain't seen the prize hog!" called Ebenezer.

"Yes, I have," retorted the traveling man. "I've seen him," and continued his walk back to the country store.

Reply to German Savants.

British men of science and professors in all branches of learning at the universities have combined to frame a reply to the German professors who recently denounced Great Britain as the instigator of war.

Among the more striking passages are the following:

"One point we freely admit. Germany very likely would have preferred not to fight Great Britain at this moment. She would have preferred to weaken and humiliate Russia, to make Servia a dependent of Austria, to render France innocuous, and Belgium subservient, and then, having established an overwhelming advantage, to settle accounts with Great Britain. Her grievance against us is that we did not allow her to do this."

No Danger.

The Lady—I'd buy you a nice pearl handled knife for your birthday, but I'm superstitious. I'm afraid it would cut our friendship.

The Man—Cheer up! No knife a woman buys could ever cut anything.

"TIZ" FOR SORE, TIRED FEET—AH!

"TIZ" is grand for aching, swollen, sweaty, callouses feet or corns.

Ah! what relief. No more tired feet; no more burning feet; no more swollen, bad smelling, sweaty feet. No more soreness in corns, callouses, bunions.

No matter what ails your feet or what under the sun you've tried without getting relief, just use "TIZ." "TIZ" is the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet. "TIZ" cures your foot trouble so you'll never limp or draw up your face in pain. Your shoes won't seem tight and your feet will never, never hurt or get sore and swollen. Think of it, no more foot misery, no more agony from corns, callouses or bunions.

Get a 25 cent box at any drug store or department store and get instant relief. Wear smaller shoes. Just once try "TIZ." Get a whole year's foot comfort for only 25 cents. Think of it.

A Great Blessing to be Freed of Indigestion

For Years He Suffered After Almost Every Meal—Attributes Complete Cure to Use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

MR. BARRETT.

The experience of many people who suffer from indigestion is like that of the writer of this letter. Stomach medicines may bring some relief, but chronic indigestion is almost invariably the result of derangements of the liver, kidneys and bowels, and cannot be actually cured until these organs are set right.

With the liver sluggish there is constipation, and the food ferments in the bowels instead of being digested. This is the source of pain and suffering, and the cause of such dreaded diseases as appendicitis, peritonitis and kidney disease. It is much better to be on the safe side and prevent such ailments by the timely use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. J. D. S. Barrett, Nelson, B.C., and formerly of Twillingate, Nfld., writes:—"For several years I was a great sufferer from indigestion. The least bit of food caused me considerable trouble, and often I could scarcely eat a meal a day. The many remedies I tried proved futile until I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after using about eight boxes I was completely cured.

"Since that time I have not been troubled with indigestion, which I consider a great blessing. I feel grateful for this cure, and shall gladly answer any inquiries from persons suffering as I did."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, 25c a box, 5 for $1.00, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

THE ONLY CURE FOR CONSTIPATION

Is "Fruit-a-tives"—That Wonderful Remedy Made From Fruit Juices.

AVON, ONT., MAY 14th, 1913.

"I have used "Fruit-a-tives" for Indigestion and Constipation with most excellent results, and they continue to be my only medicine. When I first started about six years ago to use them, I took four at a dose but gradually reduced the dose to one tablet at night. Before taking "Fruit-a-tives", I took salts and other pills but the treatment was too harsh. I thought I might as well suffer from the illness as from these treatments. Finally, I saw "Fruit-a-tives" advertised with a letter in which some one recommended them very highly, so I tried them, and I have no hesitation in recommending them." ANNIE E. CORBETT.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Quite a Spell.

"Spell your name!" said the court clerk sharply.

"The witness began: "O, double T, I, double U, E, double L; double"—

"Wait!" ordered the clerk; "begin again!"

The witness repeated: "O, double T, I, double U, E, double L; double U, double O"—

"Your honor!" roared the clerk, "I beg that this man be committed for contempt of court!"

"What is your name?" asked the judge.

"My name, your Honor, is Ottiwell Wood, and I spell it O, double T, I, double U, E, double L, double U, double O, D."

Showing Her Up.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

An Intended Surprise

It Resulted in an Outcome Not Intended

By RUTH GRAHAM

There is a great difference between Europe and America in the arrangement of marriages. There the wherewithal is put up a nest in which to hide and rear children is the principal part of making a match; here our girls are inclined to pay more attention to whether or not they love and are loved.

Genevieve Thorpe met no man whom she cared to marry until she met Howard Tisdale. Though Howard was twenty-five years old, he had not made any advancement in money making. Indeed, he was on a salary and a small salary, at that.

It did not appear that Genevieve had anything. She and her mother, a widow, lived very plainly, the daughter occupying a salaried position. Nevertheless when Howard showed by his manner that he was pleased with her she encouraged him. His attentions grew more pointed, but he did not propose because he saw no hope of being able to be married. He was wise enough to understand that the care of a family without an adequate income would be misery for all concerned. One day he said to Genevieve:

"You and I must part company. Heaven knows that it will be a hardship to me, but marriage is the inevitable result of an intimacy such as ours. I would gladly ask you to be my wife, but I have a salary of only $800 a year. You cannot be married and continue in your position—at least, I would not have you do so. It follows that our ways must part."

"Unless you love me well enough to take every risk, I admit you are right," was Genevieve's reply.

"Do you mean that you love me well enough to take all risks with me—to live on the miserable pittance which I am earning and which I have no assurance that I shall continue to earn, to pinch and struggle and see those dependent upon you and me suffering for want of comforts, even necessaries, that we cannot give them?"

"I mean to say that I wish to marry and be married for love or not at all."

"'When poverty comes in at the door love flies out of the window.'"

"True love begets energy to provide for its enjoyment and will endure anything."

There was a silence between them, which was broken by Howard:

"Very well, Genevieve, will you marry me?"

"I will."

Then followed a period of planning. Howard, who insisted on beginning married life with no other person under the same rooftree, was for renting two or three rooms in a cheap locality. Genevieve argued that they had better take a little house of their own, even if they rented a room or two to a lodger. Howard objected to this on the ground that they might not secure the lodger, and if they did a third person in such close contact with them would be apt to make trouble. He was in favor of keeping aloof from every one.

These debates lasted some time and were finally ended by Genevieve, who handed her lover the key to her desk in a sewing room on the second floor and told him to go upstairs, unlock the desk and look in an inside drawer on the right. Howard did as he had been bidden.

Genevieve had planned a very pleasant surprise. Some years before an aunt of hers, for whom she had been named, dying, had bequeathed to her savings amounting to about $3,000. This property had come to her in a deed for a small house and some passbooks in savings banks. These with a number of other papers, consisting of vouchers, etc., Genevieve had placed in the drawer of her desk and had never used principal or interest. She was at the time she received the legacy earning her own and her mother's living and intended to hold on to her nest egg in case she should marry.

Genevieve waited, expecting Howard to return, having found the evidence of her little fortune, with a radiant countenance and take her in his arms. She had long looked forward to this moment, expecting that it would be the happiest in her life. A time sufficient for Howard to discover the evidences of her fortune elapsed, and he did not return. She resolved to wait a little longer. Still she heard nothing from him. At last, wondering what could be delaying him, she ran upstairs to the room where she kept her fortune.

The desk was open. The contents of the drawer were spread out on it, but there was no one in the room.

"Howard!" she called, thinking that her lover was hiding from her.

There was no reply.

"Howard!" she called again with a tinge of anxiety in her voice.

The silence was unbroken. She opened a closet door, the only hiding place in the room, then went out into the hall and searched everywhere. There was a back staircase, and, descending it, she looked about on the main floor. A door opened from this rear staircase to the back yard, and it stood ajar. She remembered to have closed it not long before, and there was no one except herself in the house to open it.

Genevieve was terror stricken. Howard, instead of having returned to her, after the glad surprise she had intended for him, had left her. Something momentous had happened. Was he gone for a short time or forever? The uncertainty was agonizing. Returning to the desk, she looked among the papers spread out upon it for some written word from him. There was nothing but the documents pertaining to her little fortune, and none of those was missing.

The day passed and Howard did not appear. The next morning brought the postman, but no letter from her lover. A week, a month went by and the mystery was unsolved.

Meanwhile Genevieve's mother had made a hypothetical explanation in the hope of drawing her daughter's mind from her trouble by ending the suspense. She said that Howard had entered upon the match loving another sweetheart and had disappeared without an explanation because he had not the courage to make one. Genevieve was not in the least moved by this theory. She believed that there was some mystery connected with her lover's disappearance which when explained would show that he had not acted unworthily.

A year passed, during which Genevieve hoped either for Howard's return or at least a solution of the mystery of his desertion of her. The postman never left a letter at the house that she did not receive it with a rapidly beating heart. The doorbell never rang but that she hoped Howard was about to enter. There was never a man's footstep on the floor above or below her but what she said to herself, "Is it he?"

Genevieve was not satisfied that Howard had not left some word or token for her that she had failed either to find or to recognize. Again and again she went through the desk, pried into every crack, hoping to find a slip of paper that had with the predisposition of inanimate things to hide fallen under cover. Nothing was discovered by these searches. But Genevieve in her hunt did something she had never done before—she examined those papers which had come to her after her aunt's death that did not pertain to the legacy.

By this she made a startling discovery—her aunt had been secretly married. There was an envelope containing several letters beginning "Dearest Genevieve" and ending "Your loving husband." Then suddenly there rushed in upon the girl's brain an explanation of the mystery. Howard had happened upon these letters.

What was more natural than that he should suppose he had discovered a secret implicating the girl he loved? She had sent him to look upon the evidence of her little fortune without being aware that this evidence of a marriage of one whose name she bore was among the papers. What was to be expected at such a discovery? Either that he would return to upbraid her or flee from her. The latter course was what she believed, from her knowledge of him, he would be the more likely to take.

And now what should she do? She did not believe that this secret marriage had ever been imparted to her mother, and she determined not to impart it now. But Howard! How could she find him to disabuse him of the mistake he had made? Alas, he might have gone to the other side of the globe; he might have succeeded in finding [illegible] and have another love—a wife.

It did not require a long while for Genevieve to make up her mind that she was powerless to reach him.

Another year and still another another passed, neither of which was any more comfortable than the first. Indeed, when the desertion occurred there were occasional flashes of anger, which helped Genevieve temporarily to change from grief to anger; now there was the tantalizing question that she posed in a fable poetum, yet was powerless to explain.

One morning she received an envelope addressed in Howard's handwriting. She tore it open and withdrew a check payable to her order for $500. But there was nothing more.

Hope sprang within her. Howard, despite his fancied discovery, still loved her. Why he had sent this money she did not know. She made every effort to discover his location from the bank on which the check was drawn, but failed. Then she asked the bank to return it to the maker. This it agreed to do, and another six months passed with no further news from the missing man.

One day a telegram came from Howard: "I am ill. Come to me."

He had broken down at last. Following the address at the head of the telegram she took a train and the next day reached the city wherein she was to find the man who had left her several years before. She found him in a hospital and on reaching his bedside threw herself down beside him and folded him in her arms.

"Have I been wrong?" he asked.

"Did you read the letters to Genevieve from her husband?"

"I did."

"Genevieve was my aunt."

"Oh, heavens!"

He trembled, and Genevieve, realizing that as an invalid he should be comforted, begged him to forget his blunder, that they had many years before them.

He had wealth enough to take measures to obliterate so far as it could be obliterated the terrible mistake he had made. On his recovery they went on a long wedding trip, with a view to mingling in new scenes by which to drive their mishap from their minds. In time they returned and lived in the house the wife had inherited from her aunt and which Genevieve had intended as a surprise for her lover when he had proposed to begin life in a couple of rooms.

I WAS RUN DOWN, NERVOUS AND WEAK

Cause? Chronic Cough—A Friend Advised Me to Take Vinol—I Did—It Made Me Well and Strong.

Jennings, La.—"I was run-down, nervous, weak, dizzy, and tired all the time as a result of a chronic cough which kept me awake nights for months. I have four in my family, and I was not able to do my daily housework. All the different medicines I had taken failed to do me any good until a friend told me about Vinol. I took it and within a month I felt so well and strong I could do my own housework. I would advise all weak women to take Vinol."—Mrs. A. PREYOU, Jennings, La.

Why will women in this vicinity continue to drag along day in and day out, all run-down, pale, thin, nervous, weak and all tired out when we are continually publishing letters from hundreds of reliable women which prove how Vinol overcomes such conditions and creates strength.

We ask every weak, nervous, run-down man or woman to come to our store and get a bottle of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, without oil, and if it fails to help you, we will return your money.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The Montreal Herald-Telegraph has just received a postcard posted in the city seven years ago.

Daniel A. Lamont, aged 56, a resident of Sparta for nearly forty years, died at the home of his son-in-law at Delaware, Ont., yesterday.

Although hundreds of men have been shovelling snow on the Pere Marquette Railway and the London traction line for the past two days, traffic is not yet opened.

Sugar took a fifteen cent. jump up yesterday. The price per hundred pounds now for granulated is $6.55. The advance follows advances in both raw and refined sugar in New York.

All officers and members of the crew of the Japanese cruiser Asama, which went ashore off Southern California, have been rescued, according to an official announcement in Tokio yesterday.

Thomas Collins, 100 years and three months old, died in Clandeboye, Ont., Thursday night. He learned to play the piano when 99 years of age, and turned on the Hydro at Lucan three weeks ago.

A blizzard which struck northern Nebraska Thursday night was so bad late yesterday that the entire Northwestern Railroad system west of the Missouri river was tied up, and no effort was being made to operate trains.

Capt. Michael, head of the Commission of Roumanian army officers, which was conducting a series of experiments at Rome with bombs intended for the Roumanian army, was killed by the explosion of one of them yesterday.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY.

My boy Frank seemed weak-chested and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs. D. Stevens, Ninga, Man. "The many medicines used did not seem to benefit him, until we tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and found it to be exactly what was wanted to cure him. No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for bronchitis and bronchitis.

TIRED THE MUSICIANS.

How Strauss Once Snubbed a Russian Court Dignitary.

When Johann Strauss took his orchestra to Russia he had some unusual experiences not generally vouchsafed to those who live outside an autocratic government.

One day he received the Czarina's commands to play before her at her summer resort and was told on arriving there that he would have to rehearse his program three times before the performance. He begged to know the reason for that, but no explanation was given him. These were Her Majesty's orders, and he could only comply. Still, his astonishment grew when he saw during the three rehearsals an empty court carriage drawn by a pair of horses slowly going back and forth in front of his orchestra.

Throughout the final performance the mysterious act was explained. The Empress, having a sharp attack of gout, was obliged to recline in the carriage, her foot on a cushion, while the concert took place, and the object of rehearsal had been to accustom the horses to a full string band lest they should take fright and bolt with her.

At the end of the performance an exalted dignitary of the court bade Strauss follow him to a splendid grand piano, saying:

"Now be good enough to play me all the newest Vienna music."

Although he was pretty fatigued by his three rehearsals and state performance, Strauss thought it expedient to comply, but after he had played continuously for over an hour he stopped, saying, "I presume that will be sufficient?"

"I am not at all tired," coolly rejoined his excellency.

"But I am!" said Strauss and rose from the instrument.

Use Bicarbonate of Soda.

What is the secret of destroying the "onion breath?" Not all the spices of Araby can do it, but there is a simple deodorant that has its place on every cupboard shelf which will do the trick.

Bend low and lend an ear—plain bicarbonate of soda, saleratus or baking soda — take your choice of a name, the effect is the same.

Gargle with a solution made by dissolving one to one and a half teaspoonfuls of the soda in a glassful of water, and gargle and gargle and gargle; then sally forth to your dance with a clear conscience and a sweet, clean breath.

The virtues of bicarbonate of soda as a reodorant are known and appreciated by very few — most of them nurses and physicians. What woman will not be glad to learn, for instance, that it is a perfect neutralizer of perspiration odors? There are many expensive powders put up for this purpose, and some of them are effective, but plain sodium bicarbonate at five cents a whole lot is quite as good as the best of them. It may be rubbed on the shields or through the armholes of a white shirt waist and be relied upon to neutralise any odor. The armpits may also be bathed with a solution of it before dressing.

Troop Horses' Burdens.

Cavalry are playing an unexpectedly large part in the war, and the weight carried by cavalry horses in the various armies is of interest. The British cavalry is armed with the short Lee-Enfield rifle, the magazine of which holds ten rounds; the sword, which is carried by all ranks except signallers; and the revolver, carried by warrant officers, staff-sergeants, sergeants, trumpeters, and drivers. Each trooper carries one hundred rounds of ammunition in a bandolier over the left shoulder. Lancer regiments carry the lance. Altogether the British troop horse carries 280 pounds.

The Cossack pony carries about 238 pounds. The average weight carried by the Indian troop horse when ready for war is about 266 pounds. The Austrian "troopers" carry a weight of between 294 and 308 pounds, and the average in the French and German armies is about the same.

A Warm Welcome.

A bibulous old Scot, a golf caddie, who was as sharp and sarcastic as he was convivial, had a wife who was much troubled by her husband's loose way of life. He could never have a good day on the links but he must end it with a wet night at the tavern. So to cure him the woman lay in wait on the road one evening, dressed in a white sheet.

When her husband appeared she rose from behind a hedge, an awful white figure, with outspread arms.

"Who the deil are you?" asked the intemperate caddie as he gazed unsteadily at the supposed ghost.

"I'm Auld Nickie," said the figure in a hollow voice.

"Ch'e a shake o' yer hand, then," said the tipsy caddie. "I'm married tae a sister o' yours. She'll be waitin' for us up at the hoose, an' nae doot she'll mak' ye welcome."

Quarrel No. 1.

"Confound it all," the bridegroom muttered angrily as he and his bride were returning from a ten days' honeymoon trip, "why do people stare at us so?"

"Probably wondering, just as we are, why we married each other," replied the bride.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

College Garb.

"Some newfangled scarecrow you have in the field, Hiram?"

"No; that's my boy. He insists on wearing his cap and gown while hoeing potatoes. He graduated from an agricultural college, you know."—Kansas City Journal.

He Objected.

A surgeon was explaining a very uncommon case to his students and finished up as follows:

"This, gentlemen, is a very rare tumor indeed. In all my thirty years' experience I have never come across one like this, and you will see me remove it to-morrow."

"No, you won't," said the patient. "If that's all the experience you've had of this sort of thing I'm going home."

Last Secret of Greeks.

No greater gift could be made to our modern world than the rediscovery of the Greek physical supremacy. The secret of the method by which for one brief period they realized perfection was long since lost, no one knows how.

At present so little do we understand the principles of training which guided the Greek in his games, in his battles and his dances and made the proportions of his figures different from ours of today that Greek sculpture is in reality a puzzle to us. Certain postures fixed by the Greek sculptor seem to us contortions, bordering on physical impossibilities. There is always a terrific controversy over the restoration of Greek sculpture, and even then the arms and heads and legs we supply never look right.

All this because we do not understand the principles by which the Greek ordered the movements of his body. It was a great secret of bodily co-ordination, and the secret has been lost and with it the ability thoroughly to understand Greek art.—New York Times.

Scott Liked Work Pressure.

Scott, who was poet, novelist, lawyer, too, would have been greatest of all as journalist. Listen to this from his journal for Feb. 15, 1826: "Yesterday I did not write a line of 'Woodstock.' Partly, I was a little out of spirits. • • • Partly, I wanted to wait for some new ideas. • • • Partly, I was a little too far beyond the press. I cannot pull well in long traces, when the draft is too far behind me. I love to have the press thumping, clattering and banging in my rear. It creates the necessity which almost makes me work best. Needs must when the devil drives." • • • There is the very spirit of journalism, and that devil surely is the printer's devil!—London Standard.

Austro-Germans Guard Frontier.

PARIS, Feb. 6. — Austro-German troops along the Serbian frontier have been dispersed along an immense front because of the menace presented by the possibility of Roumania's entrance into the war, and plans for a new offensive against Serbia have been abandoned in consequence, declares The Petit Parisien, which does not give the source of its information, but declares it "authentic. In the meantime, the Serbians are completely re-arming and refitting their army and have received large reinforcements of reserves and supplies of munitions.

Four Hundred Were Killed.

CAIRO, Feb. 6.—There was no engagement of any importance Thursday in the vicinity of the Suez Canal. There has been no fighting since the action of Feb. 2, when the Turks advanced on the posts at Toussoum (35 miles north of Suez), but were later in the day forced to retire.

During the fighting in the vicinity of Toussoum the Turks left behind them 400 men is killed and a total of 600 prisoners. Judging from the reports coming into Cairo, the total casualties of the Turks number at least 2,400 men, exclusive of prisoners.

Oil Tanker Abandoned.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The Standard Oil tank ship Chester, which sailed from this port Jan. 22 for Rotterdam, was wrecked and abandoned in mid-ocean and her crew of about 35 were rescued by the American liner Philadelphia, according to a wireless message received yesterday from the Philadelphia's captain.

BATTLE IS BEGINNING.

Turkish Force East of Suez Is Throwing Up Defences.

LONDON, Feb. 6. — Despatches from Cairo indicate that the main attack of the Turkish army is developing east of the Suez Canal.

Between Port Said and Suez the Ottoman troops have thrown up earthworks a few miles east of the canal. These were shelled all night by light-draft British warships, and the Turks were compelled to retire. As soon as the bombardment ceased, however, they reoccupied their trenches.

British aviators reported Thursday that the Turkish forces number about 45,000 men. They are well equipped and have a number of heavy guns.

Another Cairo despatch says: Turkish troops yesterday resumed their attempts to cross the Suez Canal at Toussoum, near Ismailia. Several boats that they succeeded in launching were sunk and all on board perished.

British warships have resumed their bombardment of the Turkish positions.

The failure of the Turks in their preliminary attack on the Suez Canal gives a good deal of satisfaction to Britain, as it is felt that the Territorial and Australasian troops engaged there have proved their mettle. Military men express the belief that the Turkish attack was only in the nature of a feeler, and that an organized assault will be delivered by the Ottoman army when it is able to collect its main strength within striking distance. Correspondents at Cairo say that a very warm reception awaits it from the British troops.

A Nice, Polite Man.

"There's some good things in town this week." said the girl who was hinting for an invitation to the theater.

"Well," responded Mr. Grouch, "I ain't one of 'em."

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GREY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Thickness and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn grey, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier ay is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all grey hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

WAR NEWS!

BEWARE OF FALSE PROPHETS!

The daily sensational rumours from "authoritative" sources should not guide the intelligent and thoughtful man. It is not sufficient merely to have the "news"—

WHY NOT HAVE THE FACTS?

BACK FROM THE FIRING LINE

First Aid to the Wounded

LONDON, Feb. 6th.—At almost every station on the railroads you will see men shattered and wrecked for life, men who must face the future horribly mutilated, and yet they accept their fate without a murmur of complaint or bitterness. It is the same in England, in France and, I suppose, in Russia, that all soldiers are bearing their sufferings with the greatest of fortitude.

The best aid these men have is within themselves. The human body will best resist infection from bullets when it is healthy, strong, active and with all of its functions fully alive and working. The best aid to this condition is a vegetable tonic and alterative that will first put the stomach and blood right, for these are dependent on one another. Good stomach means good blood, and likewise good blood means good stomach.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery helps the stomach to do its work naturally and properly, stimulates the liver. The system is freed from poisons. The blood is purified. Every organ is rejuvenated. This "Medical Discovery" of Dr. Pierce, is free from alcohol or narcotics. It is made from the roots and barks of American forest plants with triple refined glycerine, and is the best blood purifier, because it banishes from the blood all poison and impure matter. It dissolves impure deposits and carries them out, as it does all impurities through the bowels, kidneys and skin. If you have indigestion, sluggish liver, catarrh, unsteady nerves, or a pimply skin, get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to-day and start at once to replace your impure blood with the kind that puts energy and ambition into you and brings back youth and vigor.—Adv.

PERLEY IN FRANCE.

Acting High Commissioner Advance Representative for Canadians.

OTTAWA, Feb. 6.—The Government has been advised that Sir George Perley, acting High Commissioner in London, is now in France with the headquarters of Gen. French. Sir George is understood to be looking after arrangements for the Canadian forces, who will shortly go to the front, making sure that every possible provision is being made for their health and comfort.

Eight Elections Pending.

LONDON, Feb. 6. — The appointment of Cecil Harmsworth to the Home Office Secretaryship and of Neil Primrose to the Foreign Office Secretaryship necessitates two more elections, bringing the total number of pending elections to eight, namely Wisbech and Chesterton in Cambridgeshire; Luton in Bedfordshire, Appleby Division, in Essex; Wigtonshire, Scarborough and Hirsk and Howdenshire in Yorkshire. There is no expectation of contests anywhere.

Allies' Aviators Bomb Zeebrugge.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—A despatch to The Star from Rotterdam states that aeroplanes of the allies flew over Zeebrugge and dropped bombs which are reported to have done considerable damage.

Aged Woman Perishes.

ST. THOMAS, Feb. 6.—Miss Eliza Pettitt, of Fingal, was found burned to death in her home by Peter Gainsback on his arrival home from St. Thomas, where he had been spending the day. The woman attempted to light a fire with kerosene in the sitting-room, when her clothing caught fire, and being crippled with rheumatism, she was unable to extinguish the flames or get assistance.

TO STOP HEADACHE

Headache usually comes from a sluggish liver and bowels. If you feel bilious, dizzy or tongue is coated and stomach sour, just get a 10-cent box of Cascarets to start your liver and bowels and your headaches will end.

7032.

Cotton crepe was used for this design, with plain white crepe for collar, cuffs and belt. The tuck each side of front and back relieves what otherwise would be too plain an effect, and the belt sewed on at the back holds in the fulness in a trim, tidy manner. Bishop or short sleeves may be used as preferred. The pattern, No. 7,032, can be obtained in sizes from 34 to 42 inches bust measure. Price, 10 cents.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age of a child.

A Good Impression.

First impressions are tenacious. The customer who gets an unpleasant impression on his first visit to a store, is not likely to be a permanent customer. On the contrary, a favorable first impression will insure a steady patronage.

First impressions are often obtained from a firm's advertising, even before the store is visited. A frank, straightforward statement of values and advantages, will create an impression of fair dealing, and bring the customer to the store in a receptive state of mind.

Our advice to merchants is to give careful thought to their advertising and to advertise regularly.

Springville's Post Office May Be Closed Feb. 15

Springville residents held an indignation meeting on Friday night at which strong objection was voiced to the closing of the village post office. The department has notified the North Monaghan people of their intention to close the office on February 15. At Friday ngiht's meeting in J. J. Herron's store, Mr. F. E. Wilson was appointed to go to Ottawa to present the villager's protest and to request that no action be taken. One of the inconveniences that will follo wthe proposed closing is that a letter will be two days in reaching Peterborough.

SENSE ABOUT FOOD
Facts Worth Knowing

It is a serious question sometimes to know just what to eat when a person's stomach out of order and most foods cause trouble.

Grape-Nuts food can be taken at any time with the certainty that it will digest. Actual experience of people is valuable to anyone interested.

A woman writes: "I had suffered with indigestion for about four years, ever since an attack of typhoid fever, and at times could eat nothing but the very lightest food, and then suffer so with my stomach I would wish I never had to eat anything.

"I was urged to try Grape-Nuts and since using it I do not have to starve myself any more, but I can eat it at any time and feel nourished and satisfied, dyspepsia is a thing of the past, and I am now strong and well.

"My husband also had an experience with Grape-Nuts. He was very weak and sickly one spring, and could not attend to his work. He was put under the doctor's care but medicine did not seem to do him any good until he began to leave off ordinary food and use Grape-Nuts. It was surprising to see the change in him. He grew better right off, and naturally he has nowe but words of praise for Grape-Nuts.

"Our boy thinks he cannot eat a meal without Grape-Nuts, and he learns so fast at school that his teacher comments on it. I am satisfied that it is because of the great nourishing elements in Grape-Nuts."

This mother is right. Grape-Nuts food is a certain and remarkable rebuilder of body, nerves and brain.

"There's a Reason."

COLD ICE CREAM.

The More Fat in the Cream the Longer the Cold Taste Lasts.

An odd application of a very abstruct principle of physics is to control at will the cold taste of ice cream. If an ice cream manufacturer wishes to have his ice cream taste cold a long time he can do so by making simple changes in the cream mixture. The freezer, the actual temperature of the frozen cream having little to do with it. The scheme has been worked out by chemists of the Iowa State college.

The scientific principle is that of specific heats. The specific heat of an article is the intensity of heat needed to raise its temperature a given number of degrees or, in effect, the rapidity with which the article takes up heat. Water is taken as the standard and scientists know the specific heat of most substances compared with water. These chemists carefully washed out the specific heat of milk, cream and various other dairy products, discovering that pure cream has a low specific heat and that fatty substances do not take up heat so quickly and effectively as does water.

This explains why sherbets and other ices taste so cold when they first reach the mouth, but do not give the cold taste long. They have a high specific heat and quickly take up heat from the mouth, then melt.

With ice cream the more fat there is in the formula the lower the specific heat. Accordingly a very fat cream will not taste disagreeably cold at first, but a spoonful of ice cream in the mouth will maintain its cold taste longer. Thus the cold taste can be controlled by the amount of fat used.—Saturday Evening Post.

HINDU EGG DANCE.

Curious and Difficult Feat Performed by Girl Jugglers.

Of the many wonderful feats performed by Hindu jugglers one of the most remarkable is the egg dance. Usually it is executed by a girl fantastically dressed. She takes top of a willow wheel, around which at equal distances are threads, and at the end of each thread there is a noose held open by a bead.

This wheel the girl places on her head, while she carries a basket of eggs on her arm. When the music strikes up she begins to dance, and the wheel begins to spin around. She then takes an egg from the basket, places it in one of the thread nooses and throws it from her with sufficient force to draw the knot tight. The spinning of the wheel keeps the thread stretched with the egg at the end of it.

She then takes another egg from the basket, places it in another noose and repeats this until there is an egg in every noose. Her fantastic costume, her perfect motion and all the eggs swinging on stretched threads at once present a curious sight.

It requires much art to execute the dance, for one false step would cause the eggs to be dashed together and the dancer to be disgraced.

After dancing for some time with all the eggs swinging round her head she takes them out of the nooses one by one, all the time keeping the wheel balanced and in motion, and again places them in the basket on her arm.

After the performance the spectators are allowed to examine the eggs to see that they are real.—London Ideas.

Historic Clontarf.

Clontarf is one of the most historic spots in Ireland. It was there that on Good Friday, April 23, 1014, Brian Boruhme and the men of Munster, Connaught and Meath fought the Danes.

Brian was killed in his tent; Sigurd, earl of Orkney and Caithness, perished also, and 11,000 Irishmen and 13,000 Danes are said to have fallen. Victory remained with the Irish, but the Danes reoccupied Dublin. In modern times O'Connell's monster meetings for repeal were to have culminated at Clontarf, but the meeting was prohibited by the government, and O'Connell was put upon his trial for conspiracy and convicted, though the verdict was eventually reversed by the house of lords.—London Chronicle.

Wouldn't Hear the Horn.

An exceptionally voluble golfer was vainly endeavoring to move a heli with his driver. Pausing in his efforts, he cursed, watching him, a small girl, assisted by the same a size smaller boy. Immediately visions of flying golf balls flashed across his mind. "You ought not to bring your little brother here," he cautioned the girl. "Oh, it's all right, sir," came the reply. "He's stone deaf."—Exchange.

TREAT EVERY CHILD'S COLD EXTERNALLY RUB ON "NERVILINE"—A SAFE CURE

A Miracle of Healing Power in Every Bottle.

Little children can't be expected to romp, day in and day out, without sometime coming to grief. Some of their games and rough and tumble, cause undue fatigue, and not infrequently the kiddies are bruised, have strains, swellings and aches just like their elders.

When children come in tired and sore, see they are well rubbed with Nerviline. It does wonders in breaking up a cold—has an amazing effect on any sort of muscular pain.

The wise mother always keeps trusty old Nerviline on hand. It has a wonderful list of uses, and a bottle handy on the bedroom shelf often saves calling in the doctor.

Young and old alike can safely use Nerviline—there's no harm in it—just a heap of curative power when you rub it on.

When ever there is a pain or sickness, Nerviline should be given by. It is a true specific for rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica or neuralgia.

As for earache, toothache, sore back, sprains or strains, nothing else will come so fast as good old Nerviline. In case about forty cents—sold by dealers everywhere. Try large 50c. family size bottle to-day and be convinced; trial size 25c., all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Infantry Training

The Matter in This Column is from the Official Manual 1914 and is Published According to Orders of the Home Guard

7. Movements will be made in quick or double time; if they are to be made at the double, the command Double—March will be used instead of Quick—March.

8. Movements and formations for which detail is given in fours can also be made in file.

9. Sections and companies in close order should be exercised over broken, hilly and wooded ground.

10. Men are to be trained to act both in the front and in the rear rank.

11. Before a movement in close order is made, arms will be sloped either on the command Slope—Arms or direct from the position of Shoulder-Arms on the command Quick—March. In Rifle regiments, which form in close order at the Trail, the men will trail arms on the command Quick or Double March, and will halt and stand at ease on the command or signal Halt.

12. Men will correct of their own accord any derangement in the order in which they fell in on parade.

13. Squad commanders are responsible for the maintenance of direction and distance of their squad.

14. The company will frequently be practised in reassembling when dispersed.

15. Fire action will be combined with all drill movements, and the officers, non-commissioned officers and men should be continually practised during drill to act rapidly and wisely on the ground.

PLATE XIV. To face p. 48

The British Casualties Total 104,000

The French Artillery Again Successful

Little Infantry Fighting Along Western Front

Artillery However is Very Active and the French Shell Fire Has Been Very Effective, Preventing the Germans From Massing Their Forces For An Offensive Movement.

GERMAN TRENCHES ARE DYNAMITED

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PARIS, Feb. 8.—French artillery success in the Aisne to the Champaigne district and the successful dynamiting of German trenches in the region of Ouinchy, south east of Carency, were announced to-day in the official communique. The French artillery is being utilized at every point to prevent the Germans massing their forces for an offensive movement, and at a number of places German guns have been dismounted and put out of commission. Very little infantry fighting is now going on. In the north the low lands are again inundated and troop movements are amost impossible. From the sea to the Oise the artillery duel is of the most violent character. A German assault along the Bagatelle Fontaine Madame line was repulsed by the French, who inflicted severe damage on the enemy.

NORFOLK, W. Va., Feb. 8.—With the Stars and Stripes at the stem and stern, the cotton laden steamer Dacia (formerly German but now of American registry) is expected to sail at noon to-day for Rotterdam. Captain McDonald declared he would follow the usual route and did not think Great Britain would attempt a seizure until the vessel is far at sea.

NO NOTICE OF THE FLAG INCIDENT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—"The raising of the Stars and Stripes on the Lusitania is not such an incident as will cause any difficulty with Great Britain," said Chairman Flood of the Foreign Affairs Committee to-day. No notice of the incident, he stated, will be taken by Congress, and any action will be diplomatic, between the State Department and the British Foreign Office.

"It is inconceivable, however," Flood added, "that any German submarines would seriously consider the sinking of a passenger vessel, even a British ship, with hundred of innocant women and children on board."

CANADIANS REPORTED IN FRANCE

TORONTO, Feb. 8.—Relatives of several officers and men connected with the first Canadian contingent today received cables stating that they had safely arrived in France, thus corroborating the story sent on Saturday that the Canadians are now at Boulon or somewhere near the firing line.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Commenting editorially on the use of neutral flags by British merchantmen, the Daily Express says that while such action may be legally consistent, it nevertheless will dusturb British public opinion. "In our case above all others," says the Express, "such tactics will seem inexpedient and even humiliating to the British mind. Since when has the Union Jack become the colour to be hauled down timidly as an inadequate protection on all seas? The whole affair leaves a very disagreeable taste in the mouth of England."

BERLIN, Feb. 8.—That the fighting along the Labassee Canal continues with violence, and that the Germans have succeeded in re-capturing part of a short trench recently captured by the British, was claimed at the war office to-day.

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 8.—In the House of Commons this afternoon, Premier Asquith announced that the total British casualties in the war up to February 4th are 104,000 killed, wounded and captured.

Undersecretary for War Says That There is No Cause for Discontent in the Minds of Britons

TO CONTINUE SECRECY

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, ENG, Feb. 8—In the House of Commons to-day, Harold John Tennant, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of War, in introducing the estimates, declared that while the policy of secrecy regarding recruiting and the despatching of expeditionary forces would be continued, it was permissable to say that there was no cause for discontent, much less for disquiet, in the minds of the people of Great Britain. Mr. Tennant stated that large expeditions of overseas Dominion troops had been landed without the loss of a single man.

CARDS ARE BEING PREPARED

In Connection With Mobilization of Local Automobilists

Ald. A. H. Stratton is having prepared a card which will be sent to each automobile owner in the city and country, requesting the co-operation of the automobile owners in a scheme for the speedy mobilization of the Peterborough regiments and Home Guards. Each member of the Association is asked to fill out the cards and return them to the chairman of the committee (Mr. S. J. Keyes) as soon as possible.

Ministerial Association

Met This Morning—Recognition of Peace Sunday

The regular meeting of the Ministerial Association was held this morning in the Y.M.C.A. Parlours. The President, Rev. James Rollins, presided. The chief item of interest was the review of the book, "The Preacher and His Work," by Rev. Mr. Jowett, of New York. The work, which was reviewed by the Rev. J. B. Webb, created some interesting discussion. The matter of possible assistance to the Belgian fund and the recognition of Peace Sunday on Sunday next was also discussed, and left to each minister to recognize it in any suitable way.

GETS POSITION IN THE MACHINE GUN SECTION

Lieut. Ross Cameron of the 57th Regiment Receives Important Appointment in 39th Battalion

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

Lieut. Ross Cameron of the 57th Regiment, who has been attached to the local company of the 39th Battalion, received word on Saturday that he had been appointed to a command in the machine gun section of the same battalion, with orders to report at headquarters at Kingston at once, to study the duties of his new position. Lieut. Cameron left this morning for Kingston. Just who his successor in the local company will be is not known.

While no definite information has been received here it is expected that the local Squadron of the Mounted Rifles will leave for Ottawa on Wednesday or Thursday of this week. The Squadron is nearly completed but there are a few vacancies yet and intending recruits will have to hurry if they want to get in.

Of the local squadron of Mounted Rifles, 55 per cent. are of Canadian birth. Of the others another 20 per cent. are Old Countrymen, who have lived here for a long time, some from infancy. The remainder are more recent arrivals from the British Isles. The squadron, including the officers, is made up as follows: Canadians 76, English 49, Scotch 8, Irish 8, Welsh 2.

In the list of the 113 Varsity men going to the front with the Second Canadian Contingent appear the names of two Peterborough students, R. M. Taylor, of Victoria College, and Frank Austin, School of Science. The latter is at Ottawa with the Engineers.

Pte. Percy Gray, of Peterborough, who is with the Cyclist Corps, Second Contingent at the Exhibition Grounds, was home for the week-end.

A former Trenton hockey player, Tripp, who played on the forward line against the Bear Cats several years ago, is here with the Mounted rifles.

Some of the best soccer players in Peterborough are with the Mounted Rifles and 39th Battalion. The athletes of the City are making a good showing in the Third Contingent. Among the best known recruits with the Mounted Rifles is Walter Flowers, who has shone as a hockey, football, rugby and basketball player and as a track man.

MUSICAL RISE OF A PETERBOROUGH BOY

A Buffalo exchange gives some details in reference to the progress to artistic prominent in music of a former Peterborough boy, Mr. John J. Ball, brother of Mrs. David Yarnold and nephew of Mr. George Ball, both of this city. The reference says:

"Mr. Ball is to give a song recital in the Lafayette Hotel on Feb. 10th, for the benefit of the building fund of St. John Maron's Church. In the first week in Lent Mr. Ball goes to Olean, N.Y., as organist and choir director of the Church of Our Lady of the Angels, and both pastor and congregation are to be congratulated upon securing this gifted and trained musician. Mr. Ball is especially capable in church music; the glory and solemnity that lie in singing the Divine praises always arouse his highest efforts. Recently Mr. Ball was engaged by music lovers of Lockport to direct a men's chorus of sixty voices, a work he will continue, going there from Olean weekly.. Mr. Ball has been booked for a number of concerts as baritone soloist of the Russian Symphony Orchestra, under the management of Albert A. Van de Mark.

Mr. Ball's many friends in Peterborough will be pleased to learn of his advancement. Those who have heard him sing during his occasional visits to the city, will not be surprised at the practical recognition of his ability as an artist; and recent study will have added to his exceptional vocal ability.

PROBABILITIES.

Fair and moderately cold to-night and Tuesday.

DEBATE IN HOUSE WILL END TO-DAY

Talking Will be Confined to the Mover and Seconder and the Two Leaders

$100,000,000 WAR VOTE

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 8 — Unless something of a controversial nature helps up the debate on the address in the House of Commons is expected to close this afternoon or evening.

It is expected that the talking will be confined to the mover and seconder and the two leaders. William Weichell of North Waterloo, who leads off, is not expected to speak for more than half an hour. H. Achim, the seconder, will occupy about the same time.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Robert Borden, who will follow in turn, may not occupy more than an hour each so that there is fair prospect of the debate being concluded before 6 o'clock.

If the debate is finished to-day the Government resolution calling for a vote of one hundred millions for war purposes will be taken up to-morrow, when an interesting explanatory speech by the Prime Minister is expected. Wednesday and Thursday will be private members' days. If the budget comes this week it will be Friday, but the expectation is that it will go over until next week.

The main estimates for the next fiscal year will be tabled this week, which will enable Parliament to immediately devote its attention to the voting of the necessary general supply. The estimates are likely to be smaller than for the current year, owing to the tendency to economize, and the fact that there will be no militia votes.

The Militia being on a war footing, the expenditures will be included in the war vote.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

A meeting of the Public Utilities Commission was held on Saturday afternoon. Among the correspondence was a letter from the Council concerning additional street lighting. The communication was received.

ENGINEER RECOMMENDS AN AUXILIARY PLANT

At the Pumping Station to Provide For Such Contingencies as Anchor Ice—Outside Conditions.

MR. DOBBIN'S REPORT

The report of Mr. R. L. Dobbin, Waterworks Superintendent, concerning methods for combatting frazil ice and similar conditions has been submitted to Utilities Commission. In closing his report, Mr. Dobbin expresses the opinion that in order to get absolute continuity of power under all circumstances it will be necessary to install some kind of auxiliary steam or other power driven pumps with which to operate the pumping station in event of the turbines becoming inoperative through anchor ice.

The report reads as follows:

In accordance with your instructions on my recent trip to Montreal and Ottawa I endeavoured to see as much as possible of the power houses in the vicinity, and to ascertain their methods for combatting frazil ice and like conditions.

While at Montreal the plants visited were the Chambly and Lachine plants of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Company, the new Cedar Rapids power house on the St. Lawrence, and the pumping station of the Montreal Water and Power Company.

Chambly Power House.

This is situated on the Richelieu River and 20,000 horse power is developed under a head of 24 feet. It consists of a dam extending across the river, with a short fore-bay leading to the wheels. Considerable trouble is experienced here from frazil, as there is a long stretch of rapids above the site.

Several years ago steam pipes were installed in the wheels and they were used for some time, but finally abandoned, except for thawing out the wheels after they were plugged with the ice. The man in charge has been connected with the plant for several years, during which the steam pipes were used, and he gives as his opinion that the device was of no real use. He stated that he had seen units that did not have the steam applied, start before others to which it had been applied.

At present no protective device is used on the racks or in the wheels. Diagonal channels are cut in the ice of the forebay from the shore at the power house of the dam to the sluiceway. The frazil rises in these channels and is drawn with ploughs to the sluice-way, where it is carried by the current over the dam and down the stream. As many as two hundred men and fifty teams are used at this work at different times durin gthe winter.

Lachine Power House.

This is situated on the St. Lawrence river above Montreal, and there is a long forebay leading to the wheels, with frequent sluice-ways to draw off the ice. In this plant there are about forty wheels coupled up five on a shaft and they have never been all shut down at once. The racks are not covered in any way, and they do not use steam in the wheels.

At this power house when the ice starts to run badly, they take out the racks in front of some of the sets of wheels and so are able to pass through large quantities of the frazil. This of ccurse is dangerous as some obstruction might be drawn into the wheel and damage it severely. However, as they have so many wheels they think it worth while to take the chance, and have had surprisingly few wheels damaged.

They have also stretched booms diagonally across the forebay at the sluice-ways so as to deflect the floating ice into the main channel of the river. These booms also catch the frazil and give it a chance to freeze on the surface, thus forming a protective coating.

The superintendent in charge of the Chambly and Lachine power houses, says that the best help in getting rid of the frazil, is the fact that the main flow of the river on which they are situated is practically untouched. The wheels take only a small portion of the flow of the river, and as the headgates of the forebays are parallel with the current, the ice is drawn on down the stream.

Cedar Rapids.

This is situated on the St. Lawrence, where eventually, 150,000 h.p. will be developed. At present they are developing only 20,000 h.p.

The installation is a similar one to that of the Lachine power house, and consists of a long forebay leading to

RUSSIAN SUCCESS

Czar's Troops Have Captured Three Villages in the Carpathians and the Austrians Retire

BATTLE IS RAGING

SPECIAL CABLE:

ATHENS, Feb. 8.—According to advices received here the Russians have captured the villages of Ulica, Komarnik, Courtesa and Swidnik, all just across the Dukla Pass and south of it in the Carpathian Mountains. A great battle is raging in Bukowna between Dorna Watra and Kimpolung. The Austrians are reported to have been driven back beyond the Moldava river in Bukowina.

Marquis of Londonderry Passes Away

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 8.—The Marquis of Londonderry died to-day of pneumonia. He was one of the foremost leaders of the Ulster movement. He was also one of the largest land owners in Great Britain, holding a title to 50,000 acres. The son, Viscount Castlereagh, is the heir.

Report of Dr. McPherson

Concering the Water Supply for the Month of January

Dr. A. W. McPherson, Medical Officer of Health, reports that the water for the month of January was free from infection. His report follows:

The comparative statement of the waterworks department for the fourth quarter of the years 1913 and 1914 is as follows:

1913	$17,842.59
1914	$18,295.94
Increase, $903.35.
Cash discounts:
1913	24,092.12
1914	$4,284.89
Increase, $341.74
Cash receipts:
1913	$12,945.54
1914	$13,694.23
Increase, $750.09.

The net cash receipts from all sources (except debentures) from 1st January to 31st December, 1914, are as follows:

Water rates	$50,770.89
Building purposes	329.51
Power plant	2,000.00
Frontage rates	2,033.89
Construction account	1,115.67
	$56,749.96

"The weather has been cold throughout except the second week, when the weather moderated, and was followed by rain. The snowfall has been heavy.

"The water was pure throughout the month. In spite of what appears in the papers, I wish to say that the water has shown to be free from infection since the middle of October, as the records I have given would indicate."

A RECORD ATTENDANCE.

Yesterday's session of the George Street Sunday school was attended by five hundred and sixty members. This is almost a record attendance.

HOCKEY EXCURSION TO LINDSAY ON WEDNESDAY

The Peterborough Hockey Club will, in all probability run an excursion to Lindsay for the return Junior O.H.A. game on Wednesday night. This will be the first hockey excursion of the year and as an excursion to Lindsay is always popular, a big crowd will undoubtedly make the trip. The return fare will be 75c.

NICKEL.

Hon. C. Howard Ferguson seems to be guilty of adding the sin of commission to the sins of omission of the Ontario Government in the matter of dealing with the nickel interests of the country. Theoretically there is no objection to the appointment of the commission Mr. Ferguson proposes; but there is no need of such a commission at the present time; and not only no need, but such a commission will only interfere with the duty of prompt grappling with the really live and emergent question of preventing Canadian nickel from reaching the enemy to be used against us. The very emergency invoked to justify the appointment of a commission contra-indicates its appointment. In the nature of things, it will be a long time—especially in war time—before the proposed commission can be constituted; and a much longer time before it can investigate and report. This time will be greatly extended if, as is suggested, the commission is intended to protect interests, that find it to their advantage to maintain the status quo of the nickel situation. On this page will be found a despatch which indicates that there are business relations between the private nickel interests and a member of the Government, which suggests that national and imperial interests are to be subordinated to corporation interests. The interests of the country, not of corporations, is the main point. A commission to discover whether Canadian nickel is going to Germany, would be more to the point, though that is unnecessary, for we know as positively as need be, that, from the way our nickel is at present being dealt with, it can find, and indeed has been finding its way to Germany, to be used as a weapon against ourselves. What economic or industrial or money-grabbing reason can justify a continuance of such a condition.

AGRICULTURAL ADVERTISING.

The value of the Government's admirable campaign of content "Patriotism and Production — more than usual," will depend upon the effectiveness of its appeal—will depend upon the appeal reaching those designed to be directly influenced. The best medium of bringing the appeals home, is the press, the daily and weekly newspapers. The decision of the Department of Agriculture to vitalise its campaign by newspaper advertising is a step towards giving practical effect to departmental theory; and Hon. Martin Burrell, the Minister, has acted wisely in this regard. The Examiner has received an order from the Government through an advertising firm, McConnell and Ferguson, Toronto, for the publication in the Weekly Examiner, of an appealing advertisement in connection with the "Patriotism and Production" campaign. The reception of this order is a surprise and a very gratifying one; it is a precedent in the way of distribution of government advertising in newspapers, politically in opposition to the Government of the day. This is proof of two important things; it is proof of the fact that the Minister recognizes the political truce that has been declared—a truce based on the splendid idea that all Canadians, irrespective of party or creed, or national origin, are one in the work of helping the Empire in this war; it is also a proof of the recognition of the value of the press as a medium of popular information and appeal to popular interest. And it may have another good feature in establishing a precedent for the lessening of the partisan spirit, and a more intimate cooperation in other matters of promoting national interests, than the prosecution of war; may beneficially influence our attitude towards the question of cooperation, unimpaired by party considerations, in waging the fight of national development. If we find it good to subordinate the party spirit in the work of waging and helping the Empire in its time of need, we shall be led to consider the advantage of subordinating the party spirit in other things; to the more successful promotion of interests of national concern. We are very properly divided into parties on some questions of principle and method; but no matter what party divisions we have in these regards, we are all one in the spirit of imperial connection, in our unchanging love of the Empire, devotion to the principles it stands for, and interest in the building up and development of the Dominion. Here both parties, all Canadians, can unite in sentiment and cooperation in action.

A POLICY OF DESPAIR.

We are pretty well justified in regarding the German threat to sink all shipping belonging to either belligerents or neutrals as a "bluff." The public and official announcement of the policy is in the first place a contradiction of German methods since and before the war began. That country has committed outrage after outrage upon humanitarian and international ethics without giving notice of its intentions. It has not hesitated to bombard cities without giving official notice to the non-belligerent inhabitants. The Germans gave no official notice of an intention to raid the British littoral, bombard undefended cities and kill women and children, thus richly earn the title of "baby killers." Besides, it is not good military practice to publish military plans in advance. And in a word its unlike German tactics to be fair, open and above board. It lacks the sneaking, crooked, spying and lying characteristics of military strategy of the German war party. The threat is probably a scheme to cover some "game." It is a confession of desperation under the so far colossal failure of the German campaign on land and at sea. The threat by being announced loses a great deal of its significance. Heretofore German attempts upon the British fleet have been secret and unannounced, unsuccessful. The conjunction of the idea "forewarned is forearmed" with "threatened folk live long," has considerable significance. Neither shipping men nor the Admiralty are greatly conce.ned. Those who know assert that a blockade of British ports by such tactics as that proposed by Germany is impossible. A submarine is not difficult of crippling by a well directed shot, and the threat of their use may be regarded enough to mount a gun or two on merchant vessels. The crowning proof of ineffectiveness of the threatened action consists in the statement that the Kaiser himself is to direct naval movements, as indicated by his visit to Wilhelmshaven, the naval base. His intermeddling so far in naval matters has been singularly barren of effective results, and the news that his is the directing hand is good news. The Imperial gambler is becoming reckless in his stakes, a pretty sure indication of a feeling that the game is going against him. We are encouraged more than dismayed, by proof of the feeling of desperation that is taking possession of the enemy. We are perhaps not making rapid headway, but we are holding on; if we gain little ground we are holding what we have and are working up to landing a body blow. We are not desperate; not even discouraged, but fighting on every front with a firm assurance of victory in the end, and the beginning of the end may not be far off.

HOW BERLIN SEES IRELAND.

Long ago this war is terminated, the necessity for an Irish Nationalist party in the British House of Commons will have passed away, for the Irish people themselves will have secured the Home Rule which England has so long denied them, by their own individual exertions.

That the English thoroughly understand what the present situation in the adjacent island portends is shown by the reign of terror to which they are now subjecting the Irish people.

All Nationalist papers have been suppressed, and their editors, together with more than a thousand other Irishmen, have been thrown into prison, while no public gatherings of any kind are permitted.

In many urban districts where the police force is insufficient, even the schools have been closed.

As to any further enlistments of Irishmen in the British army, that is entirely out of the question. On the other hand, the British have been compelled to strengthen the garrisons throughout the country, in view of the threatened revolution which may break out any day.

The English naturally lay the blame for all this on the broad back of Germany, who, they say, furnishes the Irish with the financial means to engineer the rising.—Berlin Lokal Anzeiger.

Relations of the Press To Government Policy of More Production

The other week The Financial Post of Canada made the following suggestion, which explains itself:

"On the other hand, there are no farmers who are not close readers of their local newspapers. That being the case, The Financial Post's method is for the best agriculturists to prepare a series of talks—not lectures—and insert them continuously in these local papers. By this method every farmer—not a few—in Canada, and more than that, the local townspeople—would be inspired and taught how to increase production and profits of the farmer. This work should be supplemented by bulletins and text books, mailed only on request; and by lectures when a sufficient number of farmers show enough interest to sign a requisition for their attendance"

To this statement the Times replied.

This proposal might be good for the farmers, but would it be good for the newspapers? Possibly a few more subscribers might be got if such talks were published daily or weekly. But that would only be a mere bagatelle. The Dominion and Provincial Governments make so many demands now upon the newspapers to give up their space in drawing the attention of the farmers and others to this experiment and that experiment and to the activities of this and that institution that compliance with these demands makes a big demand on the space at the disposal of the press. To such an extent has this become of recent years that we believe the Canadian Press Association should give the matter its attention. Were the Government to pay for the insertion of these talks there might be no objection to the proposal. Does the Post contemplate running these talks as deadheads or as paid matter?

In Saturday's issue of The Post the following appears:

"The Times misunderstands the suggestion made by the Financial Post. As all classes in Canada would benefit from an increase in the output of farm products, the country weekly newspapers should be paid for space given to publishing information on how to get more money from the land The Financial Post believes it would pay the country well to use, for educational talks, say a space of three columns wide by ten inches deep regularly in all worthwhile local weekly newspapers, Conservative and Liberal alike. The copy should be in the form of an illustrated display advertisement. The Hamilton Times is quite right in saying the Government makes too many demands upon the newspapers for free space. For some years the Post-office Department worked the press for a large amount of free space for the Annuity scheme, on the representation that a heavy appropriation for display advertising would shortly be given them. The Department got the appropriation but broke faith with the newspapers of Canada and spent the money in posting bills on the fences The newspapers hitherto have been the only business concerns in Canada that have displayed a real public spirit. They depend chiefly for their income upon the sale of space to advertisers and there are few papers in Canada that have not given thousands of dollars in space to advertising Government announcements free of charge. The space thus given has been the most valuable, that is, among reading matter, the space for which other advertisers pay sometimes double and triple rates. We have yet to learn of any contractor, manufacturer or merchant who has supplied any Government, free of charge, with his chief product—whether it is building wharves or boots for soldiers. Such a man would be regarded with suspicion. The Government should deal with the newspapers as they do with any other business concern."

The Post thus agrees with the Times in believing that the Government imposes upon the newspapers by expecting them to print too much "dead head" matter that should be paid for as advertisements. Public business should pay its way as well as private business There is no reason either why Government advertisements should be given out as political pap. Publicit is what is wanted, and Liberal and Conservative newspapers should be treated in the same way, no matter what Government is in power. Business concerns do not let their advertising to be influenced by politics, neither should the Government.

Since the above appeared the announcement is made that the Department of Agriculture has made a further concession to The Financial Post's policy—begun in and persistently advocated since October last—and will carry on a partial educational campaign. The Financial Post still believes that the interests of the country are so urgent as to demand a thoroughly effective campaign on the plan referred to above. Mr. Imrie, manager of the Canadian Press Association, deserves much credit from the press for having acted on the suggestion made in The Financial Post, though he has apparently not gone as far as The Post believes the situation deserves.—Editor, The Financial Post.

NO WORD FOR HUMANITY.

Plumes of fire are dropped from the clouds on undefended towns and cities. The United States is silent. Deadly mines are strewn on the high seas. The United States is silent. Buildings dedicated to religion, art, science and charity are razed to the ground. The United States is silent. Enormous fines, far in excess of military necessities are levied on ravished cities. The United States is silent. Seven millions stand emaciate in Belgium. The United States is silent. The Hague Conventions are thrown into the scrap basket. The United States is silent. But—the dollars of American trade are threatened. And the United States protests. It is the duty of the United States to protect the commercial rights of her citizens. But it is also the duty of the United States to protect the civilization of the world. Above all nations is humanity.—New York Independent.

THE WORK OF RECRUITING

While urgent appeals are being made for recruiting, there are many reports of men who are trying to get to the front, but cannot succeed, on account of some physical imperfection. It is certain that many of those who are rejected would be eagerly accepted by France, and that man suffering from all kinds of physical imperfections are used in Germany.

While it is right to appeal to those who are backward in responding to the call for recruits, it is equally important to facilitate the enlistment of those who are eager to go.

Even those who are physically fit find difficulty in the way. The periods of enlistment are too short, and the intervals between enlistments too long. There should be continuous enlistment, or something approaching it, so that a man who is fit and willing for service can enlist without delay, and at once begin drill and receive pay, so that himself and his family may be provided for. As it is now, he is told that his only course is to join one of the Canadian regiments and wait for his opportunity. Why not give an unemployed man a chance to earn money at once, and at the same time to increase the force which Canada can send into the field?

It seems inconsistent to urge men to enlist and then put obstacles in their way. There seems also to be a notion that each element of the community must be "represented," as if they were electing members of Parliament. Thus we read of a complaint that the farms are not contributing as liberally as the cities. What does that matter? Canada wants all the men it can get, and if one locality is willing to send twice as many men in proportion to its population as another is able to send, take the men and be thankful. As to the farmers, there is no question of exempting them from duty. The sole question is whether a man can be more useful on the farm or in the field.—Toronto Star.

EFFERVESCENT DRINKS.

They Allay Thirst Quickly, but the Effect is Not Lasting.

The reason why we like effervescent drinks is that the slight stinging or pricking of the palate that follows on drinking liquids charged with carbonic acid gas produces immediately an increased flow of saliva and thus diminishes for the moment the sensation of thirst.

But the relief they bring is only temporary and is followed by a reaction in which the thirst is actually increased. The salivary glands are no more susceptible to perpetual stimulation than any other, and after each period of excitement one of depression supervenes. Young soldiers on route marches quickly come to understand this and to discover that the more water they drink the more thirsty they get and that it is best, therefore, to limit the quantity of liquid swallowed. Moreover, the saliva contains matters of great importance for the digestion of food, particularly of starchy foods, and if it all be washed down the throat into the bowels as soon as it is secreted a great part of its usefulness is lost.

It would therefore seem that a less wasteful way, physiologically, of promoting the flow of saliva might be adopted with profit. The consumption of fruit containing subacid juices is about the most excellent way.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

Clothes.

"Clothes don't make the man," quoted a sage.

"They made me!" said a retired tailor.

"And where should I be if it wasn't for suits?" chimed in a lawyer.

NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that an application will be made by the Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation for the Diocese of Peterborough in Ontario, Canada, to the Legislature of Ontario, at the next Session thereof, for an Act amending the Act of Incorporation of the said Corporation, passed in the Forty-Sixth Reign of Her Late Majesty Queen Victoria, Chapter 66, so as to enlarge the powers of the said Corporation, to borrow moneys on the security of Promissory Notes and Bills of Exchange and for such purposes to make, draw, endorse, become a party to and deliver Promissory Notes and Bills of Exchange, without the necessity of affixing the Corporate Seal thereto.

The reasons for the enlargement of the powers of the said Corporation as aforesaid is that it requires to borrow moneys from time to time for its purposes in various sums and on such terms of repayment as to render it highly inconvenient to execute and deliver mortgage securities on the real estate of the said Corporation.

WHAT DOTH THY GOD REQUIRE OF THEE?

Standards of Character Which God Approves.

"YE ARE BOUGHT WITH A PRICE"

The Scope of the Divine Requirement—The Golden Rule the Merest Justice—The Value of High Ideals—Living Up to Our Ideals a Duty—Failure Due to Imperfection Resulting From Inherited Sin—God's Conditional Gift to Believers—How the Righteousness of the Law Is Fulfilled in God's People—Mercy and Humility Necessary Qualifications For Eternal Life.

New York City, Feb. 7.—Pastor Russell, at the New York City Temple, W. 63rd St. near Broadway, addressed a very attentive audience to-day. His discourse was based on the text, "What doth thy God require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" (Micah 6:8.) He said in part:

Is it possible that the true religion of the Bible demands nothing more of us than is expressed in this text? What about the Jewish Law? What about its sin-offering, its burnt-offering, its thank-offerings? What about the Ten Commandments? What about the digest of those commandments approved by our Lord Jesus—"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy mind, with all thy being, with all thy strength; and thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself"? What about church attendance? What about our responsibility to our families, to the church, to the poor? What about Bible study to know God's will? What about our responsibility for the heathen? What about Baptism and the Lord's Supper?

Indirectly all the matters covered by our questions, and many more, are included incidentally in the provisions of our text. Sometimes a whole sermon is preached in a few words. No one will dispute the reasonableness of the Divine requirement as stated in our text. Our Creator could not justly or with self-respect ask less than this of His creatures who would enjoy His favor. The interests of all demand that these principles should be required of every creature permitted the enjoyment of Divine favor to the extent of eternal life. Whoever fails to come up to these conditions would thus evidence his unworthiness of life eternal. His prolonged existence would merely be a prospering of sin and a menace to happiness and righteousness.

Let us see the scope of this Divine requirement, whose justice we have already acknowledged. We note the natural division of our text into three parts: (1) Doing justly; (2) Loving mercy; (3) Walking humbly.

The requirement of justice in all our dealings with our fellows commends itself to every rational mind. Justice includes the whole Law of God. A brief statement of that Law, which had our Lord's approval, reads, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, all thy mind, all thy being and all thy strength; and thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." On these two propositions hang all the Law and the Prophets.

It is but just that we should recognize our Creator as first, that we should glorify the One who gave us our being and all the blessings that come therewith, that we should be obedient to His righteous requirements, which make for our own happiness and that of others. It is also but right that we should recognize the rights of others as we would have them recognize our rights. The Golden Rule is the barest of justice. Not a hair's breadth less would come within the requirements of our text for justly. Come, then let us reason together. How many of us do justly in all of life's affairs—in our relationship to our God and to our neighbor?

Let each one criticize his words and his deeds toward his parents, his children, his brothers, his sisters toward husband, toward wife. In all our relationships of life do we treat those who are so near and dear to us according to the standards of justice—according to the Golden Rule? Do we do toward them as we would have them do toward us? If not, after making a beginning with the Lord, striving to render to Him our homage and obedience, let us closely scrutinize every word, every act, of the home life, and see to what extent these can be improved upon and made more nearly just. The majority of people, we feel sure, will be surprised to know how unjust they have been toward those who are of the very nearest and dearest of fleshly relationships.

Follow the matter up, and consider the justice or injustice of your words and deeds in daily life with your neighbors and associates. Do you invariably speak to them in the same words and with the same tone and gesture that you would approve if they were in your place and you in theirs? In business matters do you drive a closer bargain with them than you would think just for them to make with you? Or, on the other hand, do you ask of them higher prices for the services or the materials you furnish them than you would consider just and right if you were the purchaser and they the vendors?

Do you watch your chickens that they do not commit depredations upon your neighbor's garden, even as you would wish your neighbor to watch his chickens as respects your garden, if you had one? Are you as prompt in paying your bills as you wish your neighbors to be in paying you? Are you as careful about wiping your feet, when entering his home, as you would like him to be when entering your house? Do you treat all men, women, children and animals as kindly, as gently, as properly, as you think would be just and right if you were in their place and they in yours? Do you speak as kindly of your neighbors as you would have them speak of you? Or do you hold up their imperfections to ridicule, as you would not like to have them hold up yours? Do you so guard your tongue that you speak only things that you would think proper for your neighbor to speak respecting you, if you changed places?

Do you not begin to see, dear friends, that what God requires of us is much beyond what the majority have been rendering? Do you stand appalled, and tell me that it would be impossible to live fully up to that standard? I agree with you. St. Paul also agrees, saying, "We cannot do the things which we would." The Scriptures again agree and declare, "There is none righteous, no, not one. All have sinned and come short of the glory of God."—Romans 3:23.

What shall we do? Shall we say that because we are unable to live up to our own standards of justice we will abandon those standards? God forbid! We are weak enough and imperfect enough as it is. To ignore our best ideals of justice would be to permit the downward tendencies of our depraved natures to go rapidly from bad to worse—to carry us further and further from God and the standards of character which He approves. We can surely be content to do nothing less than our very best to live up to our own ideals and to raise those ideals as nearly as possible to the Divine standard.

Suppose we do our very best daily to measure up to our highest conceptions of our God-given ideals and standards, would God accept of this and count us worthy of His favor and of eternal life? Surely not! The Law of the Lord is perfect. Justice is Justice. Not the hearing of a law, not the well-wishing, receives the reward, but the doer, the obedient.

Here, then, we find ourselves in difficulty. With our hearts, our minds, we approve God's Law and desire to be obedient to Him; but we find, as St. Paul says, that many things we wish to do we fail to accomplish, and many of the things we do not wish to do we cannot avoid. We approve the excellent demands of God's Law. We disapprove the imperfections of our own flesh. Like St. Paul we cry out, "O wretched man that I am! Who shall deliver me from this dead body?"—this body that is imperfect through inherited sin and weakness. With our minds we serve God's Law and approve it; but with our bodies we come short. We cannot hope for a change in the Divine Law. Are we then hopeless as respects Divine approval and eternal life? We answer, No.

In our measure of ignorance we Rear God's Message "spearing peace through Jesus Christ our Lord." The Message of Peace is that what we could not do for ourselves God has provided shall be done for us through our Lord Jesus Christ. Our failure to keep the Law marks us as unworthy of eternal life, and worthy of the wages of sin—not eternal torment, but death. God in mercy concluded to offer us eternal life as a gift; for we do not actually merit it under His legal requirements. Thus we read, "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." (Romans 6:23.) What we could not obtain legally under the Divine requirements God proffers us as a gift. But the gift is conditional, as expressed in the words, "through Jesus Christ our Lord."

Only those who accept Jesus Christ as "the Way, the Truth and the Life" may have God's gift of eternal life. Hence it will be seen that it is wholly a mistake to suppose that the heathen at home or abroad can get eternal life, the gift of God, in ignorance of Christ. All the Scriptures declare not only that we cannot save ourselves by obedience to the terms of God's Law, but that "there is none other name under Heaven given amongst men, whereby we must be saved"—through faith in His blood.

But how is this done justly? And why does God so limit His gift of eternal life? We reply that God's Law represents Himself and cannot change. He cannot require less than perfection. To do so would be to fill the Universe with imperfect and depraved beings. God has a higher plan than this and declares, "As the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways." (Isaiah 55:9.) He explains that His ultimate purpose is that there shall be no imperfect creature in all His Universe. All whose hearts are loyal to Him and to the principles of His Government shall be perfected, and all others shall be destroyed in the Second Death. Thus eventually "every knee shall bow and every tongue confess, to the glory of God." Then every creature which is in Heaven and on the earth, and such as are in the sea, shall be heard saying, Blessing and honor and glory and power be unto Him that sitteth upon the Throne, and to the Lamb forever.

Possibly God could have arranged some other way of dealing with sin and sinners which would not have required the death of Jesus as the Ransom-price, the Redemption-price, for sinners. But the fact that this method was adopted by our great Creator assures us that no other method would have been so wise, so just, so beneficial. No other method would have so fully demonstrated God's Wisdom, Justice, Love and Power.

In brief, then, God's arrangement is that all of His human creatures shall have opportunity of full return to harmony with Himself, provided they wish to do so, provided their hearts, their wills, are fully responsive to the letter and the spirit of His Law—the requirements set forth in our text. God has provided in Jesus for the satisfaction of Divine Justice as respects all of the condemned race who desire to return to His favor.

We agree with all the orthodox creeds of Christendom that only repentance of sin and an endeavor to put it away from our thoughts, words and deeds, combined with faith in the Redeemer's sacrifice and a full consecration of heart and life to do the Father's will, are attainments nothing short of which will gain the salvation which God is now holding out to mankind. To such as comply with these conditions the Apostle explains that the righteousness of the Law of God, His full requirement, "is fulfilled in us who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit."—Romans 8:1.

From the moment of our consecration and begetting of the Holy Spirit God deals with this class as with sons. He trains them in the School of Christ, disciplining, chastening, proving them, testing the sincerity of their consecration vows and the loyalty of their hearts. To those who prove faithful the great reward is promised—glory, honor, immortality, joint-heirship with Jesus Christ in His Millennial Kingdom and its work of blessing all the families of the earth.

Our disagreement with all orthodox creeds in respecting what shall be done with the unsaintly—with those who do not present themselves to God and who are not begotten again of the Holy Spirit. Our creeds of the Dark Ages misrepresented the teachings of the Bible in respect to these and told us that they are all to be consigned for hundreds or thousands of years to Purgatory or for all eternity to Hell torment. Not such is the teaching of God's Word, but the very reverse, as we have previously shown.

The Scriptures do not declare, In thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be damned, but—the very reverse of this—that they shall all be blessed. All the sin-blinded eyes shall be opened. All the deaf ears of ignorance shall be unstopped. During that blest thousand years of Christ's Reign the world's uplifting or resurrection will proceed, while the knowledge of the glory of God shall fill the whole earth. The angels on the plains of Bethlehem did not declare to the shepherds, Fear greatly; for behold, we bring you bad tidings of great misery which shall be unto all people. Their message was the very reverse of this: "Fear not; behold, we bring you Good Tidings of great joy which shall be unto all people."—Luke 2:10, 11.

God, who had a due time for calling Natural Israel and who had also a due time for calling Spiritual Israel, has a due time for making known the riches of His grace to the non-elect world of mankind. And the Elect of Spiritual Israel and of Natural Israel are to be the channels of this Divine mercy and grace, which during the Millennial Age will flow as a river of salvation, longitude which all mankind will be invited to come and drink freely.

It may astonish some that God requires even more than Justice, which is His legal standard. In His permission of sin and its wage of death, He has shown His own mercy and love, and it is for the sinner's benefit, and for the good of all, that God requires that all who desire the full benefit of His mercy shall be required to cultivate this mercy in their own hearts. As the sinner attempts to conform his life to the perfect standard, and finds himself unable to keep God's Law and obliged to come for mercy to the Throne of Grace, he is informed that he can have mercy only upon condition that he will exercise similar mercy toward those who trespass against him, his ideals, his interests.

To "love mercy" is to go even beyond loving justice, and signifies a delight in yielding personal rights and privileges in the interest of others, where no principles are involved. It implies readiness to forgive the faults of others—a disinclination to be too exacting in respect to others, as well as a desire to be very exacting in respect to our treatment of others.

Humility is a quality very essential to every creature. Pride is a foe which not merely besets the weak and imperfect, but which overcame the great angel of light, Lucifer, and transformed him from a faithful servant of Jehovah into Satan, the adversary of God. We are glad, therefore, that Divine Wisdom requires humility as one of the conditions of our acceptance with Him. This requirement assures us of the security of the Divine Empire against all future treason; for none will be admitted to the eternal life conditions, either now or in the Millennial Age, except the humble. Let us hearken to the lesson of our text and to the Apostle's words, "Humble yourselves under the mighty hand of God, that He may exalt you in due time."

Could Not Get Rid of Them Until She Used

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

When the blood becomes impure the first symptoms which manifest themselves are a breaking out of the various forms of skin trouble such as boils, pimples, abscesses, ulcers, etc., and the only treatment you can use is some sort of a good blood cleansing remedy which will put the blood into a perfect condition, and thus eliminate all the different poisons from the system which cause these different eruptions to occur.

The best blood cleansing remedy on the market to-day is Burdock Blood Bitters. All we ask you is to try it and be convinced. Thousands have used it during the past forty years, and have nothing but praise for its curative powers.

Mrs. John Fitzgerald, Plantagenet, Ont., writes: "I am one woman who cannot speak too highly of Burdock Blood Bitters. I was covered with boils, and could not get rid of them. I was advised by a friend to try B.B.B. which I did, and I can truthfully say that it completely cured me. I have never had a sign of a boil since."

See that our name appears on both the label and wrapper as there are many imitations placed on the market which are said to be "just as good."

Burdock Blood Bitters is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Changing Matter.

"Can the diamond be destroyed by intense heat?" asks a reader.

Yes. Any substance known can be vaporized in the fierce heat of the electric furnace. The word "destroyed" should not have been used. Diamond is chemically pure carbon—that is, lampblack—and the same quantity still exists after the diamond has vanished. Man is now able to destroy the form of all matter known to chemists—that is, matter disappears as matter, only to resolve back into its primordial electrons. These are pure electricity, and nothing else exists. These man cannot create nor destroy. All that any human can create is a thought that had not been created before. But this is a theory, for all thoughts may be eternal. But here one must stop, for our minds cannot think of the meaning of the word eternal.—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

Burns' Cottage.

The Burns cottage at Ayr is under the charge of trustees, who purchased it in 1881 from the Ayr Shoemakers' Incorporation for the sum of £4,000. The birthplace of the poet had up till that time been in use as a public house. The trustees abandoned the license and after a time removed a hall and other extraneous buildings which had been added to the premises and restored the cottage buildings as nearly as possible to the state they may have been in in Burns' time. A new museum was built at the north-east corner of the grounds. Most of the relics were removed to the museum, which now contains a priceless collection—a first or Kilmarnock edition of the poet's work, for which £1,000 was paid, and Burns' family Bible, acquired at a cost of £1,760.—London Answers.

Beef in Boston in 1740.

A writer in the Xnie Review, who notes that in 1740 beef could be bought in Boston at 12 cents a pound, seems to imply that that price was all it was worth. "Invariably a steak for dinner was heralded by the vigorous pounding with the potato masher wielded by the stalwart arm of the cook." The meat, in fact, often came, he tells us, from the carcass of "a cow that no longer gave milk or a bull that had lost its bloom."

Glove Silver.

Glove silver was the strange name given to a custom which prevailed in England during the middle ages—namely, the granting of a certain sum of money to servants to buy gloves with on Lammas day, or, as it is called now, bank holiday.—London Saturday Review.

DEAD AMAZONS.

Burial Mound of Ancient Race Discovered in Brazil.

Sir Walter Raleigh, on returning from his South American voyage in the early part of the 17th century, reported to his sovereign that a landing party from his ship had been attacked near the mouth of a wonderful river by a swarm of women warriors and he accordingly suggested the name "Amazon" for the stream. Now comes Dr. Algot Lange, the archaeologist, who believes he has discovered evidence of this lost tribe described by Raleigh, a tribe wherein the burden of war and industry was borne entirely by the females. Dr. Lange has just returned from a prolonged voyage of investigation for the Brazilian Government, during which he discovered on the headwaters of the Boju, a tributary of the Amazon, a hitherto unknown tribe, the Araraandeward Indians, a peaceable, semi-agricultural group of 100 or more stark-nude savages, who had never seen a white man before and stood in terror of the explorer and his party.

"The most significant thing about the tribe," says Dr. Lange, "was the entirely Semitic character of the physiognomy. This was no resemblance to which imagination was necessary, but a striking likeness that could not be overlooked by the most rudimentary observer. It was as apparent in the handsome young men and women as in the old, and it gave me distinctly the sense of looking upon an Asiatic people."

But the most interesting of Dr. Lange's discoveries were at the mouth of the Amazon, on a big, flat island, browsed on by vast herds of cattle in the dry season and washed over by the sea in the wet. This is the island of Marajo, of about 120 by 100 miles. The Amazon, which is over 200 miles wide at this point, has built the island there from its mighty store of alluvial deposits, and the sea, fighting to hold its own, is underwashing the island, even as the river builds it.

"The island is never more than a few inches out of the water," Dr. Lange explains. "At high tide it shrinks considerably, and when the Amazon is at flood no island is visible save for the mounds. One of these I excavated pretty thoroughly and found the bones and pottery of a tribe which has struck me as distinctly Asiatic. Moreover, the pottery I dug up on this mound has another and stranger characteristic. The vases and idols, burial urns and bowls—all are decorated with feminine symbols. The absence of male figuration is striking, and there are other evidences in the mounds to indicate that on this flat island more than a thousand years ago there existed a civilization dominated by the women. Whether or not all of the bones found in the mound are those of females will be determined by local anthropologists to whom I shall submit various skeletons brought along for the purpose."

This funeral mound, according to the explorer, rises island-like from a tropical swamp in the centre of the great island of Marajo. It is about 15 to 20 yards wide and 100 yards long, and appears to be one mass of ancient pottery, much of it in fragments and some reduced to powder, but quantities still in good preservation.

The explorations disclosed 12 holes in the ground, and these on investigation proved to be the mouths of as many great funeral urns. Each was four or five feet high and globe or pear-shaped, filled with the bones of the dead Amazons, with pottery of many kinds and with the bones of the sea cow. Evidently this primitive race had hunted these big animals and used them as food, leaving quantities of the flesh in the funeral urns to feed the awakening dead.

Potato a Wireless Station.

Father Alfani, director of the Florence observatory at Florence, Italy, believes that the invention of the priest, Domenico Argentieri, of a system to receive wireless messages without the use of poles or batteries is scientifically sound.

He related that after the declaration of war the Italian Government forced all private wireless stations, including that of the Florence observatory, to discontinue. The next day Father Alfani obtained from Argentieri copies of official wireless messages which the priest had been able to intercept without a wireless installation.

There were many ways to do this, Father Alfani explained. One of the most simple was the very elemental expedient of sticking two steel needles into a potato.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 6.—Wheat futures opened ¼c lower for both months, oats unchanged and flax ⅝c lower. Trading was comparatively quiet, and fluctuations in narrow limits. May wheat sold from $1.63⅜ to $1.59⅝; July from $1.59⅛ to $1.60⅜.

Export trading was practically at a standstill, no new business being located. The demand for contract grades of cash wheat was excellent, but extremely few offers were on the market. The demand for oats was quiet and also for flax.

Inspections Friday 212 cars, as against 211 last year, and in sight today were 260 cars.

Wheat futures closed ⅝c lower for both months, cash ⅝c higher to ½c lower, oats ¼c to ½c higher and flax ⅝c to ⅝c higher.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Feb. 6.—The foreign demand for Manitoba spring wheat was fair and further sales of No. 1 northern, were made by London at 64s 4d to 64s 5d, the latter price being the highest made on this crop so far. There was no further change in the condition of the local market for coarse grains, prices being firm with a fair trade passing in car lots. The flour market is firm with a fair demand for local consumption, but the foreign demand was quiet. Millfeed is active.

Demand for butter is fairly good at firm prices. Receipts for the week were [illegible] compared with 1,251 for the same week a year ago.

Cheese is quiet. Receipts for the week were 73 boxes as against 160 for the corresponding week a year ago. Exports from Portland and St. John for the week were 20,606 boxes as against 7243 last year.

Eggs active; receipts for the week were 1625 cases as compared with 2488 last year.

Stocks: Wheat, 1,345,670; corn, 118,745; oats, 1,666,218; barley, 277,361; rye, 16,361; buckwheat, 7800; flax, 120,087; flour, 79,920 sacks.

Grand Trunk Brakeman Killed.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Feb. 8.—W. Saundercook, a Brockville Grand Trunk brakeman, was killed Saturday night at Cotean. The train upon which he was working was pulling away from the junction when Saundercook was missed, and a search revealed the mangled remains alongside the track. It is supposed that he fell from the top of a car. He was an old employe of the company and has made his home here for many years. He is survived by Mrs. Saundercook and two children.

Six Miners Killed.

FAYETTEVILLE, W. Va., Feb. 8.—Six men were killed and a number injured in a mine explosion here yesterday. Two state mine inspectors arrived before noon, and prepared to make a thorough search for the dead and missing miners. Great crowds collected around the shafts. Soon after the mine inspectors and the remainder of the rescue party went down the shaft, the signal to hoist was given those on top, and in a few minutes three bodies were at the surface.

Must Rebill Flour.

NIAGARA FALLS, Feb. 8. — Instructions were received from Ottawa by Arthur Boyle, collector of customs, to permit the 10 cars of flour consigned by the Maple Leaf Milling Co. to Salonica, Greece, to go forward provided they are rebilled to London, England.

Similar instructions have been received in respect of other consignments to prohibited destinations in Europe. It is understood that the exporters will comply with these conditions and an early release of all the detained shipments is expected.

Potatoes Scarce as Bread.

BERLIN, Feb. 6. — (Via Amsterdam.)—In commenting on the decision of the restaurants to discontinue serving bread free with all meals, and to urge that customers order potatoes instead of bread when either will be charged for, The Vorwaerts says that bread, potatoes and fish are equally unabundant, and that there is therefore little sense suggesting that either potatoes or fish be substituted for wheat product.

Aberdeen Takes Another Title.

LONDON, Feb. 6. — The Earl of Aberdeen, retiring Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, whose announced intention of assuming the new title of Marquis of Aberdeen and Tara provoked strong protests from Ireland, has reconsidered his decision in view of this criticism. It was announced yesterday that he would style himself the Marquis of Temair, a name which is anciently associated with the historic hall of Tara.

Overseas Contingent At Church

Members of Mounted Rifles and Infantry Attended Divine Service Yesterday a

"Lead Kindly Light ... amid the encircling gloom,
Lead Thou me on,
The night is dark and I am far from home,
Lead Thou me on."

"The grace of our Lord, Jesus Christ and the love of God and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with you all. Amen."

This was the text of Rev. Canon Davidson in his sermon at St. John's church yesterday morning to the members of the 8th Mounted Rifles and 39th Battalion Infantry, Third Canadian Contingent, when they attended divine service.

The volunteers for the Overseas Contingent, paraded at the armouries at 9.40 a.m., and headed by the 57th Regimental Band, in charge of Lieut. R. Glidden, marched to St. John's church for service at 10 o'clock.

The sermon was necessarily short to allow the members to attend other churches at 11 a.m., and to be finished before the regular morning service commenced in St. John's.

Rev. James Rollins of St. Andrew's President of the Peterborough Ministerial Association, read the second Epistle of Paul to the Corinthians, chapter 13, commencing at verse 5.

In his sermon Rev. Canon Davidson called upon the soldiers to accept God and always give Him a place in their lives. He said they would have many new temptations and difficulties, but they should never forget Him. In such a crisis, what better could they do than offer up a soldier's prayer. They would find that His words, 'Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world,' would hold true.

He asked them to fight, if they had to, not as brutes, but as gentlemen and Christians. They were to see in their fellowmen, not opponents, but representatives of a government and men who think they are in the right also.

They should never surrender their Christianity. The dangers of camp life lay immediately before them and might make or mar them. They should keep up their prayers. "You do not know when a man by your side may need a little help from you, a little inspiration, a little comradeship."

"You come from a city of Christian fellowship. Enjoy that fellowship!"

The service was closed with the singing of O, Canada, and the National Anthem. While the soldiers were filing out through the doors, the chimes sounded the air of the National Anthem.

The choir was composed of members of the 57th Regiment in uniform.

SUNDAY MORNING SERVICE AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

"The Coming of His Kingdom"

In the further study of "The Signs of the Times," which the Rev. Mr. Pogue is discussing in a series of special sermons, he sought, last Sunday morning, to make plain his position in reference to the doctrine of the second coming of Christ.

He chose as his text, Matthew 24-42—"Watch, therefore; for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come" which might be taken as one answer to the query of Christ's disciples, as expressed in the twenty-first chapter of Luke:

"And they asked Him, saying Master, but when shall these things be and what sign will there be when these things shall come to pass?

"And He said, take heed that ye be not deceived: for many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ and the time draweth near; go ye not therefore after them.

"But when ye shall hear of wars and commotions, be not terrified for these things must first come to pass; but the end is not yet.

"Then said He unto them, nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and great earthquakes shall be in divers places and famines and pestilence; and fearful sights, and great signs shall there be from heaven."

By way of introduction the speaker referred to the fact that Christian doctrines regarding the second coming of Christ had fallen into disrepute in late years because of the vagaries of interpretation associated with them, such as the forecasting of dates. What should be "our hope and joy, and our crown of rejoicing as we anticipate the presence of our Lord at his coming," has had an unpleasant sound in our ears as true believers. But if we accept the doctrine of his ascension we must also accept the promise of His coming.

One outcome of the present disturbances, as revealed in "The Signs of the Times" would be a new reverence for the Word of God; many are now beginning is study, even within the last few months, more particularly in reference to its prophecy. Indeed, many radical scholars, who, in the past have repudiated the views of the Bible, are now turning to the Scriptures, saying "the Scriptures are right, we were wrong."

Before entering upon the discussion of his text, proper, Mr. Pogue said that he had given this matter a great deal of study and thought; he had kept abreast with the teacings of modern scholars, and he was more convinced than ever of the utter inadequacy of those views which are not in accord with the divine revelation and prophecy as contained in the Bible.

Some years ago there was quite a furore over the teachings of the Rev. R. J. Campbell, with reference to this subject, and many regarded his position as untenable, but only six weeks ago he preached a remarkable sermon, wherein he expressed views entirely at variance with his former interpretation.

Truly men are being driven back on to God by the stress of the times. The theories of yesterday are entirely inadequate to-day.

In the Old Land there is a marked falling off of infidel publications since the war began. People are reading their Bibles now rather than the effusions of infidelity.

We are told that the Lord will come suddenly, as a thief in the night. "Watch, therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come."

"Then shall ye see the Son of Man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory."

"Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God. . . . For He must reign, till He hath put all enemies under His feet."

Those who uphold the theories of evolution claim that the race advances by small stages, small processes, requiring millions of years to bring it to perfection, but the Scriptures teach that the race can be saved only by Divine intervention, the world can be saved only by the coming of our Lord again. They also teach that the second coming of Christ will be unexpected, "in such an hour as ye think not;" it will be in the nature of a catastrophe, "for the Lord, Himself, shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first; then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air."

This does not imply that there shall be no development of Christianity, or that Christianity is a failure. On the contrary, it means that there will be a two-fold development, the evil beside the good, as taught in the parable of the tares. The good and the evil will grow together and come to maturity. The greater the success of Christianity, the more formidable will be the antagonism to it.

"The time" must be near at hand, especially as we view the wonderful progress made in missionary enterprises. "Go ye therefore into all the world and preach the Gospel," does not necessarily mean that everyone is going to be saved.

Christians must hope for less repose as the close of the age draws near. Opposition will never be more bitter than just before the coming of our Lord. The God-hating world powers will array themselves against those who will not bow down to their gods, causing much distress of nations, until evil will find its culmination in the person of an Antichrist.

Finally the second coming of Christ means the actual visitation and glorious return to earth of Him who nineteen hundred years ago came, but was rejected of men. When He comes He shall reign in righteousness, crowned with a crown of glory and honour, and not a crown of thorns, when shall take place the resurrection of the dead, and the translation of living saints.

It is not for us to dogmatize as to the character of His reign; but we do know that when He comes, he will bind the powers of darkness; when nations will be born in a day; when the Kingdom of God will no longer be a name, but a reality; no longer a kingdom of profession, but a kingdom of possession, a kingdom of righteousness.

Even so come, Lord Jesus, come quickly.

—Paul Penman.

United States In Prophecy

A goodly crowd was present last evening in the Woodmen Hall, over Nugent's drug store, to hear Elder Johnston on the subject entitled, "The United States in Prophecy." Both geographically and chronologically he he proved that no other power could be symbolized in the line of prophecy dealt with, and that this great republic was raised up by God as a place for those who fled from the persecutions of Rome in the time of the dark ages. It was because of the tyranny experienced at this time that the founders of this republic came over in the "Mayflower," in 1620, to establish a church without a pope and a government without a king. He referred to the two great fundamental principles embodied in the constitution which granted liberty to all both civilly and religiously.

But, Mr. Johnston said, that this very United States according to the prophecy, would repudiate its own constitution and that some time in the future it would be domineered by Rome. In fact he declared that this is even happening now, and that before very long it would cease to be Protestant. When this time arrives, as the prophecy declares, this very Protestant government would become a persecutor that church and state would unite. He referred to the evil of religious legislation and the unchristian operations of the Lord's Day Alliance in Canada. If even our fair Dominion does not want to revive the inquisition we want to see to it that we will discourage the work of the Lord's Day Alliance, and never mind having laws compelling people to go to church and be religious. If people would be religious of their own voluntary choice it is altogether wrong to coerce the conscience. A large crowd was present and Mr. Johnston promised to present many such interesting themes immediately following this.

Canadian Rear-Admiral Promoted.

OTTAWA, Feb. 8.—Rear-Admiral Kingsmill, of the Canadian navy, has been promoted to vice-admiral.

Vice-Admiral Charles Edmund Kingsmill was born at Guelph, Ont., July 7, 1855, and married a daughter of Walter Beardmore, Toronto. He served in the royal navy till 1908, when he accepted command of the marine service of Canada, and retired from the active list in order to retain the appointment. He resides in Ottawa. Admiral Kingsmill holds the Egyptian medal, bronze star, and is an officer of the French Legion of Honor.

Imprisoned In Ruins 25 Days.

ROME, Feb. 8.—Red Cross workers in the earthquake ruins at Paterno yesterday heard faint moans, and on delving into the debris excavated a man named Cairolo, who had been imprisoned there for 25 days. The man, who is 33 years old, had had nothing, but some water during this time. He was uninjured, and when taken to the nearest town was able to alight from the conveyance without assistance.

The Garden of Eden

Where It Is and What It Teaches

The George Street Methodist Church was filled last night with a large and appreciative audience who listened to a delightful sermon from the Pastor, the Rev. Mr. Peever, on the subject, "The Garden of Eden, Where it is, and What it Teaches". In two weeks, Mr Peever will enlarge on the same theme; his subject will be: "Eden's Serpent, Who it is, and What its Meaning."

The text was taken from the second Chapter of Genesis, eighth verse: "And the Lord God planted a garden eastward, in Eden; and there he put the man whom he had formed".

Geographical and Historical Setting.

The introductory chapters of the Book of Genesis, containing the delightful story of the creation, have a geographical as well as an historical setting, but no man knows the exact place nor yet the time. There may have been a great lapse of time from the beginning of the universe until the record was given; but, to us, it does not matter

Various places have been given as the probable location of the Garden of Eden, as suggested in the first chapter of Genesis. Some contend that it was situated in the Valley of the Nile, others in the valley of Jordan, while some maintain that it was farther east in the valley of the Euphrates; but students of ethnology assert that the valley of the Nile was the cradle of the race, basing their ground of contention on the fact that the root ideas of race and language have emanated from that centre. However, no one can tell with any degree of certainty the exact geographical or historical setting of Eden.

The language of these chapters, abounding as they do in beautiful Oriental imagery, picture great moral truths, the history of mankind.

The inspired writers threw on canvas in picture form their conception of the beginning of the human race. They used these pictures, parables or illustrations much in the same manner as Jesus used parables while on earth to make clear His teachings. No better setting can be found anywhere than that contained in the first chapters of Genesis, of the origin of man, and the entry of sin into the world.

But these pictures had great fundamental facts behind them.

De Vinci's great painting, "The Last Supper," and Reuben's picture of Jesus being taken down from the cross, which now hangs in the City of Antwerp, both stand out in wonderful appeal. The artists drew on their own imagination, but they had historical data, historical facts behind them. So it is in the realm of literature, great epics have facts upon which they are built. So it is in divine revelation, the Scriptures have great facts, great fundamentals behind them. Turning to the last chapters of Revelation we read "And I, John, saw a new heaven and a new earth. . . . the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven." The inspired writer used imagery, with which we are familiar: city, walls, streets, river, tree of life, to portray great moral ideas in picture form. To rightly understand the Scriptures we must give imagery its proper place, but we must not forget that great facts lie behind them all.

Reverting to the subject of his sermon, Mr. Peever said the inspired writer had used an ordinary picture of Oriental life, a garden, probably the oasis of a desert, where abounded vegetation and greenness in its most luxuriant form. The date palm typified the tree of life. Not a single part of it goes to waste. The leaves are used in every conceivable form, as well as the fruit. Oils are extracted, and even the kernels are ground up for fodder. It might be said to have been the staff of life of the Oriental. So important was it that a man was taxed according to the number of palm trees in his posession. It had become a national emblem.

Such, then, was the appropriate setting of the cradle of the race.

Moral Truths and Teachings of This Picture.

Some would have us cut out this picture altogether, saying it is not true, that it does not agree with science.

The Word of God was never intended to teach geology. It was never intended to teach the age of the earth or the age of man.

If we wish to know the great moral truths, the great moral revelation, the relation of the history of this universe to ourselves, to our tempter and to sin there is no page in literature so simple, so powerful, positive, so appealing as the first chapters of Genesis as they picture marred Eden.

"In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth"; back of the creation of the universe is an infinite intelligence, God, who created man in His likeness and image. Therefore, there is a power within us making for righteousness. Man next to God; and beside man a tempter, whom we all have felt.

Into this beautiful garden entered the tragedy of life. In a small circle three persons: God, man, and the tempter It is the same to-day. Our Eden surrounds us just as the Garden of Eden surrounded the first than. We are creatures of God, made in His own image, creatures of thought, power and immortality.

The universe pays tribute to man's greatness. Man does things with intelligence like unto God. Are we going to maintain ourselves in that greatness or are we going to thrust God outside of our lives and trust to blind fate? If we believe in God, that infinite intelligence over all things, we array ourselves beside Him to carry out His purposes.

The Garden of Eden is within our own bosoms. The tragedy of life is being enacted there. Either we harken to God and remain in the Garden, or we listen to the tempter and are driven out; and the only way of getting back is by repentance and believing in the Lord Jesus Christ.

Oh, that we would spare ourselves from marring that picture, our Garden of Eden! Oh, that we would stand side by side with God, and be master of our own destinies, preserve our high destiny, the high purpose that God intends for every man, for every member of Adam's race!.

A report of last night's service would be incomplete without remarking on the splendid congregational singing. This was most noticeable in the rendering of the closing selection, "O Canada."

Canadians are not lacking in patriotism, and in the opening strains the response was truly spontaneous: and it did not require very much imagination as one thought of our brave boys in the trenches in the "inferno" of Europe, and of the devastation of Belgium, to think of our fair Canada, the homeland that we love, as a veritable "Garden of Eden"

Bishop O'Brien at the Church of the Sacred Heart, Sunday

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien was present at the 10.30 o'clock mass at the Church of the Sacred Heart on Sunday. Among the announcements he presented a detailed statement of the finances of the church, showing an existing debt of $15,000 on the property. The cost of the church up to the time of its opening was $68,000. Since then there had been other expenditures, including the purchase of the land immediately east of the church, the making of boulevard, curbing, stone wall, lawns and other exterior and interior work, including the organ, had totalled $80,000.00. During the past year a two room extension had been made to the Sacred Heart school. The cost of the church and been met in a manner that had been felt by no one. Previous to the erection of the church the Sunday offerings at St. Peter's Cathedral for a year or two had begun a building fund; the usual Sunday offerings at the Sacred Heart church had been entirely devoted to the fund; the annual lawn social had materially assisted; several bequests and the other detailed receipts were given by Bishop O'Brien, who stated that everything the congregation had undertaken was marked with most gratifying results. The first year of Rev. J. J. O'Brien's astorate had shown continued progress. The number of communions had shown a marked increase, particularly the first Friday devotions to the Sacred Heart, and the parochial custom of three successive days' communion, including the first Friday in each month, found an increasing number of communicants. In every department the Sacred Heart parish had been making steady progress.

Masked Bandits Rob Train.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 8.—The Palm Beach Limited train of the Florida East Coast Railroad, bound from Jacksonville to Miami, was boarded by four masked men at Stuart, Fla., early last night and male passengers on the observation platform robbed of money and jewelry.

Revolvers were turned on the brakeman, and he was ordered to pull the bell cord to stop the train. When it slowed down the bandits jumped to the ground and escaped. Posses are searching for the men.

The Kaiser and The War

By Rev. F. A. Conners of the George Street City Mission

The appended poem by Mr. F. A. Conners of this city was given by the author at the close of his Sunday evening sermon at the City Mission, 388½ George street:

Will we ever know the reason,
Why the God of Love and Truth,
Has permitted so much evil,
To blight and blast our Youth,
Why so many hearts are aching,
By the pangs of sin are torn,
And this awful war now raging,
In the dawn of Heaven's morn?

Will we know in life's short season,
Why in sorrow here we'er bent,
With this crisis thrust upon us,
And the very Heaven's rent,
By the dreadful roar of cannon,
And the thunder of the shell,
On our thoroughfare to Heaven,
We should come so near to Hell?

Yes, there's just one explanation,
And I'll give it now to you,
Though so many now profess Him,
There are still a very few,
Who are seeking to exalt Him,
By a life of self denied,
But instead their whole attention,
With the world is occupied.

It's the law of cause and action,
That's as old as man himself,
And instead of God being worshipped,
Its a bowing to the pelf,
And the lusts of men are fostered,
In a polished sort of way,
Till Hell is on the play-ground,
Of the School of Christ to-day.

Now to fret and stew and worry,
Isn't going to help it's true,
And if you want the answer,
I'll tell you what to do,
Turn you o'er the page of reason,
And you'll find it there so plain,
That for pleasure, wealth and honour,
This world has gone insane.

And the Kaiser is a sample,
Of that reckless, Godless clan,
He's despised the God of justice,
And ignored the rights of man,
He's a liar and a traitor,
And a monument of shame,
He has outraged civilization,
And has cursed the nation's name.

He has plunged the world in sorrow,
By his treacheries for gain,
In his air for exaltation,
He has reached the lowest plain;
He's a stench now in the nostrils,
Of Man and God Himself,
He's the emissary of Satan,
And the imp of Hell itself.

Now there's but one alternative,
That is left for you and me,
And in the words of Jesus,
It's as plain as plain can be,
And to all who will accept Him,
He has promised life, and peace,
But to those who still reject Him,
Their sorrows shall increase.

For We'ar in the days of sorrow,
Its the ages of greed for pelf,
Foretold by Phophet, Apostle,
And the Son of God Himself;
Now as the day's approaching,
And you see these things appear,
Remember then His warning,
"Know that the end is near."

Facts About the War

Secretary of Board of Trade Has Received Copies of Bulletin Issued by Paris Chamber of Commerce

Mr. A. N. Allison, secretary of the Board of Trade, has received a number of copies of a bulletin, entitled "Facts About the War," published by the Paris Chamber of Commerce. While the supply lasts they will be distributed upon application to Mr. Allison, at his office, 160 Charlotte Street. The publication is not minutely comprehensive in its treatment of the war, which it does attempt to narrate in detail, but it will prove interesting reading. It treats the situation up to December 1st. The German plan of campaign, it says, has seven far-reaching reverses to score:

The defeat of the intended sharp attack on Nancy;

Of a rapid march to Paris;

Of the encircling of our left wing in August;

Of the same encircling manoeuvre in November;

Of breaking through our centre in September;

Of an attack along the coast-line to Dunkirk and Calais;

Of the attack on Ypres.

The bulletin also gives considerable financial information.

ONTARIO AND THE NICKEL QUESTION

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 8.—"Does not touch the vital point," seems to be the general verdict of public opinion as heard on the street to-day in regard to the Ontario Government's announcement of the intention to appoint a commission to look into the nickel question. As the Toronto World points out, this commission, which, according to the statement of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, is to investigate the question of whether the nickel could be refined in Ontario, does not touch the point of whether Ontario nickel to-day is going to the enemy. That is the emergency situation which demands immediate attention and which the appointment of this commission in Ontario will not cover. Even on the question of the refining of nickel in Ontario, it will be a long time before the commission can take evidence and reach any decision. In the meantime the fundamental consideration of whether the nickel of Ontario is reaching Germany is still untouched.

Although public opinion as far as it can be gauged agrees that the appointment of this commission is good as far as it goes, yet it also seems to be of the opinion that the whole business is simply an attempt to shelve the real difficulty for the time being and to quiet the public's mind. In other words, some people believe that the appointment of this commission is intended to help the present nickel interests.

One of the sifinificant features in the situation is the Toronto World's reference to Hon. Mr. Hanna and his connection along with Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., with the new International Petroleum Company, whose shares were listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange this week. Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., and Hon. W. J. Hanna are two of the directors of this company which is connected with the Imperial Oil Company, "which," according to the World, "is one of the Canadian forms of the Great Standard Oil Company."

Now it is well known that Mr. Wallace Nesbitt represents the petroleum and nickel interests. As the World points out, there is no objection in this but, as the World says, "we do not think that a Minister of the Crown can travel with him as a co-director or as an active worker in companies that vitally affect the public." This statement, coming from a Conservative newspaper which frankly is friendly on general policy with Mr. Hanna, is surely most significant. It raises afresh the whole question of Hon. Mr. Hanna's relation to the Standard Oil Company and now his relations with Hon. Wallace Nesbitt in his oil and nickel interests.

MR. E. R. WOOD AS A TELEGRAPH OPERATOR

Interesting Experiences Connected With the Life of Former Peterborough Man

A FINANCIAL AUTHORITY

Some years ago a heavily ladened Pullman train with its sleeping passengers was threading its way northward through the night to the Muskoka Lakes. At a little wayside station the engineer found the signal against him and was forced to stop his train. The conductor approached the little station house only to find the door locked and the place in darkness. It was imperative that the train should get through and make the boat connections, but how to get instructions to pass that signal was another problem. At last a passenger emerged from one of the berths and made inquiries regarding the delay. The situation was explained to him. He got off the train and with the assistance of the conductor clambered through the fanlight over the door, sat down at the telegraph key and called the next divisional point. To the operator there he explained the situation and in a little while instructions came back authorizing the train to proceed. The improvised telegraph operator, in the person of E. R. Wood, climbed back into his berth and went to sleep.

The president of the Dominion Securities Corporation, of the Central Canada Loan & Savings Company, vice-president of the National Trust and of the Brazilian Traction, director of the Canada Life, of the Bank of Commerce, of the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Dominion Steel Corporation, and of a score of other big financial and industrial corporations, commenced his business life as a telegraph operator. Mr. Wood was born in Peterborough in 1868 and educated in the public schools of that town. He entered the services of the Central Canada Loan & Savings Company (a Cox company) in 1884, later becoming its president and general manager, and probably the greatest authority on bonds in Canada. Mr. Wood undoubtedly received a great deal of assistance from the late Senator Cox. They both came from the same town and Cox, who had an unfailing instinct for selecting able assistants, found in young Wood a man after his own heart. He was put in touch with company after company controlled by Senator Cox until he became as powerful a man in the financial councils of the country as his former employer.

The record of bond sales compiled each year by Mr. E. R. Wood is looked upon as the standard bond publication in Canada. He has made a study of all kinds of bonds and one of his companies (the Dominion Securities Corporation) is one of the biggest bond selling houses in the country. His interest in life, however, does not by any means begin and end with bonds. No man in Toronto, or for that matter in Canada, gives a larger proportion of his time, counsel or income to worthy objects than the subject of this sketch. He has been a generous giver to Victoria College; to the Toronto General Hospital and to the Toronto Y.M.C.A. He has been president of the later institution for some years and takes the keenest possible interest at all times in the welfare of young men.

E. R. Wood, as a director of a score or more companies and interested in many charitable and educational enterprises is naturally an exceedingly busy man, yet he has never lost the genial manner which made him friends and which contributed to his own rapid rise as a young man. He is a human sort of chap despite the fact that he knows a whole lot about bonds and can talk finance until he makes his listener dizzy. To young men especially he is a warm friend. He has not forgotten the fact that he himself started at the foot of the ladder and that he owes some of his success in life to the helping hand of another man. He is not a bit ashamed of the fact he commenced life as a telegraph operator and if anything were to go wrong with the affairs of the country he would be quite willing to climb through a transom and telegraph ahead to have the right of way cleared.—Journal of Commerce.

PREPARING FOR MEN'S BANQUET

Chief Howard Puts Thirty Men Through a Preliminary Drill

On Friday evening, at his residence, Bolivar Street, Chief Howard put some thirty men of the Charlotte Street church through a splendid drill in the culinary art in preparation for the men's banquet in the lecture room of the church on Tuesday evening, Feb. 16th. In an address to the gathering, Chief Howard laid stress on the fact that safety first should be the motto of the men and that only things made by the men were to be used in the magnificent bill-of-fare. The speaker said that he was hopeful of a peaceful time, but as there had never been such an event before in Peterborough, it was hard to tell how the ladies would act. He assured them that he would have Chief Thompson present to prevent any disturbance.

Everybody will be admitted free, but will have to deposit 25c. as a guarantee of good behaviour. The inner guards will probably retain the guarantee.

Arrangements will be made to have physicians, ambulances and the pull-motor in readiness for any emergency.

Everyone present at the drill Friday says except Chief Howard. It was the opinion of all present that the Chief's programme could not be excelled, and if the banquet is as successful as the preliminary drill, it would be a stupendous affair.

ENGINEER RECOMMENDS

the wheels, and which has sluice-ways to run off the floating ice. The upstream end of the forebay is quite wide, and as the velocity is very low at this point it soon freezes over and prevents the formation of frasil. The racks are enclosed in part of the power house itself, but are not heated in any other way. The front wall of the power house is about 20 feet in front of the racks and extends down into the water so as to intercept floating ice and debris.

This plant has been running for a few months only, and as yet have had no troubles from frasil. They have no special appliances for fighting it, but rely on the rush of the main river past their headgates to carry the ice down the stream.

Montreal Water and Power Company.

This firm supplies Westmount and part of Montreal with water. They do all their pumping with electric and steam turbine driven pumps. They are installing a mechanical filtration plant, and the visit was profitable, although not bearing on the ice question.

At Ottawa the plants visited were the E. B. Eddy Company, J. R. Booth Company, Ottawa and Hull Electric Company, Ottawa Electric Company, Ottawa Electric Railway Company, Ottawa Waterworks, and Hull Waterworks.

E. B. Eddy Company.

At this plant they have gone to considerable expense and have roofed over the forebay for quite a distance in front of the wheels. Waste steam from the dryers is turned in under this in large quantities, and this passes through the racks on the way to the openings in front of the forebay.

No steam is used on the wheels, the claim being made that the steam under the roof of the forebay warms up the water so that no ice will clog either the wheels or the racks.

Ottawa and Hull Electric Company.

This plant immediately adjoins that of the Eddy Company. They have five units, three of which are old wheels with the Murphy system adapted to them, and the other two were built with the Murphy system as a part of the design of the wheel. In the new power house which they are building adjacent to their present one, all four units will have the Murphy system installed, being especially built for it, with the wickets cored out for the passage of the steam. Mr. Wm. Kennedy, Jr., is the Consulting Hydraulic Engineer for this plant as well as their former one.

The racks here are not protected in any way, and for raking the ice off, electrical power rakes are used. These appear to be very efficient.

There was a good opportunity of observing the different methods of ice prevention at these two plants on the morning of January 23nd, when each had trouble with frasil.

At the Ottawa and Hull Electric Company's plants they had two men using the power rakes and they were able to keep the racks clear. They did not have to use the steam in the wheels, as the latter did not plug up at all.

At the Eddy Company's plant they had trouble at just the same time, their racks starting to freeze up. To get at the racks they had to lip up the trapdoors that cover the openings over them, and when they did so the hot steam rushed through in such quantities that the men could not work with any efficiency. There had been no by-pass provided in the steam pipe leading to the forebay, so that the steam could not be turned aside.

The load sheets at the Ottawa and Hull Electric Company's plant indicated that they did not have to take off any of their load during the trouble, but I was informed that the Eddy Company had to shut down part of their pulp mill, which is the larger portion of the load.

J. R. Booth Company.

This plant has a covered forebay, much longer than that of the Eddy Company. Their racks are covered, but they do not use steam under the cover. They have very little trouble with frasil.

Ottawa Electric Company, and Ottawa Electric Railway Company.

These two plants are under the supervision of Mr. W. H. Baldwin, who has been in charge of them for over twenty-five years. It was at these plants that Mr. Murphy did his experimenting, and Mr. Baldwin assisted him in most of his experiments.

The latter plant has the Murphy system installed in the wheel, while the former is without it. As far as I could learn there was not much difference in the amount of trouble each had. As they were side by side the conditions were identical.

Mr. Baldwin says that they never use steam in the wheels until they get frozen up, when it assists in freezing them. He pins his faith to power driven rakes to keep his racks clear. These are similar in design to those of the Ottawa and Hull Electric Company's.

These companies have installed three steam turbine driven generators, and they are independent of the water power.

Ottawa Waterworks.

This plant has no protection for its racks and does not use steam in the wheels. They take the water for the wheels and pumps from a covered aqueduct about a half mile long, fed from a large bay in the bank of the Ottawa above the Chaudiere Falls, so that they do not have much trouble from frasil.

Hull Waterworks.

At this plant the Murphy system is installed in the wheels, but the man in charge said they didnt use it very much. The forebay is deep and quiet and soon freezes over, and as they draw the water from the river above the falls they escape frasil that forms there. The racks are not protected in any way.

While in Ottawa I had a talk with Mr. Murphy about his system, and he gave me some particulars about it, which are practically the same as in his address to the McGill Engineering Society, of which you have a copy. He was quite sure that the installation of his devices would absolutely prevent any shut downs from frasil.

When visiting the various plants I endeavoured in every case to talk with the man in actual charge of the wheels, and to get his opinion of the various devices used to combat the troubles.

The men in charge of the plants where the Murphy system were installed were of the opinion that it was useless when any large amount of the frasil was running, and that it was only of use after the wheels were clogged up, in removing the ice that had collected. These men said that the most efficient device was the large power rake, as with this they were able to keep the racks clear, and cut up the frasil so that it would pass through the wheels.

There is not sufficient flow in the Otonabee to adopt the plan used on the St. Lawrence and other large rivers, where the various power houses use only a small proportion of the stream, and where the frasil is carried past the intake by the main flow.

On account of its expense we cannot adopt the plan of the E. B. Eddy Company, nor are we absolutely sure in view of the facts reported above that it is entirely efficient. The Eddy plant has been running only about a year and one cannot judge intelligently of the results of any scheme without at least five years' observations.

In view of the experiences of these men with whom I have talked, I am of the opinion that to get absolute continuity of power under all circumstances it will be necessary to install some kind of auxiliary steam or other power driven pumps.

Yours respectfully,
R. L. DOBBIN,
Waterworks Superintendent.

BRITISH FORCE ENEMY TO ATTACK OVER SOFT GROUND

By Inundating the Ground Around El Kantara, the British Force Gained a Strong Advantage and Easily Repulsed the Turkish Attack

CAIRO, Feb. 8. — In the engagement at El Kantara, on the Suez Canal, the Turks made their first attack before dawn. Owing to the inundations made by the British, the enemy was forced to advance on a narrow front over very soft ground, where some of them were stuck waist deep in the mud. The attack had failed before dawn came.

At daybreak another attack was pushed from the southeast. From all accounts the enemy never had a chance of succeeding.

The Syrian troops came bravely on, but the British fire was too much for them. A shell from one of the warships wiped out a party of officers. A low ridge where the Turks were attempting to entrench was swept by artillery. The advance of the Indian troops completed the work of the guns, and by three o'clock in the afternoon all was over.

The next day the British, pushing out from the canal, found the hostile column had retreated, and even abandoned a position several miles to the east, which had been strongly entrenched as a point d'appui.

Since then prisoners with rifles and other trophies have been streaming in. The prisoners, some of whom expected to be delivered up to torture, were delighted to find themselves well treated and well fed.

The impression that the enemy's advanced guard is in full retreat from the vicinity of the canal is confirmed by the latest available information.

Turkish Report.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 8.—(Via Amsterdam to London.)—The official statement issued yesterday by the Government says:

"Our vanguards arrived in the region east of the Suez Canal and drove back the British outposts against the canal. Battles took place around Ismailia and El Kantara, and are still proceeding."

BLUNDER UNEQUALLED SINCE NAPOLEON DEFIED THE WORLD

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 28—Men here who are directly concerned in the management of great steamship companies, as well as authorities on international law, regard Germany's effort to extend a "war zone" over all British waters as a blunder unequalled since Napoleon's defiance of the world. They say it would be as futile.

The Philadelphia representatives of the International Mercantile Marine, and the Scandinavian-American line, the two steamship companies most vitally affected, were apparently unwilling to comment on the situation pending advices from their chiefs. Scandinavian-American vessels from this and other ports pass regularly over the routes the Germans seek to close. The International Mercantile Marine is a British-American corporation owning many ships now engaged in passenger and freight traffic to and from British ports.

Men familiar with shipping said, however, that any efforts of Germany consistently to enforce its zone decree would necessarily be opposed by every neutral country.

Mr. John Fredic Lewis, a lawyer familiar with international law and usage, said:

"A belligerent nation has a legal right to institute an embargo against one or more ports of another nation after notifying neutral nations of that decree. Also, it is a generally recognized principle of international law that the validity of embargo does not rest upon a mere declaration, but must be followed by making the embargo effective German, in my opinion, has the right, therefore, to declare an embargo against one or more ports of England or France, but I do not believe she has any right to declare a general embargo, as she apparently is trying to do, against the whole English Channel and the neighbouring waters of Enland and France. That would be, in effect, to stop all neutral commerce throughout these waters and is like throwing down the gauntlet to every neutral nation whose ships use these routes.

"When Napoleon attempted an embargo on all British ports the United States Government decided that the embargo decreed by him was not binding unless effective, and it was not generally recognized."

LONG, HARD STRUGGLE FOR GERMANY

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 8—The Germans still may be, as they protest, confident of their ability to defeat and crush the combined Allies; they may continue to take an optimistic view of the position; they may regard, or preend to, the future hopefully, but there is less bombastic talk than three months ago. The Germans generally speaking, have abandoned the idea of a comparatively short war and now look forward to a long and hard struggle Outside of the highest and best informed circles where there can hardly be any doubt regarding the outcome of the world war, the great bulk of Germans reckon on the triumph of their own country over her manifold enemies.

They explain the pause in their advance, both in the east and in the west, by the wintry weather and by strategic considerations not divulged to the public, and also by the desirability of waiting for the new armies now in course of training in Germany. Germans are taught to believe that their armies are merely waiting for the spring, which will bring them favourable weather and enormous reinforcements, in order to resume the offensive against the British, French and Belgians, and also the Russians. The present delay, although disappointing, is not regared as serious.

BRITISH GAIN GROUND

Brickyard is Captured at the Point of the Bayonet

PARIS, Feb. 8.—The capture of a brickyard held by the Germans near La Bassee by British troops in a brilliant charge and the gaining of more ground in the Champagne district by French forces by the display of much bravery are the features of the operations on the western front this week end. The brickyard was situated between the canal at La Bassee and the Bethune road, and was about two-thirds of a mile east of Cuinchy. From it the Germans were able to keep up a galling fire on the British lines and it was the scene of much sniping. This success makes the way easier for further advances.

North of Beausejour in the Champagne district the Germans made an attack on the French with about 500 men. This was repulsed. The French troops gained ground in this area, to the north of Mesniges.

The district north of Soissons has also been heavily bombarded by the French great guns and if the opportunity is favorable another advance may be attempted in this region, as soon as the floods in the River Aisne sufficiently subside.

Several minor attacks of the Germans near Nieuport were all repulsed. The Germans admit that the French and British troops have got south of the canal at La Bassee and have occupied a trench. The Germans are launching attacks to try to regain the lost ground.

Between Arras and Rheims artillery has kept up its roar without ceasing. In this exchange the French guns have the advantage. Between the Argonne and the Vosges a fog has hampered artillery work and the battle has taken a rest.

Further Casualties

Six Patricias Killed in Action and One Dead From Wounds

OTTAWA, Feb. 8.—The casualties which were reported here Saturday and Sunday are the heaviest since the first of the Canadians reached the firing line. Seven of the Princess Pats are killed, making 16 now altogether.

These last casualties are believed to be the result of the hard fighting near La Bassee a short time ago, when the Germans made a desperate attempt to break through the lines of the allies.

ATTACK WAS WEAKER

Last Monday's Assault at La Bassee Was Promptly Repulsed

LONDON, Feb. 8. A graphic description of the trench warfares which has prevailed on the western front for many weeks, is given by the British "eye-witness" in his description of German attacks on British lines and British counter-attacks which were made last Monday. He says:

"The Germans again attacked south of La Bassee canal, but not in such strength as on previous occasions. Fighting began in the early hours of the morning with an assault on a small trench close to the canal. This was successful, two local counter-attacks carried out by us failing to regain the ground lost.

"When daylight came, however, our artillery opened such an accurate fire on the enemy, that their position became untenable. A stronger counter-attack then was delivered and our men, rushing forward, not only drove the Germans from the trench they had captured, but seized another post on the enemy's side of it on an embankment of the canal. There were a succession of German posts on this embankment, and we had established ourselves in one of them.

"Our supports then came up and passing through our firing line holding the first of the enemy's posts, rushed on to the second driving out the garrison at the point of the bayonet. Thence our men were enabled to take in the flank of one of the enemy's trenches to the south. Along this they fought their way, throwing hand grenades until they had dislodged the Germans on a considerable length. We thus established ourselves firmly in an advantageous position on the canal bank and in adjoining trenches. During this action we captured 14 prisoners, many wounded and two machine guns. Our losses were not severe but the enemy suffered heavily especially from our artillery fire."

Damaged Cruisers On Stocks.

ROTTERDAM, Feb. 8. — The Derfflinger and Seydlitz, two of the German battle cruisers engaged in the recent North Sea fight, are now on the stocks at Hamburg, and the Kaiser, who went there especially to see the damage to the vessels, ordered the Derfflinger must be got ready for sea again in six weeks. For this purpose 1,500 men are now working on her day and night. The damage to the Seydlitz is so extensive that she will take tow weeks to repair.

Tetanus Germs In Earth.

LILLE, France, Feb. 8.—(Via London.)—The German army surgeons have held a conference here relative to tetanus which has become very prevalent among the German wounded. Papers were read to show that the earth in this region is infested with the tetanus germ, like upper Alsace, and that even the slightest contact of wounds with the earth is dangerous.

Beware of Trouble

It is the wisest thing you can do to have your watch examined at this time of the year.

The cold weather is apt to harden the oil that strains the mainspring and affects the motion.

People usually wait until something breaks. The other way is the cheapest in the end and a little attention at the right time saves the watch.

EX-WARDEN SCOTT DECLARES REFUGE CAPABLY MANAGED

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—As I have heard considerable talk lately about the House of Refuge and its management at Lakefield, I thought it would not be out of place for me to have a little say in this controversy, having been on the Board of Management for three years, two years as chairman of the board. Now this kicking we hear so much about did not start just now, but has been going on more or less since the 6th of January, 1907, the day the house was first opened to receive inmates. As one kicker kicked himself to pieces there was always another to take his place with less sense than the other fellow. Now there is no one has any idea what work there is to be done in looking after that place without they have seen for themselves. Who has to wait on these old people when they take sick night and day, some of the old women lying perfectly helpless having to be waited on the same as a mother would care for her baby. And I have known some of them who weighed nearly 200 pounds, who had to be lifted and turned to change the linen? Who has to wait, also, on the old men, when they are sick? Who has to do the cooking and baking? Who has to do all the house cleaning with all the high metal ceilings, with their hundreds of grooves and corners, and hundreds of other jobs that have to be attended to? Who, yes, who? Mrs. Beavis and her daughter, Maud. Now regarding the old women who are asked to do a little, what do they do but peel a few potatoes, wash a few dishes and, perhaps, sweep out the basement? There are only about four who work, one about 85 years old, two about 50, and one about 55 years of age. All strong able women. Are they not better doing a little, so long as they are well?

I claim that Mrs. Beavis and Miss Beavis are doing more than they should do trying to keep down expenses, for they will never be thanked for it by some people, especially the kickers from East Peterborough. When I visited the home at Lindsay I found they employed trained nurses to look after the sick, and the matron instead of being a drudge was going around dressed (?) up looking after the work, her proper place. Now a word about the farm. Where is there another 100 acre farm in the county that could keep a family of 40, supply them with all the butter, eggs, milk, fruit, potatoes, everything needed, except groceries, meat and bread, and still dispose of an average between $800 and $900 dollars every year? I could go on and mention other things too numerous for this time.

Any one wishing to enter into this controversy, I will stay with them.

Yours truly,
ROBERT N. SCOTT,
Smith.

NORTHERN FRANCE, Feb. 7.—The official communique indicates that artillery combats which have been taking place between Ypres and Nieuport have had a good result. These rather summary indications are confirmed from an excellent source and some details can be given of the fighting during the last 48 hours in Flanders. For the first time, to the south of Dixmude, the British have been able after a violent cannonade, to clear one of the arms of the Yser and establish themselves right against the German trenches, which until now were separated from the most advanced Belgian trenches by several hundred metres.

Between Dixmude and Ramscappelle the Germans have renewed their efforts to carry the trenches with the help of rafts. With matchless courage the Germans advance under cover on their rafts, which are armed with mitrailleuses. They offer a certain mark and one by one the unfortunate men are picked off by Belgian snipers behind the mud walls. To the north east of Ramscappelle it is learned that the Belgians have taken a German trench and observation post. To the south of St. Georges at last the Belgian and French troops have succeeded in forcing a passage to the west of the Great Dune.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 7.—The distress among the populace at Cologne is especially marked. The municipality instituted a sale at which the poor might buy ten pounds of potatoes about 4 cents cheaper than the prevailing rate in the provision stores. Twelve hours before the hour announced for the opening of the sale an enormous crowd had gathered. As soon as the doors opened there was a frightful crush. A number of fights took place, several women fainted and the police could do nothing. It was found necessary to close the doors of the place at once.

ROTTERDAM, Feb. 7.—The Derfflinger and Seydlitz, two of the German battle cruisers engaged in the recent North Sea fight, are now on the stocks at Hamburg, and the Kaiser went out there especially to see the damage done to the vessels, ordered the Derfflinger must be got ready for sea again in six weeks. For this purpose 1500 men are now working on her day and night. The damage to the Seydlitz is so extensive that she will take at least ten weeks to repair..

BERLIN, Feb. 7.—The latest regulation of the Federal Council permits municipalities to expropriate amounts of flour exceeding 25 kilograms which is in the possession of individuas. While the regulation is not mandatory it is expected that municipalities will take advantage of the outhorization it conveys. Bread cards entitling the holder to a ration of wheat bread will be issued in Greater Berlin.

"SCHOOL DAYS"

When "School Days" comes to town there will be a general rejoicing among the young as well as the old, and from all indications there will be a general rush to the box-office for kiddies know that when "School Days" is slated to appear, there is a gala day gambol and that they are sure to have the time of their lives. The management of "School Days" this season has adde a lot of new songs that are of the whistley sort, and that come to stay forever. The production is an exact reproduction of the original Gus Edwards' performance that took place in New York and caused thousands and thousands to laugh during the past several seasons. This is the first time that this famous play, that pertains to the days when we were school kids, has toured in anything but the week stands, the reason being that the three companies that have heretofore played this unexcelled piece have been booked solid for the entire season and the remand had been so great that it was impossible to reach towns of less than 100,000, the owners having no desire to endanger the play that bids well to live forever, and did not place small, inefficient companies on the road that would be called after this production yet not even resemble it. They had a greater aim and believed that theatregoers will appreciate their object when they stop to think. The men and women who attend the theatre, can now say "Well, even if we had to wait for three seasons, we know that we are seeing the same that they had in New York and that the play is not old and stale."

This scenery finds new wardrobe and scenery, but an exact reproduction from the plates and models as they were when first produced. The date for the attraction here is Thursday night, Feb. 11th, and from the universal reports it will be one of the most important engagements that will be at the Grand Opera House this season.

A show having a world of entertaining features, a wealth of scenery and a garden of girlish beauties, who lend enchantment to the many scenes of the production of "School Days," is not saying a word too much of the original version of Gus Edwards' famous play.

Prices $1.00, 75c and 50c. Gallery 25c. Box seats $1.00. Box office open for sale of reserved seats Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

Tipperary Riled a German Would-Be Suicide

PASSAIC FALLS, N. J., Feb. 6—Charles Steinheaver stood at the brink of the falls, melo-dramatically gesturing his intent to commit suicide. As his swan song he sang "Die Wach am Rhein".

Patrolman John Jorlett saw him, but could not urge the would-be suicide to leave his perilous position.

Jorlett scratched his head, and started a competitive concert. He sang "It's a Long Way to Tipperary."

Steinheaver got mad, and came down to fight. He rests in jail, instead of the river.

MORE "STAGGERED" LAMPS LOCATED IN EAST CITY

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I read that our aldermen are greatly concerned about the "staggered" lamps on George Street. Now, if they would examine the lamps on Concession Street north they would find several of them have the "staggers" and have it bad, too. Even the snow plough driver finds it difficult to locate the sidewalk the street is so dark all this winter.

Yours,
ED. COURTNEY.

Will Inspect Dairy Farms

Sanitary Inspector Spence Commences His Periodical Inspection of Dairy Farms

Sanitary Inspector Spence is making an inspection of all the dairy farms in Peterborough County that are known to be supplying milk for local consumption. There are in the neighbourhood of fifty farms. Before the owners can qualify as milk producers they must show a clean bill of health. The stables in which the cows are confined must be kept scrupulously clean even to the exclusion of cobwebs and other such paural decorations that are invariably found in a cow stable. Particular attention must be paid to the floor. Among other things it must be kept clean and be amenable to drainage. If there happens to be an accumulation of dirt on the bovines it must be sponged off and remedial measures adopted to prevent its re-occurrence.

Withheld Licenses.

One means of enforcing sanitary conditions among the dairy farms is to withold milk licenses from those who obtain milk from dairy farms that are not inspected by the Sanitary Inspector. The latter is determined to see that the milk consumers of Peterborough are supplied with pure milk produced under sanitary conditions.

Sudden Death of Local Lady

Miss Ellen Sim Was Found Dead in Bed Yesterday Morning—Paralytic Stroke Caused Death

The many friends in the City of Miss Ellen Sim will regret to learn of her sudden death yesterday morning at her home, 243 McDonnel Street. When Miss Donnelly went into the room of Miss Sim yesterday morning about ten o'clock to see if she had overslept she was greatly shocked to find her lifelong friend dead in bed. A nearby nurse was summoned, also Dr. Scott. Death was pronounced by the physician as due to a paralytic stroke and in his opinion death had come about an hour earlier.

The deceased lady had apparently enjoyed the best of health. On Saturday afternoon she was out to tea and on her return chatted cheerfully with Miss Donnelly, who has recently made her home with her. She made no complaint of any illness and appeared to be in the best of health. Early yesterday morning she was up and attending the fires, after which she retired again. When Miss Donnelly came down to breakfast at about ten o'clock she found no one up and went to call Miss Sim. Upon knocking she received no answer and when she entered was greatly shocked to find that death's summons had come to her friend.

The late Miss Sim was born in Peterborough and has resided here all her life. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Sim, predeceased her many years ago, and her brother died in 1907. She is mourned by two sisters, Mrs. Wm. Hamilton, whose husband is Public School Inspector there, and Mrs. Wm. Turnbull, of Vancouver.

The deceased lady was a consistent member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church and her earnest Christian life and charitable disposition created for her a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

The funeral will take place at 2.30 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon from the late residence, 243 McDonnel Street to Little Lake cemetery for interment. Rev. Robert Pogue will conduct service at the house at 2 p.m.

KOLBERG WAS SUNK.

German Authorities Have Not Officially Admitted It, However.

LONDON, Feb. 8. — A Chronicle correspondent near the German frontier sends the following despatch:

"I learn that besides the published German naval losses there are eight destroyers and two submarines written off in the official lists. Two of the destroyers were lost in the channel on Sept. 4, three on the Dogger Bank, and another, the S-120, in Asiatic waters. One of the submarines sank off Westende and one near the Dogger Bank. Two others have been missing for over three weeks. The armed auxiliary cruiser Kreaprinzessin Cecilie is also scratched off the official table.

"The statement made by German bluejackets captured after the Heligoland naval battle of Jan. 24, that the light cruiser Kolberg sank is confirmed, though not publicly admitted in German naval circles. The armored cruiser Friederich Karl sank after striking a German mine in the Baltic on Nov. 18. It is known that this vessel has gone to the bottom, but the manner of its loss has never been definitely announced."

THE WORLD OF SPORT

BIG CROWD WILL SEE JUNIORS FIGHT FOR THE DISTRICT

Lindsay Team Accompained by Train Load of Fans Will be Here To-night for the First of Home and Home Games for the Title

The last time that the Lindsay and Peterborough Juniors played here the local youngsters were out of the running, and the Peterborough fans took little interest in the proceedings, with the result that there was only a corporals guard present when the Lindsay excursion crowd arrived. There will be a different story when the rivals clash to-night as the district championship hinges on the result of this series, and the fans are showing a decided interest in the result, now that the Intermediates are out in the cold and the Juniors are back in the running.

The last meeting between the two teams was the most interesting game of the season. To-night's battle should be even more exciting, as there is more at stake, while the Lindsay team is burning with the desire to revenge a defeat that put them out of the running for the time being. When this wish is added to the old time rivalry it should furnish interest enough for half a dozen games.

Captain Simpson's Pets are coming down on a special G.T.R. train, leaving Lindsay at 7 o'clock, and the game is called for 8.30 o'clock sharp. Several hundred fans will accompany the Midgets, and the presence of the hostile rooters will not detract any from the interest.

The Peterborough team will be the same as in the last game against Lindsay. Knapman, very fortunately, was used in only one of the games against Picton, and is therefore still eligible to play junior. The team practiced at 11 o'clock on Saturday night, and should be in good shape for the battle royal that is ahead of them to-night.

The teams will line up as follows:

Lindsay.	Peterborough.
Goal
O'Loughlin	Legros
Defence
Sandercock	Morrow
Flavelle	Long
Rover
C. Carew	Knapman
Centre
McElroy	Jackson
Right Wing
Griffis	Smyth
Left Wing
A. Carew	Richardson

Owing to the Lindsay uniforms being very similar to the Petes' blue and white outfits, the local team will wear red and black sweaters to-night.

HOCKEY GOSSIP

A very exciting game took place between St. Peter's school and Sacred Heart Saturday night from 5 to 6, the latter, St. Peters, winning by a score of 8—0. Line-ups:

St. Peter's—Goal, Connors; defence, Cherman and White; rover, Rutherford; centre, Hickey; right wing, Carew; left wing, Killoran.

A very fast but clean game of hockey was played between 6 and 7 p.m., Saturday evening, when the Brinton Carpet Factory team clashed with the South End seven, the latter winning by the close score of 5 to 3. The stars for the winning team were Neary, Sullivan and Kennealy and for the losers, Arthur Rose and S. Anderson. Lawrence Rose refereed the game to the satisfaction of both teams. The line-up was as follows:

On Tuesday night from 10 to 11 the Hack Men and Express Men will meet at the Brock Street rink to decide who shall provide the oyster supper. After reading the line-up of the two teams it will be readily acknowledged that they are past masters in their particular position. A long way past:

In a rivalry exhibition on rather slow ice at the Brock Street rink last Saturday from 5.30 to 6.30, the Creamery Department of the De Laval Co. again defeated the Separator of the De Laval Co. by the same score of last week, 3—1. The winners outclassed the losers at nearly all stages of the game. The line-ups:

The Belleville Intelligencer says:

Hats off to Picton! Every lover of the national game in Belleville will rejoice with the Bay of Quinte boys in their victory over Peterborough last night. If ever a team deserved a victory, that team is surely Picton. Every really and truly hockey fan loves clean hockey, and where will you find a cleaner bunch of lads than Picton, both on the ice and off the ice. They have had to contend with about everything that a team could be up against, and they won out—on the ice. That's the beauty of it—on the ice. Well, if good wishes go for anything, they'll cop the old mug in a walk-away, and bring the championship for once to the shoes of the old Bay. Go to. it lads. You've got the spirit that wins, and you will win.

CURLING

The Lindsay Warder observes:—"The Lindsay curlers speak in the highest terms of the Peterborough 'Spiel, and had a most enjoyable visit, being used 'white' by President Morrow and his followers."

The scheduled games will proceed as usual this week. A notice has been written on the board requesting members to play off any games that have been postponed.

A HISTORIC TRIANGLE.

Famous Battlefields of the Plains of Hesbaye, in Belgium.

Describing the road from Brussels to Liege, which skirts the plains of Hesbaye, Baedeker quotes the old proverb, "Qui passe dans la Hesbaye doit combattu lendemain"—"He who enters the Hesbaye is defeated the next day." Such was the reputation of the Hesbaine for strength and bravery.

The ancient province of Hesbaye is indicated on the maps as a triangle, some fifty miles from its base to its apex, Liege. The river Meuse, from Namur to Liege, forms its southern side; the railways from Liege through Tirlemont and Louvain to Brussels its northern side. A line from Namur north to Brussels is its base.

This triangle contains many famous battlefields. Besides Waterloo, there is Neerwinden, where Marshal Luxemburg defeated the allies under William II. of England in 1693 and where a century later the Austrians, under the Prince of Coburg, uncle of the late King Leopold of Belgium, defeated the French, led by Dumouriez and Louis Philippe.

Then there is Quatre Bras, where Ney's division fought part of the British army and its Germans and Belgian allies in 1815. There had been a battle the day before at Ligny, and on that June night the Prussians accomplished their unparalleled retreat from Ligny. Fleurus, near by, won fame in 1690 and 1794 and again in 1794.—Newark News.

DIGGING TRENCHES.

How Soldiers Under Fire Provide Their Own Cover.

In the reports of the war in Europe it is frequently stated that the advance lines of the armies threw up intrenchments, and it is difficult for the ordinary reader to understand how this is done, for to him anything like a fortification appears to be a matter of considerable time and labor, which could not be accomplished with the enemy raining shot and shell. What these protections are and how they are formed is clearly explained in the special war issue of a recent magazine.

The advancing line may have suffered great losses; or the ammunition may be running low. At all events, it finds itself unable to gain ground to the front. To retreat would be fatal. It must remain where it is—some of the men find natural cover, but many must provide artificial protection from the enemy's rifle fire. The men are laying down as flat as they can. To rise, even to a kneeling position, means death or a disabling wound. The necessity for cover under these circumstances caused men to devise the lying-down trench, sometimes called the skirmishers' trench. It gives cover from rifle fire to a man lying down, but is absolutely no protection from shrapnel bullets. The height of the parapet should not exceed one foot. The trench itself is about two and a half feet wide and about six feet long. It can be constructed by one man in soft ground, using the portable intrenching tools, in about 30 minutes. Under fire, as outlined in the foregoing, the man being compelled to remain in the prone position, he can mask himself from view in from 10 to 15 minutes and complete the trench in 40 to 45 minutes. In this position, and in view of the small number of portable intrenching tools carried by the company, the man would be obliged to use his knife bayonet to loosen the earth and the cover of his meat can to shovel it in front of him. One of the methods of working suggested by the text books is to dig a trench 18 inches wide as far back as the knees; roll into it and dig 12 wide alongside of it and down to the feet; then roll into the second cut and extend the first one back to the feet. This trench was seldom used in the Manchurian war. The best that can be said for it is that men can obtain slight cover under a hot fire with a minimum of casualties because it involves less digging, and they are partially protected from the very beginning of the work.

The World's "Victoria Crosses."

Great Britain may well feel proud and boast of her military decoration, the Victoria Cross, which is only conferred for conspicuous acts of bravery on the field of battle.

France confers her distinctive badges in the well-known form of the Legion of Honor.

Austria confers her Ancient Order of Marie Therese.

Germany's equivalent of the Victoria Cross is the Iron Cross, which, it is said, the Kaiser has already given to 32,000 of his soldiers in the present war.

Russia distributes her Cross of St. Vladimir sparingly to her successful soldiers.

Denmark has one of the most illustrious orders of chivalry, the Order of the Elephant, which ranks even with that of the Order of the Garter.

Spain is truly proud of her Order of the Golden Fleece, which is, and has been, most sparingly conferred.

Italy never fails to decorate her soldiers with her Military Medal of Merit.

Safely Over It.

Artist—I've spent a dollar car fare toting that sketch around town, yet you only offer me $2. Art Editor—Well, that's 100 per cent on your money, isn't it?—Life.

Good Cook.

"Have you a good cook, Mrs. Jabo?"

"The cook's good enough, but her cooking is awful."—Baltimore American.

Go You Know?

Most people are fond of good puzzles, and many are not entirely happy until they have solved them, but the man who resolves not to go to bed until he has found a divisor without a remainder (other than 1 and itself) for 1,111,111,111,111,111,111 will be able to earn a good living afterward as a sleeping wonder, for nobody in the world yet knows whether that number has a divisor or not.

Songs of a Nation.

Andrew Fletcher, a Scotch writer, who died in 1716, wrote to the Marquis of Montrose, the Earl of Rothes and others, "I once knew a very wise man that believed that if a man were permitted to make all the ballads of a nation he need not care who should make the laws of a nation."

OBITUARY

MR. GEO. L. TIGHE.

News has been received in the city of the death of Mr. George L. Tighe, a former resident of this city, at New Liskeard, Ontario. Deceased was born in Peterborough May 28, 1837. He removed to New Liskeard 15 years ago. For many years he was janitor of the Central School here.

There are left to mourn his loss a wife and one sister, Mrs. Wilson, Water street.

The remains are expected to arrive from New Liskeard this evening. There is no definite time set for the funeral which will take place under the auspices of the Salvation Army, from Belleghem's Undertaking Parlours, to Little Lake cemetery for interment.

JAMES LITTLE.

The late James Little, insurance agent, who passed away in Belleville, on Wednesday last, was born at Blue Lake, Brant County, 66 years ago. For a number of years he lived in Peterborough, but for the past 25 years he was a resident of Belleville, where all classes of citizens learned to esteem him for his integrity, his clearness of vision and his personal qualities. He married Miss Jessie Jack of this City, but she predeceased him some years ago. No family survives.

Two brothers and four sisters remain to mourn his loss: Michael of Pilot Mound, Manitoba; William of Boisseavain, Manitoba; Mrs. John Archibald and Miss Jane Little of Calgary; Mrs. Alex. Christie of Boston, and Mrs. Bessie McNair of Blue Lake, Ontario.

MRS. ANNA KEMP.

At the good old age of 86 years, Mrs. Anna Kemp, relict of John Kemp, passed away yesterday afternoon at the former residence of the late Edward Kemp, Lot 2, Con. 9, Douro Township.

The late Mrs. Kemp was born in Kent, England. Her maiden name was Miss Anna Simmons. She came to Canada in 1872, and has since resided in Douro.

Her husband, John Kemp, predeceased her in 1907.

There are left to mourn her loss four sons: Messrs. John and William, Peterborough; Lance and Thomas, Douro; two daughters, Mrs. Fred. Stinton, Badaxe, Mich., and Mrs. John Hamilton, Peterborough.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday, Feb. 10, at 2 p.m., from the late residence of the late Edward Kemp, Lot 2, Con. 9, Douro, to Little Lake Cemetery.

ECONOMIC EPIGRAMS.

Now that the real estate soap-bubblers are out of business in this country, we are again estimating the value of land by the number of smokestacks. There's more money in the Made-in-Canada habit than in the subdivision habit.

Canadians have never been known as the coolest people in the world: but we are entitled to a good bit of rope in blowing about the high quality and reasonable price of things made in Canada.

God made the farm; but man makes the factory The factories of Canada, dotted by Canadians, are entitled to the admiration of every farmer in Canada.

Half the world doesn't know how the other half lives, and half the people of Canada might just as well say they don't care how the other half lives, so long as they deliberately keep them out of work by buying imported goods.

A poor thing well done is better than a good thing done badly. But a good thing well done beats them both. When Canadian people buy Canadian-made goods it is a case of a good thing done to the King's taste.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. Wm. Saxsby is visiting his son, Pte. W. Saxsby, in Kingston for a few days.

Miss Ruby Comstock, of the Do Level staff, spent the week-end at her home in Norwood.

Miss Jean Horsfield and Miss Aileen Ahern are in Toronto, attending the millinery opening.

Mr. Roy Byers, of the Rexall Drug Store, spent the week-end, the guest of his parents, at Bailieboro.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Stocker announce the engagement of their daughter, Lilly, to Wm. M. Fletcher of Winnipeg, Man.

Mr. G. W. McKim spent Sunday in Kingston, visiting his son, Pte. W. McKim, who is in general hospital with tonsilitis.

Miss Marguerite Shevlin, of the T. C. Elliott millinery department, left this morning for Toronto, where she will spend a couple of weeks.

Mr. Arthur Hall, of Rochester, was home over Sunday. He stated that business shows great improvement. All the kodak factories begin full time to-day.

It will be of interest to the many friends of the Rev. D. N. McCamus, who has been stationed in London, Ont., for the past four years, to know that he has received a unanimous invitation to Blenheim for the next pastoral term.

Mr. George. Perks, of No. 6 Company Divisional Engineers, of the Second Contingent, now in training at Ottawa, spent the week-end in the City visiting friends and parents. It is probably the last visit he will make to Peterborough before going to the front.

Canadian Wins Prize

Fine Showing by the Ontario Inspector of Manuel Training

The Committee of United States University Professors, which conducts an annual essay contest, open to the inhabitants in Canada and the United States, has just announced its decision for the year 1914.

A prize of $500 has been awarded to Albert H. Leake, of Toronto. This gives to Canada a victory over many of the best students of economics and education in the United States. Mr. Leake is inspector of manual training and household science for the Department of Education in the Province of Ontario, and a year ago won a prize of $1,000 in the same contest for a study of "Industrial Education: Its Problems, Methods and Dangers," a work which is fast becoming recognized as a leading authority on the subject of which it treats. The subject for which the prize is now awarded is "Agricultural Education." This is to be published by Houghton, Mifflin and Company, of Boston, the official publishers of the prize essays, and will run to a volume of about 300 pages.

These prizes are offered annually by the firm of Hart, Schaffner and Marx, of Chicago, for the purpose of arousing interest in topics relating to economics, industry, commerce and education, and for a number of years have been competed for by graduates of the foremost universities. This year the awards were made by the following committee: Professor J. Laurence Laughlin, University of Chicago; Professor J. B. Clarke, Columbia University; Professor Henry C. Adams, University of Michigan; Henry White, Esq., New York City, and Professor Edwin Cay, Harvard University.

Presentation By The Choir

Trooper J. Ridyard Receives a Wrist Watch

An interesting event took place at the close of the evening service in Charlotte Street Methodist Church, when the members of the choir said farewell to one of their number, Trooper J. Ridyard, of the 8th Mounted Rifles, who is going to the front with the Third Contingent. He has been a member of the choir for the past six years, and was very popular with his fellow-members, who took advantage of the opportunity last night to present him with a handsome wrist watch. Mr. Edward Fisher, the choir leader, expressed the feelings of the choir, while the presentation was made by Miss Ada Richardson.

PREPARING TO GET OUT?

Germans In Belgium Hold Elaborate Retreat Rehearsal.

ROTTERDAM, Feb. 8.—According to The Tyd, the Germans have carried out on a big scale a rehearsal of their retreat from Salzaete and other places in Belgium near the Dutch frontier.

Church bells were rung, and no one was allowed near the frontier. Then followed the test of how quickly everything could be got in order for a possible retreat. Within half an hour everything was ready. The soldiers had their kits packed, horses, carts and other vehicles temporarily requisitioned were standing in the market square, and two companies of soldiers actually marched away in the direction of Ghent.

The Tyd also publishes a message from its West Flanders correspondent, stating that the Germans have partially evacuated some of their positions among the sand dunes.

Stolen Furs Found.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 8. — The discovery of a large assortment of valuable furs in Minneapolis, valued at about $10,000, stolen at various times and in unexplained ways, from Winnipeg fur dealers, is expected to lead to important developments. It is believed here the furs were stolen and smuggled across the border as part of a scheme of operations of a gang of international crooks, who have been working at various points on the boundary line. Through the work of a private detective agency the furs were traced to pawn shops in New York, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and other cities, but the greater portion of the loot has been recovered in Minneapolis.

GIRL WINS MEDAL.

Russian High School Pupil Found Wounded on Field at Opatow.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 8. — Natalie Tychnini, a high school girl of Kiev, has received the decoration of the Order of St. George for distinguished service at the front. Under a heavy fire at Opatow, in the campaign against the Austrians, the girl carried ammunition to the trenches and attended wounded men. She was wounded twice.

The girl arrived at the front with a detachment of volunteers dressed as a man. After being wounded she was left lying on the field when the Russians retired, and was attended by Austrian Red Cross workers.

When the Russians retook Opatow she was discovered in a hospital there and sent back to Kiev.

Purchase Offer Rejected.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The owners of the cargo of the American steamer Wilhelmina, on the way from New York to Hamburg, with food supplies for Germany, have intimated to the commission for the relief of Belgium, that its offer for the purchase of the cargo will not be considered.

The commission for the relief of Belgium desired to acquire the cargo of the Wilhelmina owing to a shortage in the food supplies for the suffering Belgians. A friend of the commission placed at its disposal a sufficient sum of money to buy the cargo, with the object of diverting it to Rotterdam. The offer provided for a fair profit for the Wilhelmina's owners and charterers.

Sanitary Inspector Spence Has Placed the Matter in the Hands of a Solicitor

Sanitary Inspector Spence is at a loss to account for the statements that were made at a recent meeting of the Trades and Labour Council, at which it was intimated that the premises occupied by the Inspector were in an insanitary condition. These remarks subsequently appeared in the press in connection with the labour news as prepared by the official scribe. Mr. Spence is inclined to believe that a mistake was made in the premises. However, he has placed the matter in the hands of his solicitor and will deal with the matter through that medium.

212 GERMAN NEWSPAPERS HAVE BEEN CLOSED SINCE WAR

"Owing to decreased advertising revenue arising out of the war, 212 German newspapers are already said to have disappeared. At least half that number have probably died in Great Britain," says the London Globe.

"These facts supply the strongest imaginable commentary on the common fallacy that this war is profitable to the newspaper owner. As a matter of fact, the reverse is the case. "A modern newspaper is an exceedingly complex organization, and the purchaser obtains for a penny or half-purchaser obtains for a penny or half-than that sum to produce. The explanation is to be found in the profits derived from advertising revenue, with the result when that decreases below a certain point, a paper is run at a loss on production, which increases with the increase of circulation.

"So far from the British press having found the war a gold mine, there is not one newspaper that has not felt the pinch somewhere, and many are making the greatest financial sacrifices in order to continue in their role of purveyors of news, and thus to perform a real public service."

PUMPKINS AT ONE DOLLAR EACH

KENOVA, W. Va., Feb. 8.—Located in three States, West Virginia, Virginia and Kentucky, this town is furnishing the State Prohibition Commissioner more trouble than any other city or town in the State.

The latest move to outwit the Yost prohibition law has been the placing of pint bottles of liquor in pumpkins, which the Kentucky farmers haul here, charging $1 for a pumpkin.

One farmer sold 2,000 pumpkins here in a single day. A canvasser has been in the city obtaining orders for pints at $1 each and notified patrons to station themselves along Raccoon Creek, about a half mile east of here, to-morrow night and be ready to catch pumpkins, which will be rolled down from the Kentucky side.

THE LOSSES ON BOTH SIDES HAVE BEEN HEAVY

FRENCH TROOPS HAVE BEEN HEAVILY REINFORCED

Endeavouring to Retake Advanced Positions Along the Line at Ragatelle Which it Was Yesterday Necessary to Cede to the Germans on Account of Superior Numbers.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PARIS, France, Feb. 9.—French troops, heavily reinforced, were to-day endeavouring to retake advanced positions along the line at Ragatelle, in the Argonne region, which it was necessary to cede to the Germans yesterday following their assault in overwhelming numbers.

The fighting continues without interruption, and it is stated the losses on both sides have been very heavy.

From the Argonne to the Aisne the artillery duels continue. It is reported that the Germans are again massing their forces along the Sector, north and east of Soissons, and this is believed to indicate another impending assault by Von Kluk's forces at this point.

From the Aisne north to La Bassee there have been heavy artillery exchanges in which it is stated that French gunners have had much the best of it.

Along the La Bassee Canal the Germans continue their efforts to break through the British lines without success. The enemy has suffered very heavy losses here as they have been forced to attack across low ground over which the British quick-firers have had an uninterrupted sweep.

From the sea to Nieuport the artillery operations continue, but much of the ground is again flooded, making serious offensive operations impossible.

GERMAN "MINENWERFER" BARKS LIKE A SNARLING MONGREL

Mysterious Piece of Artillery Used by Kaiser's Troops Described by French Writer as "Hideous Little Cannon With an Ugly Look About It."

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Feb. 9—In reports on the warfare in the trenches of Flanders reference is often made to a certain supposedly new instrument of destruction which the Germans are using. Lacking an equivalent translation in their own language, the French and Belgians have come to call this weapon by its German name "Minenwerfer." Many descriptions of this more or less mysterious piece of artillery, which has played considerable havoc in the allied trenches have appeared in the newspapers, but they have all differed in some essential details.

A contributer to Le Figaro, Paris, who was in Havre about the middle of January, saw one of these "Minenwerfers" there in the yard of the Belgian Ministry of War has its quarters. The "bomb thrower," as the weapon might appropriately be called in English, had been found by Belgian soldiers in a trench formerly occupied by the German troops.

The writer in the Figaro describes the weapon as "a hideous little cannon with an ugly look about it." It is about 95 centimetres long, and has a calibre of 170 centimetres. Its barrel can be swung horizontally, for the purpose of taking aim. Clutches in the rear and on either side enable the gun to take a firm grip in the soil before it commences to bark, after the fashion of a snarling mongrel.

The gun is mounted on a carriage of steel plates resting on wheels, and the unwieldy little thing weighs about 260 kilograms without the wheels. The projectile is inserted at the mumle and is discharged by means of an ignition cap in the breech. When the aiming device is removed the gun does not look more formidable than one of the old bronze mortars at the Invalides, the writer says.

It is not likely that the bomb thrower" can project a shell further than 500 metres. To be exact, it does not throw the projectile, but simply spits it out, so to speak. A bronze plaque indicates that the gun came from the Ehrhardt Works at Dusseldorf and was manufactured in 1913.

Angry Police Chief Halts A Chronic Bridegroom

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 8 — Just while everything looked bright for him to marry his wife for the seventh time, Charles Armstrong Gilmore, of New York, author of "His Father's Son," "The Verdict" and other vaudeville sketches, made the mistake of trying to 'jolly' Chief of Police Rowe to-day, and Gilmore is now locked up as a suspicious person.

His wife, "Miss" Edna Knoltz, whom he married in Chicago for the first time, is vainly trying to obtain his release. Gilmore admitted that he had married his wife six times in all, the other five times being publicly in roller or ice skating rinks, for which performances they collected prizes or commissions.

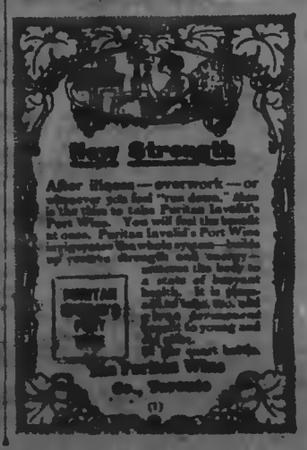
Gilmore whote Chief Rowe from Alma, Mich., asking him to find a wife for him. The chief promised to aid him, and allowed him to have his mail addressed to the police station.

Gilmore then arranged with a rink owner here for a public wedding, he to pick out his bride out of the crowd. The manager to-day declined to countenance the wedding which was set for to-morrow night. Gilmore went to Chief Rowe, started to banter him about the wedding and was arrested

FUR MARKET IS HALTED BY THE WAR

EDMONTON, Alberta, Feb. 9.—Never before in the history of fur trading in the North has the business of the trapping and traders been at so complete a standstill as at the present, according to trappers and traders who have arrived at this point. Owing to the war the Hudson Bay Company and Revillon's Limited, the two greatest buyers of furs in the world, who announced at the beginning of the winter that they would not be in the market for the purchase of skins this year have kept their word to the letter. On account of this move the outlook for the Indian trappers was somewhat hopeless, and when these conditions were put up to the Dominion government an order-in-council was passed giving the mounted police authority to distribute supplies to the Indians, whose income had been cut off.

The Indians were not slow to take advantage of this offer, as they seem to prefer to stay at home and accept government charity to facing the rigors of a Northern winter, and when the Indian trapper will not trap there is small chance of a profitable traffic in furs. The fur buyers from the large cities of the United States and Europe, who have been in the habit of making an annual trip to Edmonton and Athabasca at this season, have cancelled the trip this year, and except for one or two of the small buyers from the United States the market has been practically dead and will remain in that condition until the cessation of European hostilities.



ONE MILLION FRESH TROOPS IN A MONTH

Will Be on the Firing Line in France—Last Night's Late Bulletins

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

OTTAWA, Feb. 8.—In the Commons to-day, Premier Borden said the Government had made arrangements regarding the nickel expectation to the complete approval of Imperial authorities.

PARIS, Feb. 8.— It is understood here that Britain and France will have one million fresh troops on the firing line within one month.

PARIS, Feb. 8.—Late despatches to-night declare that the allies have gained slight ground, though fighting was desultory.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Parliament to-night passed naval estimates to add thirty-two thousand men to the British navy.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 8.—The War Office claims that German armies near Warsaw were forced to give much ground to-day and very heavy fighting was in progress.

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 8.—The First Lord of the Admiralty surprised the Commons to-day by refusing to answer questions bearing directly on the Admiralty's conduct of war.

CAIRO, Feb. 8.—British forces to-day again met and defeated a large body of Turkish horsemen near the Suez canal.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.— Senator Lafollette to-day proposed in the Senate an international conference of neutral powers to end the war and maintain trades routes.

IS READY FOR AIR RAID ON GERMANY

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Feb. 8—"The British Intelligence Department knows what is going on in Germany," said Mr. Thomas S. McMechan, president of the Aeronautical Society, last night. "You will hear very soon of raids of twenty-five to thirty aeroplanes at a time into Germany."

Mr. McMechan, who arrived on Thursday from England, where he is engaged in building airships for the Government, was speaking at a dinner given by the society to scientists attending the joint aviation conference in this City.

"The British have fourteen dirigibles, but all but two of them are in the repair shops—they have been so badly handled. The Admiralty knows and expects and is preparing to resist an invasion of England. The British think Germany has twenty to twenty-five Zeppelins ready

"High angle guns have been found worthless for defence in London. The bullets fall in public places and hit their own aviators attacking the enemy. The scheme of defence now is to fight the German aircraft on the sea coast. Through mistakes, due to difficulty in identifying aeroplanes, the British have shot twenty of their own best aviators out of the air. That is a secret, but a fact, told me by the head of a department.

PANIC SEIZES GERMAN PEOPLE AS HUNGER GROWS

Civilians, Hundreds of Thousands of Whom in Berlin Alone Are Dependent on Charity, Are Crying Out For an End of War

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

OLDENZALL, Holland, Feb. 8. — "The Germans are getting panicky." That is the remark I have heard from every neutral I have met on his arrival from Germany for the last few days.

Here, on the border, the impressions of these neutral travellers are fresh and untainted; they cannot conceal the truth, and the truth is the Germans are getting frightened of what is ahead of them. The nation, generally, however, takes things with courage and makes ready for the worst. That is what they will get too, and they know it.

Some of my informants have travelled straight down from Konigsberg, through Berlin, Hanover, Hamburg; some have seen Munich and the southern cities; others have gone to the Rhine province, looking after their business. But the latter were greeted everywhere with gloom by their business friends. "There is no more business." That sentence has been repeated to them, continually—no business except for the manufacturers who work for the army.

The complete absence of raw stuffs is killing Germany's industry, and the plight of the country could not be worse if the battle were really raging within her own borders.

All along the Rhine, i.e., district once humming with industry, factories are silent and workmen idle. Misery, in spite of uncountable relief committees, is spreading rapidly. It has long since put its grip on the poor, and is now starving the middle classes.

Poor in Sore Straits.

Food is terribly dear. The poor have had no bread that is fit to eat for months, and now the "bourgeoisie" must feed on "war bread," which a French horse would not eat.

People feed on horse meat, and there is not much of that, because all the horses available are snatched away by the military authorities. In many cases horses that have been wounded or worn out at the front and are no longer of any use for military purposes have been sent back to Germany and put under the butchers' knives.

Nobody speaks of delicacies, of pastry, of expensive fish. Even the wounded cannot get such fare. Germany used to pride herself on the fact that here was the country where the largest quantities of caviar were eaten. Now the people do not dream of eating caviar. They cannot pay for it, and even if they could pay they could not get it out of Russia. The loss of this caviar is perhaps one of the most trying of all privations the Germans have now to put up with.

The life of the people is correspondingly melancholy. The men who are not serving no longer have any business to attend to; the women work in hospitals or sit at home knitting for the wounded or for the men in the field.

The possibility of a final triumph is only entertained by professional pan-German enthusiasts. The German people are sick of their own "victories." They know that, with one or two exceptions, these victories never occurred. They are not so stupid as not to come to the conclusion that if only fifty per cent of these alleged triumphs actually had been true the Germans would have been in Paris, and even in London, long ago.

And the Germans are beginning to discover that they never will be in either city. "Then," they say, "why start this war?"

Losing Faith in Kaiser.

For years past the feeling of the Germans was: "The Kaiser will only make war when he knows for certain that we shall win." The Kaiser in former days was infallible, and his military genius was an article of faith. But now the truth even reaches the uneducated East Prussian peasantry.

One of my informants here spoke to a peasant in a little place near Dantis, at Kneiderl. The old man, who had fought in 1870, and who has five sons in the war, said: "Der Kaiser kann's nicht schaffen"; (The Kaiser cannot do it.) There was no anger in his words, but they simply recognized this time Germany, according to her popular saying, had had "eyes bigger than her stomach," and that she could not "digest" all her enemies.

In Berlin, I was informed, the central part of the city does not appear to have changed much. The crowd talk about the same patriotic songs in the same cafes as they did in August and during the first months of the war. But they fail to represent the real Berliners, just as the people in the boulevards are not the Parisians.

If you simply drive away from Unter den Linden to the eastern or western suburbs of the City you will notice the change the war has brought. In the east, where the labourers live, everything is silent. There are beggars everywhere, and the streets are dirty, for the scavengers—old men and old women—only come out twice a week, the regular road sweepers being at the front or killed.

Throngs Live by Charity.

Hundreds of thousands of the eastern Berliners are dependent on public and official charity to live and to feed their children. Unemployment is increasing every day, and many elderly men have gone to the front as volunteers simply because they knew that, as soldiers, they will at least be fed and their wives provided for.

In the western districts, where the well-to-do people live, all the night cafes are closed. They tried to continue "business as usual" at first, but they remained sadly empty, night after night, and their receipts were not sufficient to pay the telephone bill.

In the streets one sees nothing but people in mourning or cripples or men with an arm in a sling or bandaged head. The Berliners have long since given up the practice of hoisting flags when Wolff telegrams announce "victories". But they all say they will only put up their flags when Wolff announces peace. They have lost those dear to them, and when their husbands, their sons, their brothers or their sweethearts have been brought back alive but crippled for life or wounded, it has been their lot to nurse and to comfort them.

Women in Anguish.

They have had to be "saving" in their household and in their dress, which is a most difficult ting for a German woman. They have cried all their tears; they have sacrificed everything, and while the men at least have the consolation of dying "a hero's death" or getting Iron Crosses the women have had to sit before a deserted hearth and console fatherless children, and live. And live—that is the worst burden of all.

The women of Germany are beginning to realize that this war has lasted long enough. They have suffered more than their share, even more than the women in other countries, for the German casualities far exceed those of Germany's foes. They want some at least of those dear to them to come back alive; and slowly the idea is gaining ground in their heads and in their hearts that they must do something to stop the war.

What it is they do not know as yet. But the ferment of discouragement and wrath is working in millions of women's hearts, and now that it has become clear to German women that Germany cannot win they have spontaneously united in one wish, one thought, one desire—"Stop the war!"

One of the Oldest And Best Horses

Descended from the "great horses" used in wars when armoured knights required animals of weight and power to carry their heavy accoutrements, the Boulonnaise draughter is one of the old and valued breeds threatened with extermination by the war in Europe. As indicated by its name, the Boulonnaise horse is raised in the district about Boulogne, including the departments of the Nord, the Somme and the Pas de Calais and extending to the frontier of Belgium. Henry IV. had such a preference for these horses that as long ago as 1607 he took measures to improve the breed and cultivate their speed, presumably at the trotting gait. Since then they have been crossed with the Flanders horse, or Belgian daughter, and have become a breed of draughters even larger than the Percherons and more active. Some of them can, it is said, trot a mile in five minutes or better. Fine specimens were to be seen in the towns of Lille and Tourcoing, which were the scene of desperate fighting after the war broke out, and also along the wharves in Dunkirk and Calais. Not many have been imported to the United States.

Remarkable Herring Schools

Every summer there is a remarkable run of herring on the north Pacific coast. These fish come in such shoals that they seem a solid moving mass. They crowd into the inlets and sheltered bays and can be taken in millions by the simplest means. Men and boys on the Grand Trunk Pacific dock at Prince Rupert haul them out in water buckets, wire waste paper baskets, and similar utensils, which, with rope attached are thrown into the water and allowed to sink below the surface, then hauled in again full to overflowing with lovely herring. But a better idea of the density of these schools of fish is afforded by the fact that fishing lines with hook attached can be sunk in the water, and pulled out instantly with just as many fish as there are hooks, be there a dozen or fifty.

Tons of these herring are taken by the fish companies and frozen in bales for use as bait for the halibut fisheries. They are an excellent table fish, and there ought to be a profitable market for them in the interior. As yet comparatively few of them are shipped, though dealers are now calling for them. Fishermen say the herrings seek the bays to escape the whales, which prey on them in certain localities during their migrations.

OUR SERIAL STORY PAGE

"THE BATTLE CRY"

Charles Neville Buck

"No," she said slowly. "Once I wished for him all the time — but that's over now."

In one way, of course, that statement meant nothing It did not narrow by an inch the breadth of the chasm between them — a chasm of caste and kind. Yet so hungrily does a heart which loves grasp after straws of encouragement that Anse Havey carried home a lighter heart and hopes wildly clamouring for recognition.

In Bad Anse Havey the combination of interests recognised its really formidable foe. In the mountain phrase he must be "man-powered outen ther way." And there were still men in the hills, who if other means failed would sell the service of their "rifle-guns" for money. With such as these, it became the care of certain supernumeraries to establish an understanding. In the last election a thing had happened which had not for many years before happened in Kentucky; a change of parties had swept from power in Frankfort the administration which owed loyalty to Havey influences.

It was only at Juanita's school that any seeming of tranquillity remained. There while the elements were battling all about, the pupils were learning and the sick were being tended.

The girl did not know that Anse Havey carried in his pocket through these troubled times a small copy of Browning, and that often he read again, or repeated to himself:

"The sin I impute to each frustrate ghost;
Is—the unlit lamp and the ungirt loin—"

or that in his head and heart was going on a debate more vital even than the squatters' rights versus Virginia patents.

A new law had recently been written into the criminal jurisprudence of the State, providing that a change of venue might be granted in cases of felony on the motion of the Commonwealth as well as that of the defense. It was a good law, making it possible to take a criminal out of a district where the hands of justice were bound by local prejudice or local fear. Now the learned counsel for the syndicate bethought themselves of its possibilities and smiled.

Bad Anse Havey was indicted as an accessory to the murder of young Calvin and he would be tried not in Peril, but in the Bluegrass. The prosecution would be able to show that he had warned the surveyors off his own place and had picketed his fence line with rifle-men. They would be able to show that he was the forefront of the fight against innovation and that lesser mountain men followed his counsel and regarded his word as law. But more than that the Jurors who passed on this question of life and death would be drawn from a community which knew him only by his newspaper-made reputation.

So it was not long before Anse Havey lay in a cell in the Winchester jail. He had been denied bond, and fronted a dreary prospect as he quoted to himself:

"The sin I impute to each frustrate ghost;
Is—the unlit lamp and the ungirt loin—"

Deep in the heart of Bluegrass Kentuckian lies implanted a spirit of justice and fair play, but his nature is passionate. He flashes up hotly to battle and sometimes sees through eyes blind with prejudice.

When the trial of Anse Havey began there was one spirit in the land. Here was an exponent of the unjustifiable system of murder from ambush. In the cemetery of Lexington where sleep the founders of the Western empire, lay a boy whose life had just begun in all the blossoms and sunshine of promise—and who had done no wrong.

Over that same city of the dead, dominating it from a tall shaft, rose Joel Hart's great figure of Henry Clay.

It stood as the Great Commoner had often stood in life, with one hand outstretched in earnest plea and head raised in devoted eloquence, protesting against the shedding of fraternal blood. It was the high privilege of the men drawn from that jury panel to make of the accused such an example as should awe his fellow murderers.

The special term of the Court had brought to Winchester a throng of farmer folk and on-lookers. Their horses stood hitched at the racks about the square when the Sheriff led Anse Havey from the jail to the old building where he was to face his accusers and the Judges, who sat on the bench and in the jury-box.

White ribbons of smooth turnpike rattled in the summer drowsiness to the hooves of trotting horses as the friends of the murdered boy trooped in from mansions and cottages set in woodlands where the bluegrass waved knee-deep. They came to see justice meted out to this arch-fiend of the wild mountains. Negroes nudged each other and pointed to him with loud guffaws of derision as he walked, passive of men and erect of shoulder, from his cell to the columned front of the Clark County Court-house. It was not his word, but the richer, prouder world of his enemies.

Back in the tiers of benches was no hodden grey mass of men in butternut and women in calico, but farmers whose acres were rich and young men in clean linen and girls in gayly flapping, flower-trimmed hats and shimmery summer gowns.

He had once walked among such people as a law-maker in the State Capital. Now they sought to send him back to Frankfort as a convict—unless they could do better and hang him. He took his seat with his counsel at his elbow and listened to the preliminary formalities of impaneling a jury. His face told nothing, but as man after man was excused because he had formed an opinion, he read little that was hopeful in the outlook. One old farmer rose belligerently when his name was reached and glared vengefully at the prisoner.

"Have you any bias or prejudice which would prevent you from giving this defendant a fair and impartial trial under the law and the evidence?" came the monotonous question, and almost before it had ended the veniremman blazed back, "I've got a prejudice against any man that assassinates his neighbour."

He had voiced the sentiment of his county. He was a little more outspoken than his fellows, but that was the sole difference. Anse Havey's face remained mask-like and no expression of anxiety showed in his eyes. He was tired and sat through the taking of evidence and through the vitriolic denunciation of the Commonwealth's statement with none of the desperado's bravado and none of the coward's fear.

He calmly heard perjured witnesses from his own country testify that he had approached them, offering bribes for the killing of young Calvin which they had righteously refused. He knew that these men had been bought by Jim Fletcher and that they swore away his life for the hire of syndicate money, but he only waited patiently for the defence to open. He saw the scowl on the faces in the jury-box deepen into conviction as witness after witness took the stand against him, and he saw the faces of on-lookers mirror that scowl. He felt rather than saw the wilting confidence of his own counsel and when, at the Court recesses he was led back to his jail lodgings like a bear on an organ grinder's chain, negroes and children followed him in little, excited crowds.

Then the prosecution rested and as a few of its perjuries were punctured, the faces in the box lightened their scowl a little—but very little. The tide had set against him, and he knew it. Unless one of those strangely psychological things should occur which sweep juries suddenly from their moorings of fixed opinion, he would be the sacrifice to Bluegrass wrath, and on the list of witnesses under the hand of his attorney there were only a few names left—pitifully few.

Then Anse Havey saw his chief counsel set his jaw as he had a trick of setting it when he faced a forlorn hope, and throw the list of names aside as something worthless. As the lawyer spoke Anse Havey's face for the first time lost its immobility and showed amazement. He bent forward, wondering if his ears had not tricked him. His attorneys had not consulted him as to this step.

"Mr. Sheriff," commanded the lawyer for the defence, "call Miss Juanita Holland to the stand."

must have attention, otherwise you run grave chances of Consumption, Pneumonia, or Congestion of the Lungs. To avoid these risks, apply PEPs without delay. Unlike ordinary cough mixtures, syrups, etc., PEPs do not contain opiates or harmful drugs, and are therefore best for children. All liquid cough medicines, lozenges, etc., go to the stomach, and every mother knows how easily baby's stomach is deranged. Once put baby's stomach out of order and all sorts of trouble arises.

PEPs heal the lungs, throat and breathing tubes without disordering the stomach.

As a PEP dissolves in the mouth, healing, health-giving pine fumes are given off which are breathed down direct to the seat of the trouble, quickly healing the inflamed membranes.

As soon as baby's cough is heard, don't waste time on useless remedies. Try PEPs. PEPs are also the adults' best cure for coughs, colds, bronchitis, asthma, hoarseness, and all throat, chest, and lung ailments. All druggists and stores, or PEPs Co., Toronto, Winnipeg, or Montreal. 50c. box.

Peps

An Old, Family Cough Remedy, Home-Made

Easily Prepared—Costs Very Little, but is Prompt, Sure and Effective

By making this old-time cough syrup at home you not only save about $2, as compared with the ready-made kind, but you will also have a much more prompt and positive remedy in every way. It overcomes the usual coughs, throat and chest colds in 24 hours—relieves even whooping cough quickly—and is excellent, too, for bronchitis, bronchial asthma, hoarseness and spasmodic croup.

Get from any drug store 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Full directions with Pinex. Keeps perfectly and tastes good.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. It quickly loosens the dry, hoarse or painful cough, and also heals the inflamed membranes. It also has a remarkable effect in overcoming the persistent loose cough by stopping the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes.

The effect of pine on the membranes is known by almost every one. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol and other natural healing pine elements.

There are many worthless imitations of this famous mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and do not accept anything else.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Honor for Irish Doctor.

More than forty years after the close of the Franco-German war the French Government has issued its handsome "Medaille Commemorative de la Campagne de 1870-71." Many of those who would have received this decoration have passed away. Of those who served in the Anglo-American Ambulance during those terrible days at Sedan, Paris, and Orleans Dr. Charles E. Ryan, Glenlara, Tipperary, is one of the few survivors.

He has only now received the Brevet and Decoration from the French Minister of War, bearing the Seal of the Chancery of the Legion of Honor, May 7th, 1914. For his services to the wounded in the same campaign Dr. Ryan had conferred on him at the close of the war the German Military Cross of Louis II. of Bavaria, and also the Bronze Cross of the French Ambulance Society.

Arts of Peace Founded on War.

Ruskin had little sympathy with the ideals and aims of the pacifists. "All the pure and noble arts of peace are founded on war," he told the members of the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, in 1865. "No great art ever yet rose on earth but among a nation of soldiers. There is no art among a shepherd people if it remains at peace. There is no art among an agricultural people if it remains at peace. Commerce is barely consistent with fine art, but cannot produce it. Manufacture not only is unable to produce it, but invariably destroys whatever seeds of it exist. There is no great art possible to a nation but that which is based on battle."

"Man-of-War."

Man-of-war is a phrase applied to a line-of-battle-ship, contrary to the usual rule in the English language by which all ships are feminine. It arose in the following manner:—"Men of war" were heavy armed soldiers. A ship full of them was called a "man-of-war ship." In process of time the word 'ship' was discarded as unnecessary, and there remained the phrase 'a man-of-war'."

England's Oldest Port.

Falmouth is probably the oldest port in England. It was used by the Phoenicians 2,500 years ago.

TIRED-OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses of eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

The Pestiferous 'Possum.

Although not exactly suitable as a pet, the West Indian opossum is a very interesting little animal.

Unlike most wild things, it prefers the neighborhood of man, and is a perfect pest to the planter, especially if he keeps poultry.

Imagine a rat as large as a rabbit, with a long prehensile tail, and you have its picture.

It robs the fowl house, steals ripe fruit from the trees, eggs from the nest, and fish from the pond. It is seldom seen during the day, as its sight is weak and it dislikes sunlight. "A starry night for a ramble" is the 'possum's motto, and he doesn't go home till morning. Mrs. Opossum produces 10 or a dozen young ones at a birth, and hides them away in a warm pouch like the kangaroo.

Queer little naked blind things they are, so that were it not for the material pouch they would not succeed long in the struggle for life.

Grown a little older, they are sometimes taken for a walk on their mother's back, and it is a funny sight to see the little fellows all clinging for dear life to mamma's tail.

The negro dearly loves a 'possum hunt, and a ramble with Sambo and two or three dogs generally produces sport. The 'possum ordinarily takes to a tree and tries to hide himself behind the trunk, but the darkey gets him "'gainst de moon," as he calls it—that is to say, his form shows up against the moonlight—and a charge of No. 8 soon brings him down.

Care must be taken in handling him, as Mr. 'Possum is apt to pretend to be dead when he is really very much alive, and you may get a sharp bite if you pick him up.

The Supreme Test of a Healing Agent

Psoriasis or Chronic Eczema Defied All Treatment Until Dr. Chase's Ointment Was Used.

After suffering with the terrible itching of Psoriasis for five years, and being told by physicians that she could not be cured, Mrs. Massey turned to Dr. Chase's Ointment and was entirely cured.

MRS. MASSEY.

You will find this letter interesting, and will not wonder that the writer is enthusiastic in praising this ointment.

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Consecon, Ont., writes:—"For five years I suffered with what three doctors called psoriasis. They could not help me, and one of them told me if anyone offered to guarantee a cure for $50.00 to keep my money, as I could not be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I am glad to say I am entirely cured, not a sign of a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this ointment enough."

Can you imagine a more severe test for Dr. Chase's Ointment? This should convince you that as a cure for eczema and all forms of itching skin disease Dr. Chase's Ointment stands supreme. Put it to the test. 60c a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

GRADES IN THE ARMY

DUTIES AND RANK OF OFFICERS WITH THE BRITISH FORCES.

Alphabetical List of the Titles Used In Land Forces — Bombadier In Artillery Is the Same as a Corporal In the Infantry.—Commandant as a Special Name to Designate the Chief Officer of Fort.

From the following alphabetical list of the different grades of military service readers will be able to understand exactly the duties of the various officers now serving at the front.

Adjutant.—An army officer who assists a commanding officer by receiving and communicating orders; usually holding the rank of lieutenant or captain. He may not be above a major in rank.

Aide-de-Camp (A.D.C.)—An officer who is in close touch with a general, and assists him in all routine matters.

Bombadier.—The lowest grade of non-commissioned officer in an artillery regiment, and corresponding to corporal in the infantry. In old times he handled the bombard, or fuse, which fired a gun.

Captain.—A captain commands a company of infantry, troop of cavalry, or battery of artillery. He ranks between a lieutenant and a major. He is responsible for the arms, clothed, efficiency, and discipline of his men, and recommends for promotion the non-commissioned officers. He receives from £311 to £372 per annum.

Colonel.—The chief acting officer of artillery or engineer regiments is always a colonel, but in the infantry and cavalry he is frequently known as a lieutenant-colonel, the full rank being often conferred as an honorary distinction upon some royal or distinguished personage. A colonel or lieutenant-colonel's pay varies from £338 to £447 a year, according to the branch of the service.

Commandant.—A title usually given to an officer in charge of a fortress, military station, or military school. A captain-commandant is a captain who is temporarily doing duty of a higher rank.

Corporal.—A non-commissioned officer of the lowest rank in infantry regiments. In the Household cavalry a corporal is equivalent to a "sergeant," the latter rank being unknown. A corporal wears as a badge two stripes on the left arm, and receives from 1s. 9d. to 2s. 3d. a day.

Field Marshal.—The title of the British officer of the highest rank. He carries a baton as a symbol of rank.

General.—An army rank next below that of field marshal. Subsidiary ranks are those of Lieutenant-General and Major-General.

Gun Layer.—An artilleryman or non-commissioned officer who is in command of the team when it works a big gun. On smaller guns the gun-layer sights the gun.

Lieutenant (Second).—In the army the junior commissioned officer is known as second lieutenant, and his pay varies from 5s. 3d. to 6s. 8d. a day.

Major.—The title of the lowest rank of field officer in the army. An unmounted major is known colloquially as a "mud major." The major assists the commanding officers in all matters of routine and discipline. His pay varies according to his regiment from 11s. 7d. to 18s. 6d. per day.

Orderly.—A soldier or non-commissioned officer told off for routine duty. Such duties are usually undertaken by all the men in turn.

Quartermaster.—An officer whose duty is to provide quarters, provisions, forage, and ammunition.

Sergeant.—A non-commissioned officer who is often described as "the backbone of the army." His pay varies from 2s. 4d. to 3s. 4d. a day. There are also ranks known as sergeant-major (who is the leading sergeant of a regiment) and quartermaster-sergeant (who has charge of stores, etc.).

Warrant Officer.—An officer between the rank of a commissioned and non-commissioned officer. He wears a sword, but is not entitled to a salute.

Colors Are Restored.

An interesting ceremony took place recently at Buckingham Palace, when the King handed back to the 3rd (Reserve) Battalion of the Scots Guards the colors surrendered when the battalion was "absorbed" in 1906. The 3rd Scots were then ended as a separate entity under the retrenchment scheme of the War Office, and the King's Color and Regimental Color were handed to the keeping of King Edward, who undertook their safe custody. The exigencies of war have, however, brought about the resuscitation of the battalion. The ceremony took place as early as nine in the morning. His Majesty briefly addressed Lieut.-Colonel Windsor (commanding) and his men, saying he had confidence that the 3rd Battalion would not fail to maintain the splendid traditions of their famous regiment. His Majesty inspected the Guard, stopping several times to chat with men whose decorations showed they had seen active service.

With Military Honors.

It is not universally known what is meant by a funeral "with full military honors." In such a funeral the coffin is borne on a gun carriage.

If the dead soldier was an infantryman, his bayonet and helmet rests on his coffin.

At the funeral of a cavalry soldier his sword and helmet are fastened to the saddle of his horse, which is led immediately behind the gun carriage, and his top-boots, with spurs attached, are fastened in the stirrups, with the toes pointing backwards.

A firing party, drawn, if possible, from the deceased's regiment, fire three volleys over the grave and the "Last Post" is then sounded by buglers.

All the Bank's Fault.

Mrs. Barrows was worried. That fact was evident to her husband, although she endeavored to maintain a cheerful manner. Before the evening meal was over, however, he discovered the cause of her anxiety.

"Will," said she, "I am very much afraid that my bank is in a bad way."

"How foolish, Mabel! Don't let that cause you a moment's worry. Why, it's one of the strongest financial institutions in the state. What ever got that idea into your head?"

"Well, it's very strange," replied Mrs. Barrows, still unconvinced. "They've just returned a check of mine for $40 marked 'No funds.'"

A Peculiar Worm.

An animal growing between the high and low water marks on the Japanese coasts is a mud worm called sabella. It occupies a hard, limy tube of its own making and gets its food [illegible] makes up over its hiding place by thrusting out a head bushy with tentacles and sucking in currents of water loaded with minute particles of nutriment. Out of this wriggling creature the shore people make soup, which is true vermicelli, not a paste imitation of "little worms," and is said to taste as badly as it smells.

Waterproofing a Cloak.

Showers are often heavy in the summer. A heavy coat becomes a nuisance to carry about. If you have a thin favorite cloak you would like to make showerproof here is the method: Dissolve four ounces of alum in one gallon of rain water and four ounces of sugar of lead separately in another gallon; then mix, dip the material into this, wall work it about, dry in the air, wash in cold water, dry finally and there you are! Two dippings and two dryings will make it waterproof.

MOTHER OF SCHOOL GIRL

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Daughter's Health.

Plover, Iowa.—"From a small child my 13 year old daughter had female troubles. I spoke to [illegible] about it and could not help but say Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had been of great benefit to me, so I decided to have her give it a trial. She has taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound according to directions on the bottle and she is cured of this trouble. She was all run down when she started taking the Compound and her periods did not come right. She was so poorly and weak that I often had to help her dress herself, but now she is regular and is growing strong and healthy."—Mrs. MARTIN HELTO, Plover, Iowa.

Hundreds of such letters expressing gratitude for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished are constantly being received, proving the reliability of this grand old remedy.

If you are ill do not drug along and continue to suffer day in and day out but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a woman's remedy for woman's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Horseshoes are signs of good luck except when planted in the middle of one's person by the accompanying horse.

In former times we were shoep as seldom as possible.

Fun On the High Seas.

Wit and Wisdom of Some Service Magazines.

Whether the fleet or Fleet Street produce the most humorous journals is a matter concerning which there may be some difference of opinion among those who have had an opportunity of comparing the productions of both; for the contents of some of the magazines which Jack Tar is producing on board his ship in order to relieve the monotony of waiting for the Kaiser's ships to come out and fight show that his wit and sense of humor are as highly developed as his qualities of pluck and endurance.

The editor of the "Ninth Flotilla Monthly," for instance, displays happy humor in the title of his little publication, which he calls "Intercepted: A Magazine for the Wicked."

"If the German High Sea Fleet," runs one of the advertisements, "will fix a rendezvous with J. Hully and Co., Family Bonlawyers, it is guaranteed everything to its entire disadvantage. Reply mentioning this paper, or make personal application in the North Sea." Such has been the keen demand for "Intercepted" that two or three editions have been published, with the result that a considerable sum has gone to the Belgian Relief Fund.

"Intercepted" vies with the eight-page newspaper published on board H. M. S. Natal, which pokes fun at the Germans and everything else.

"The daily press messages are as like unto each other as the Harris sausage and its German kinsman," reads one paragraph. "When Peldhu says the Umpteenth Army Corps got a good-sized dent in the front rank, Norddeutsch tells us that the Tiddley-Um-Pom Hussars added another glorious paragraph to 'Willie's War Book.' Both armies capture the same towns several times weekly. Just like 'Beggar-My-Neighbor.' Until everything is over and Conan Doyle has written a book about it we she'n't know who has won."

Other news items include the following: "Press Bureau.—Germans in Paris. Press Bureau (later).—Last message should read, 'Germans in plaster of Paris'." And in commenting on the lack of news about the doings of the fleet, the editor remarks, "In writing home it is best to say, 'Dear Belinda.—Very busy this week. See last Thursday's papers'."

The "North Sea Times," a typewritten journal which is published on H. M. battleship King Edward VII., also makes some witty comments on the war. Under the title, "Things We Are Not Sure About," we read, "Whether it's a fact that the Kaiser has not yet sent an ultimatum to Timbuctoo, and whether that country is not feeling rather hurt at being left out in the cold? Whether a suggestion has been made that a saving of water could be effected by not washing it on good rum?"

The journal of the London Scottish, too, must be numbered among the "Punch's" of the services. The following appears in one of the issues: "Languages.—While members of the London Scottish are requested not to speak in very broad Scotch—as it is apt to terrify the natives—it must be borne in mind that all dropped 'h's' must be picked up and returned to that company at once."

Records of Gretna Green.

Gretna Green records formed the subject of a few remarks by Prof. Glaister at Glasgow University recently. He said that he had tried to do some service for the state in endeavoring to secure some records of Gretna Green marriages. He happened to be vice-chairman of the historical section of the last Glasgow Exhibition, and he had the custody of two volumes of authentic Gretna Green marriages. Not a few noble families entered into the kingdom of matrimony in that particular way. Records of these marriages belonged to an old woman, which seemed to be the only thing of value which she could turn into money, and he was negotiating about them when her 'cute 'Yankee nephew, hearing of that, bought them at a less figure than the state were prepared to give her. The Gretna Green records were now in America.

Preventing Gun-Deafness.

The huge power of modern guns is responsible for a deafening uproar the whole time they are in action. This din results in hundreds of soldiers being deafened for life, owing to injuries to the ear drum. Sailors are the most unfortunate in this respect, for, unlike soldiers, they cannot stand at a distance of twelve paces behind their guns, as is the rule in the army. The sailor remains at the breech the whole time that the gun is carrying on its work. As a preventive of deafness the sailors on many ships are provided with a small stick of india rubber, which they grip between their teeth when the guns are at work. This prevents the concussion of the great volume of sound being so injurious to the nerves of the ears, and also stops that vibration of the jaw which results in chronic headache.

New Honor For Cyclops.

Some time ago the teacher in a public school was giving a talk on classic mythology. Little Willie was not very attentive, and when it came to the questioning part of the game he was lost in the wilderness. "Willie," said the teacher, closing the book and looking impressively at the youngster, "can you tell me who Cyclops was?"

"Yes, ma'am," was the prompt answer of Willie. "He was the feller what wrote the cyclopedia."—Kansas City Star.

Where Ignorance Is Bliss.

What I knew had slip known
Then she wife would have smiled.
All her pains would have flown.
'Twould have driven her wild.

All unconscious of me
In that crowded cafe
She sat stirring her tea
And gave none five and eight.

Had she known what I knew
She'd have thought it was shocking.
For right in plain view
Was a hole in her stocking.

FREAKS IN BASEBALL.

Apparently Clever Plays May Sometimes Be Pure Luck.

Freak plays make baseball happen, if not interesting. Some of these plays are said to be the result of quick thinking; but, as a matter of fact, most of them are simply luck.

Curious things happen. A ball fell into a tin can, and, it being impossible to get it out in time, can and all were thrown to the batsman. Another ball hit the end of a nail driven through the opposite side of a fence and could not be got down until all the runners scored.

A swift bit glances off the pitcher's hand, is snapped up by an infielder and thrown to first, putting the man out.

Red hot liners or grounders sometimes hit the first or third base bag and bounce away for singles or even two baggers.

The shortest two bagger known was when the ball grazed the bat, shot up a few feet and fell in front of the plate. As the catcher reached for the expiring ball it glanced from his glove and bounded back to the stand, and the batter made second easily.

A center fielder saw a mit in the way of the shortstop and walked about sixty feet in to move it out of the way. When he heard the crack of the bat and saw a hot ball coming straight at him. He could do nothing but try to catch it and did to his surprise. But he was given credit by the crowd for being a great student of batters.—Arthur Macdonald in American Physical Education Review.

The Cure.

There was a suburban lady whose house one summer was quite overrun with moths. A tramp told her that in return for a square meal he would give her an infallible moth cure. She set a square meal before the tramp. He devoured it, then said:

"All ye need to do, ma'am, is to hang yer moth filled clothes and carpets and things on a line and beat 'em with a stick. Good-bye to yer moths then."

"Will that kill them?" asked the lady.

"Yes, if ye hit 'em," said the tramp.

How Any Woman Can Remove Hairy Growth

(Beauty Culture)

It is not longer necessary for a woman to visit a beauty specialist to have superfluous hairs removed, for, with the aid of a plain delatone paste, she can, in the privacy of her own home, remove even a stubborn growth in a very few minutes. The paste is made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. This is applied to the hairs and after 2 or 3 minutes removed and the skin washed, when it will be left clear and hairless. Be sure you buy real delatone.

Looking Down From High Places.

Why do you feel giddy when you look down from the top of the house or even from the upstairs window? Just because it's so high, eh? That's true, but it's only half the answer. You know, of course, that your power to keep your balance on your feet depends largely on your vision or sight. When you walk in the dark you stumble and bump against things because you are not used to walking without seeing. It's the same when you are away up above the ground and cannot see familiar things in their familiar places. Your eyes play you tricks, you seem to lose your balance, and your head feels giddy and your steps are uncertain. If you practice long enough you can learn to walk without seeing, but until you have learned that lesson be careful when you climb to high places.—Wisconsin State Journal.

Sentinels in Trenches Keep Eyes Tight to Periscopes

Lines Daily Creep Closer to Opposing Positions, with Men Tunnelling and Mining Day and Night—Paris Busses Haul Supplies to French Front.

(Special Dispatch.)
PARIS, February 6.

"All along the roads are detachments of infantry and cavalry, intermingled with long convoys, in which we recognise as old friends dozens of Paris autobusses," says Auguste Avril, in the Figaro, describing life in the French lines but near Chalons-sur-Marne and Rheims.

"The busses have been transformed," he continues: "enormous quarters of beef now hang over the seats which once were crowded with business men on their way from Batignolles to the Odéon. A Madeleine-Bastille bus now makes the trip between Mourmelon-de-Grand and Saint Menehould. It is a longer trip and less sure. On the platform, as usual, stands the conductor, but now he is an officer, and when he pulls the bell it is not to stop at a corner for a passenger, but to warn the chauffeur to swing out of the way of our automobiles.

"At Chalons-sur-Marne we were received by General de Langle de Carry. Still young, well set up, with a handsome and intelligent face, he reminds one of General de Galliffet.

"The General lauded his troops and their spirit.

"'You will see our regiments, gentlemen,' he said; 'you will be able to appreciate their bearing, their force of resistance, the initiative of their chiefs, and you can tell France to be confident.'

"And his words were true. Confidence, total confidence, was everywhere to be seen in the troops, whose impassiveness was its expression. Here, sheltered in little woods, we came across a number of territorial regiments. They were waiting the hour in the trenches, in their holes. The general commanding them has animated them with his alert courage, and his activity. He lives their life and trains them methodically for the hard task before them. All these men have by this time become accustomed to warfare. They know that this war will be long and hard; their resolution is taken, and they are patient because they know that at the end is victory, and they are confident in their chiefs.

French Trench System.

"We saw rapidly several trenches, then a blockhouse from which we could see, approximately one thousand yards away, the trenches of the enemy. The cannonade was intense and it was necessary to abandon our automobiles temporarily and go on foot.

"A staff officer explained the system of trenches to us. First, the outer line of trenches, a few hundred yards from the enemy, and containing the firing line. Then the second line, in which we are; this line is very strong and carefully built. From it any sudden attack of the enemy could be checked. In the first line of trenches are observers who watch, night and day, making use of periscopes.

"Every day the lines creep a little nearer to the enemy. The men are tunnelling and mining at all times. Back of the second lines is a maze of barbed wire entanglements, of wolf holes, of chevaux de frise, of all conceivable traps. One has the feeling that all this is impregnable. The second line of trenches is not occupied ordinarily, but in case of alarm the troops can fill it almost instantly.

"We continued our journey along the borders of the Argonne, passing through the ruined village of Auve, burned by the Germans during their retreat from the Marne. Of the inhabitants only a handful remains. We saw one poor woman rummaging in the ruins of what had been her home, while her two little children played in the debris.

Big Gun Practice.

"On over the muddy road we passed, skirting the forest and coming out on a crest overlooking the woods of La Grurie, Apremont and La Chalade. Suddenly a fearsome roar burst on our ears, shaking the automobiles. At first we thought we were being fired upon, but we were told by our officer that it was our own ordnance. We left the automobiles and, following him, started tramping through the woods, our feet sinking into the sticky mud. The air was shaken by the horrible noise that made the very trees tremble. It evidently was not the noise of our seventy-fives. We concluded it must be heavy artillery. For several minutes we ploughed on through the mud, finally coming to a little patch of dead trees. We looked through. In front of us was a huge hole, from the mouth of which protruded the muzzle of a great gun. Below, gathered about the piece, were five artillerymen. Were it not, however, for their kepis, one would never have taken them for soldiers. They looked like a group of workmen, being clad in a conglomeration of old clothes, some of them wearing overalls. With them was an officer, in a suit of leather, regulating the fire.

"'A little to the left,' he calls, and the men slowly bring around the trail of the monster. He waves his hand; a burst of flame shoots from the gun muzzle; a terrific detonation shakes us and we stagger in the current of air from the concussion. He smiles at us as we stand there. His telephone operator says something to him. He calls to the gun crew, 'All right. We're on the target.'

Gun Keeps Up Its Clamor.

"While the great gun keeps up its clamor we wander through the woods and see one of the territorial camps. It is the same village of huts and holes in the ground. Every day the men go to relieve those who are in the trenches.

"We could not quit General de Langle de Carry's army without seeing Rheims. As the town is being bombarded all the time, we were told that if we cared to go it was at our own risk. Every one volunteered, so we went. I will not undertake to describe this poor town, upon which the Germans are wreaking their fury. Of the 116,000 inhabitants there are but a few thousand still there, hidden in their cellars. We wandered through the deserted streets; the centre of the town is absolutely abandoned, although there are signs of life in the outskirts. It is a most dismal sight, with houses torn apart, roofs gone, all a mass of mournful ruins. The walls of the venerable cathedral are still resisting the fury of the 'Boches.' No shells fell during the short time we were there, although the night previous six persons had been killed during one of the sporadic bombardments.

"We were able to eat our lunch at the one hotel that still remains open. The Germans were replying to our guns, and left Rheims alone."

COLLECT ART WORKS IN THE YSER REGION

(Special Dispatch.)
PARIS, February 6.

The Belgian government recently sent a special commissioner to the region of the Yser with instructions to collect any objects of art which by some fortunate circumstance or the exercise of great care have been saved from disaster in the conflict that has raged there.

The works of art consist of old paintings, sculpture, ivories, panels and tapestries and various other accessories.

Warsaw (Polish, Warszawa) was during the Middle Ages the capital of the Duchy of Mazovia, one of the semi-independent States of Poland. Mazovia was absorbed in Poland in 1526, and Warsaw, owing to its position between Poland and Lithuania (which, united, made up Great Poland and the Jagellons), became the practical capital of the vast but inchoate empire about 1550. From 1572 onward the election of kings took place on the plain of Wola. Outside the city on the west the Polish Empire, however, was already at its zenith, and after a brief period of power and glory rapidly declined. Warsaw was taken and retaken by Swedes and Poles during the terrible wars in the middle of the seventeenth century, and again captured by Charles VII. of Sweden in 1702. In November, 1794, at the last partition, it was taken by Suvórov after his storm of the intrenched camp of the Polish army around Praga. It was then handed over to Prussia, became for a brief period (1807-13) the capital of a fragment of Polish territory, but was then captured by the Russians as they pursued the piteous remnants of Napoleon's Grande Armée of 1812 into Germany. On September 7, 1831, it was once more stormed by Marshal Paskievich during the Polish uprising of 1830-31. In 1862-63 there were fresh disturbances, and again in 1905-6 the city was the scene of bloody rioting. Truly has Warsaw been a City of Sorrows! In the above bird's-eye presentation of the city the old portion is visible toward the right, with the cathedral on rising ground (120 feet above the river bank). The new town stretches toward the southwest.

KAISER DECORATES MAN WHO WROTE CHANT OF HATE AGAINST ENGLAND

Herr Ernst Lissauer Receives Order of the Red Eagle of the Fourth Class with the Royal Crown in Recognition of His Poem, Which Is Praised by German Press.

(Special Dispatch.)
THE HAGUE, February 6.

The German Imperial Gazette announces that the Kaiser has conferred upon Herr Ernst Lissauer, author of the "Chant of Hate" against England, the high decoration of the Order of the Red Eagle of the fourth class, with the royal crown. The German press notes the announcement with outspoken satisfaction, the Berliner Tageblatt asserting that Herr Lissauer's poem entitles him to rank as one of the celebrities of modern times.

Herr Ernst Lissauer's "Chant of Hate" first appeared in Jugend, an illustrated weekly of Munich, and was translated into English verse by Miss Barbara Henderson. Its full title is "A Chant of Hate Against England" and the verses are:—

French and Russian, they matter not;
A blow for a blow and a shot for a shot:
We love them not, we hate them not:
We hold the Welchsel and Vosges-gate.
We have but one and only hate,
We love as one, we hate as one—
We have one foe and one alone.

He is known to you all, he is known to you all;
He crouches behind the dark gray flood,
Full of envy, of rage, of craft, of gall,
Cut off by waves that are thicker than blood.

Come, let us stand at the judgment place,
An oath to swear to, face to face,
An oath of bronze so wind can shake,
An oath for our sons and their sons to take.

Come hear the word, repeat the word,
Throughout the Fatherland make it heard.
We will never forego our hate,
We have all but a single hate;
We love as one, we hate as one,
We have one foe and one alone—
ENGLAND!

In the captain's mess, in the banquet hall,
Sat feasting the officers, one and all.
Like a sabre blow, like the swing of a sail,
[illegible] glass held high to hail;
Sharp snapped like the stroke of a rudder's play,
Spoke three words only:—"To the Day!"

Whose glass this fate?
They had all but a single hate.
Who was thus known?
They had one foe and one alone—
ENGLAND!

Take you the folk of the earth in pay,
With bars of gold your ramparts lay,
Bedeck the ocean with bow on bow,
Ye reckon well, but not well enough now.
French and Russian, they matter not,
A blow for a blow, a shot for a shot.
We fight the battle with bronze and steel,
And the time that is coming Peace will seal.
You will we hate with a lasting hate,
We will never forego our hate.
Hate by water and hate by land,
Hate of the head and hate of the hand,
Hate of the hammer and hate of the crown,
Hate of seventy millions, choking down.
We love as one, we hate as one.
We have one foe and one alone.
ENGLAND!

MACHINE GUNS SEW NET OF DEATH TO CATCH THE ADVANCING FRENCH

(Special Dispatch.)
PARIS, February 6.

Gripping in its intensity is the narration by a corporal of French line infantry and published in the Figaro of an assault on a German trench delivered by his regiment. It was the regiment's first experience under fire, and the writer describes in a most interesting manner his sensations.

"And now we are in the thick of the battle," he writes. "It is the first time and we are nervous; a bit uncertain and hesitant. The bullets seem, by essential their inflexible trajectories through the trees and into the shrubbery, to be weaving an invisible net into which we hurl ourselves head first, like fish into a trawl net. Where can one put one's head? How can one find the openings in the net weaved by those indefatigable sewing machines, the rapid fire guns? If one crawls along, the pack protects a bit. But no, we must offer to the bullets that pierce a man like a needle through linen our heads, our bodies! I am envious of the crocodile and rhinoceros. Never before have I felt myself so vulnerable.

"I strap my pack on my back, the thought of duty and of peril surge together through my mind and I try to think of nothing but the combat. I feel that I am responsible for a weak part of the living wall that is marching on and I glance about me. All my section to the left of the wood have fallen flat on their faces in the grass.

"It is the section of the sergeant major. The men in the grass are firing incessantly while he is steadying the train. No one is erect—the cannon, the machine guns, the rifles are scalding. Suddenly the sergeant major leaps up and turns his face toward me. His face is pale and drawn, his eyes glitter with a resolution that fires us. 'Cease firing!' he cries, and dashes for the woods, followed by his men. I shout 'Cease firing, forward!' and we dash ahead, beat forward, in the narrow spaces through the trees into the hail of bullets.

"A 'halt' brings us flat on the ground again. Maurice, the quartermaster, is beside me. 'Hot work, old man,' he grins. The rear rank to me drags himself on his elbows, groaning. A red stain appears on his blouse and on the grass beside him. A great ring of men has been engulfed on right and left in the brush. I cannot see them. Where have they gone? The sounds of battle rend the air. Through the dense underbrush I can see a handful of men beside me, wriggling along the ground like worms, with bayonets and canteens clattering. One more dash brings us on the line—a few poor chaps are left stretched out—and we begin methodically emptying our cartridge boxes. The trees re-echo the reports; the wounded are crying; here and there grotesquely sprawling bodies mark the men who have paid the price.

"How long are we going to stay here? From far away come voices, crying 'Fire, fire!' And suddenly the roar from our captain:—'Forward! Nom de Dieu! Are you ever going to get up? Forward!'

"'Come on,' calls my neighbor, who has been crouched behind the imaginary shelter of a tiny sapling, and we stagger together through the woods. What makes us shaky is the fact that we cannot see more than ten yards ahead and the fear of falling suddenly into the concealed enemy. At last I can stand the strain no longer. Tired of crawling, enraged because I have to do so, I jump to my feet and cry, in my turn, 'Forward!' Every one follows me. By my side are the sergeant major and another sergeant.

"Instinctively we duck our heads; the bullets, whistle mechanically past us; a few, ricocheting, sing through the air with a piercing note. We must be getting nearer. Will this woods never end? Are we not going to fall suddenly into the midst of the invisible 'Boches?' Shots to the right rear! Can we have passed the line?

"'Ta, ta, ta, ta, ta, ta'—the machine guns. We fall to the ground once more to let the rafale pass over our heads. What a sprinkling! To lift one's head means death."

Inquiry on De Wet's Part in South African Revolt

Opinion Is Growing That Famous Boer General Was Tool of Others and That He Was Not Informed of True Conditions.

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, February 6.

While little can be learned concerning the place of captivity of General Christian De Wet, leader of the recent revolt in South Africa, according to mail advices from Cape Town, inquiry is being made by persons high in the government of the Union of South Africa to determine the extent to which the veteran warrior of the last South African campaign was involved in preparations for the insurrection and his status in the rebellion after it was set in motion.

The opinion appears to be growing throughout the Union that although designated as the head of the revolutionary movement General De Wet merely had been induced to sever his allegiance to the British flag so his name might be used by the rebels. The manner of his capture at a farm near Waterburg, British Bechuanaland, on December 1, when he had a mere handful of men with him, and the lack of cohesion between the rebel units throughout the sporadic campaign are sufficient to demonstrate to those who are well acquainted with the veteran Free State commander that he was at no time well versed in the arrangements which had been made for the uprising and the real facts connected with it.

Meanwhile letters have poured into the offices of the government from all over the world pleading for clemency in dealing with the man who not only demonstrated in the late war his genius as a military tactician but was at all times a humane general. His admirers declare his worst fault in the more recent troubles of the Union was a somewhat perverted idea, fostered, no doubt, by others, of his duty to the land of his birth.

Pathetic Incidents.

Many pathetic incidents have occurred since the crushing of the revolt and the arraignment of the captive leaders before a court-martial. Captain Josef Johannes Fourie, an officer of the Second the Transvaal Bereden Schutters (Thirteenth South African Mounted Rifles), who was taken with about fifty other rebels last month, was shot at Pretoria on December 20. The commutation of the death sentence passed on his brother, Lieutenant Johannes Petrus Fourie, an officer in the same command, to five years' imprisonment, was due largely to the plea in his behalf by the elder Fourie, who, according to a despatch, met his death with calmness and fortitude.

When the case for the prosecution had been closed at the court-martial proceedings Captain Fourie made a statement, in the course of which he explained the influences leading him into armed resistance to the British troops.

"I was born," he said, "under the republican flag in the Transvaal and fought against the English in the late war, when I was wounded and captured.

"I was abused by the English officers, which instilled unfriendly feelings, but I kept these to myself in the hope that the future would find both races brothers in South Africa. My experience, however, has been that whenever the English get the opportunity they hurt the traditions of the Boers. I challenge any Englishman similarly placed under a foreign government to feel other than I do."

After making bitter reference to some of the horrors of the late war, he continued:—

"I know the government now over me regards me as a rebel, but I was disappointed with the government as it is with me. Was the conduct of the English at the Pretoria Opera House on October 10 British fair play? If it was I do not want to live under it. It is a greater honor to me to stand here a prisoner than an officer in the English army. What I have done I have done with open eyes and free conviction.

"I ask no consideration from this court for myself, but I plead for my brother, who is my youngest brother. It was under my influence and instruction that he became a party to this unhappy undertaking. I have no intention to ask the court for mercy—the mercy of God is enough for me—but I ask the court to treat mercifully the men who acted under me. The influence over them was very strong."

Warsaw Sees Safety from German Attack in Bad Roads

(Special Dispatch.)
WARSAW, via LONDON, February 6.

What with reinforcements for the front and a continuous stream of wounded and refugees passing toward the east, this city is the busiest and most animated in all Russia. To the eastward going stream must be added the enemy's aeroplanes, which have come again in great numbers. The last German aeroplanes have dropped no bombs, but have circled the city and sometimes flown off to the east at great heights. Their movements indicated that they have been watching the railway station here and at Praga and counting troop trains.

The feeling here is reasonably optimistic. It is believed that the new Skura-Rawa line can be held more easily than the Lodz-Lowitsch line, and that at worst the limit of invasion will be the Vistula. On both occasions of German advance the success and intensity of the attacks have declined as the invader got east.

"That," says M. Ershoff, a competent authority, "is because of increased difficulty in moving supplies and heavy guns."

The nearer to Warsaw the worse are the roads. The cause is that all the lines of supply and of artillery from the east converge on this city and diverge, with ramifications, from it toward the west. As a result the roads near the city, both to east and west, bear the heaviest traffic. As they diverge the traffic gets relatively less. As the Germans advance they have to crowd an unchanging volume of traffic on to fewer and more damaged roads.

This applies also to railways, as far as they can be used. The three great railways of West Poland swindle to two east of Lowitsch and Skiernewice. For transport and artillery the enemy is relying mainly upon his ample and well organised motor service. Against this bad roads are the great enemy.

How Field Marshal von Hindenburg—if he gets near enough to this city to start siege operations—will bring up heavy artillery is a mystery. On the fact that the efficiency of the invaders' supply and artillery transport declines in geometrical proportion as he advances owing to tactical dispersion is based the firm faith of Warsaw that it cannot be taken. These are the prevailing views.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE ART OF LOVE

A Lecture on How to Secure a Husband

By F. A. MITCHEL

Mrs. Matilda Robbins, a widow of fifty, who had buried four husbands, announced that she would give private lectures in the parlor of her home to young ladies on how to get husbands. A lecture would be given every Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

On the first afternoon a numerous audience were gathered in the lecturer's parlor.

Mrs. Robbins spoke as follows:

Young ladies, you have doubtless derived your ideas as to woman's part in a courtship from novels, and that is the reason why you are not married. The heroine of a novel is usually so modest that she doesn't dare say her soul's her own. There's more accomplished in this world in other fields besides matrimony by assurance than modesty and more accomplished by management than by assurance.

The best way to teach is by example. Therefore I shall put this lecture in the form of a story. But it's a real story, not an invention. The heroine didn't sit round and look pretty. She was up and doing. That's what we must all be in this world if we want to get on. Do you suppose a young fellow who wants a position whereby to start a fortune sits round and waits for it? No; he goes out and hunts for it. And when he gets it does he modestly wait for somebody to tell him to do things? Not if he wants to succeed. He does everything without being told and before it's wanted. That's the part of a young fellow starting out to fix himself in the world, and you young ladies should act on the same principle.

Now for my story of the way one young lady secured a husband.

Her name was Jones, Sarah Jones. Just plain Sarah Jones, not Maltravers or Montmorency, like the heroines of novels, or Gwendolin or Jaquelin for a first name. A girl doesn't need a high sounding name to get a husband; she needs something that I'm going to tell you about. Sarah Jones the day she was eighteen sat down and did a job of thinking. She wasn't long about it, for she was an acting girl, and when she had got her thinking done she acted at once on her decision. That decision was that her place was in a home as a wife and the mother of children.

Sallie Jones didn't go at things blindly; she thought them out beforehand.

She knew that she couldn't get married if restricted to the society of girls. So she joined a dancing class. She couldn't afford it, but she had to afford it, and whatever has to be done is done if the party to do it is of the right stuff. She had her eye fixed on that dancing class, and she joined without knowing where the money to pay her way was to come from. There were twenty young men members and twenty-five girls.

Miss Jones realized that there is safety in numbers but for the man she was after, not for her. She didn't go fooling about among the twenty men. She picked out a steady young fellow and made up her mind to land him. His name was Abel Rogers. Nothing romantic about his name either. Rogers didn't have anything except what he was getting together himself, but he was frugal and a hard worker.

The first thing Sallie did was to let Abel Rogers understand that she liked him. She didn't pout when he danced with some other girl more than with her or look troubled if he didn't dance with her at all. She smiled on him when he came back after a lack of attention just as pleasantly as if he hadn't neglected her.

This sort of work has been called angling, and so it is. A skillful fisherman if a fish doesn't bite right off wouldn't think of trying to jerk the hook into its gills, and when it does bite he doesn't try to haul it out of the water all at once. Some fish can be caught that way, but a gamy fish needs to be allowed to play itself out. So it is with a man. First get him on the hook, then play him.

We like those who like us, and Abel Rogers, being aware that Sallie liked him, was disposed to like her. There was nothing deceitful about this in Sallie. She really liked him or she wouldn't have tried to catch him. There is a difference in a girl showing a man that she likes him and showing him she wants him. Showing it would end uncertainty, and uncertainty is the line by which she must pull him in after getting the hook in his gills. Abel knew nothing about Sallie's feelings for him except that she liked him. She might have liked several other men and loved one other.

It wasn't long before Sallie found an opportunity to favor Abel above other men. He came one evening to the dancing class after an absence, having no partners engaged. Sallie turned down several names on her engagement card to give the dances to him. This was an excellent way of showing him her good will without indicating that she coveted his attention. Perhaps there are some among you who will not see the distinction I make here, but I assure you it is one of no little importance.

Abel felt not only that some return was due for this kindly act, but it gave him pleasure to make a return. He invited Sallie to go to drive with him. That was the time before automobiles came. I am not in favor of autos for courting purposes. There is too much rapid motion, and the driver's attention must be constantly on his machine, to say nothing of his grip being on the steering wheel. Abel and Sallie drove out in a box buggy behind a lazy going horse. Everything pertaining to love in its early stages is sphynx-like, though I admit the climax of a brief period just before the climax may be in the nature of a hurricane. There was just a suspicion of perfume about Sallie, so delicate that it could only have come from articles that had been kept in sandalwood drawers or, more likely, in a mouchoir case. It was very intoxicating to Abel, and as they rolled slowly over the smooth road, the reins lying loosely on the horse's back, Abel had nothing to think of except the girl beside him.

Sallie had by this time come to the most difficult part of her work. Every man doubtless thinks that some time he will be married and have a home. But marriage to him is the old age to all of us. It is—I mean it seems—far distant. The bachelor thinks of the present. Some men do not like to give up their liberty for the obligations of matrimony; some, who expect to do so in time, never find a convenient season. All men must be won. Only widowers or old bachelors, tired of their bachelorhood, marry intentionally.

Abel Rogers was looking forward to the day when, having accumulated a competence, he would settle down and take a wife. It was the business of Sallie Jones to break through this future intention and make it a present one. And here, again, girls' work shows a similarity to men's work. Many men who have good address and are excellent talkers fail in putting through schemes because they cannot bring the person on whom they are working to the point. Girls also often fail in landing a man whom they have got to the water's edge.

Mr. Rogers, having been brought thus far, bid fair to remain with the hook in his gills flopping about in the water. The timid girl, having thus far succeeded and being balked, would remain in statu quo. The rash girl would jerk the line, break it, and the fish would go swimming away merrily. The wise girl would use a landing net.

That is what Sallie Jones did. She used a landing net. But even a landing net may be used carelessly or at least injudiciously. Miss Jones studied out whatever she did. After a few months of dallying on the part of Mr. Rogers she set up a rival—not a real, bona fide rival, but one merely to excite a bit of suspicion. Indeed, by this time she was considered by the young men to belong to Abel Rogers, and it was not easy for her to secure a rival.

Abel did not seem very much frightened. At any rate, he showed no sign of being brought to terms. Perhaps he was thinking that he couldn't afford to marry or that, after all, it wouldn't be such a hardship to let Sallie Jones go to another.

The deportment having failed, Miss Jones resolved upon another. She became suddenly very gracious to Mr. Rogers. At the same time he noticed that whenever he asked her to go out with him she made some excuse. It did not occur to him that the excuse was not valid. He supposed he happened to ask her at times when she was engaged.

One evening Mr. Rogers called on Miss Jones and waited in the parlor while he was announced. On a lounge lay a piece of white satin, a long white veil and some orange blossoms. While the gentleman was inspecting them, a vague suspicion as to the reason for their being there breaking through into his brain, a maid entered hurriedly, gathered up the articles mentioned and, with a look at Rogers indicating that it had not been intended he should have seen them, carried them out of the room.

By this time it seemed to Mr. Rogers that he stood on the edge of a precipice and was about to topple over. When the maid re-entered with a message from Miss Jones asking to be excused, since she was very busy, he caught at the mantel for support.

Could it be possible that the girl he had been hanging about so long was going to be married?

The proper thing for Mr. Rogers to do was to excuse the lady on whom he had called and go away. He did no such thing. He sent a message to the lady begging her to see him for only a few moments.

She came. To carry out her supposed plan she should be in sewing dress, but she knew better. She wore the most becoming costume for ordinary wear she possessed. When she saw Mr. Rogers looking as if the bottom had dropped out of the universe she regarded him with a gaze of interested surprise.

"Oh, heavens!" he exclaimed frantically. "How could you have done it?"

"Done what?"

"You are about to be married?"

"If"

"Yes. Don't deny it. I have seen the wedding dress, the veil, the orange blossoms."

"You have?"

"Yes. I suppose I should not reproach you, but it is maddening. After all my devotion— Who is the man? I demand to know!"

Young ladies, I have gone far enough in my illustration. This is not a love story; it is a lecture. I trust that I have made myself plain and that I may have been of benefit in bringing

That Racking Persistent Cough
Can Be Quickly Cured By
DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP
All obstinate coughs and colds yield quickly to the general action of "Dr. Wood's" for the simple reason that this valuable preparation combines all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with which is combined Wild Cherry Bark, and the soothing, healing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs and barks. This makes it, without any chance of denial, the best cough medicine on the market to-day.
When you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that it is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark, and that the name, The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont., appears on the wrapper. Price, 25c and 50c.
Mrs. H. C. Kingston, Moose Jaw, Sask., writes: "I wish to recommend Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup as being the best cough medicine on the market. A few months ago I took a severe cold which left me with a racking cough. After trying several cough remedies, with no result, I decided to get a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after taking the first two doses it began to effect a cure, and after continuing its use for a short time, I was entirely cured. I cannot say too much in its praise."

Corpuscles in Normal Blood.

Normally there are approximately 5,000,000 red blood corpuscles in the cubic millimeter. The number is temporarily diminished during fatigue and after the ingestion of much fluid. Fasting and profuse sweating increase the number of red blood cells by concentrating the blood. In high altitudes the number is also increased. There are 5,000 to 10,000 white cells in the cubic millimeter, the ratio of white to red cells being about 1 to 600. In health the blood amounts to about one-thirteenth of the body weight.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" IS YOUR LAXATIVE

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels.

Get a 10-cent box.

Put aside—just once—the Salts, Pills, Castor Oil or Purgative Waters which merely force a passageway through the bowels, but do not thoroughly cleanse, freshen and purify these drainage organs, and have no effect whatever upon the liver and stomach.

Keep your "insides" pure and fresh with Cascarets, which thoroughly cleanse the stomach, remove the undigested, sour food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken, and cost only 10 cents a box from your druggist. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never have Headache, Biliousness, Severe Colds, Indigestion, Sour Stomach or Constipated Bowels. Cascarets belong in every household. Children just love to take them.

Worse and Worse.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

7030

The shirt and underbody are attached and fasten at the back, while the overblouse slips on over the head and closes at the shoulders with snap fasteners. There is a simulated closing below the collar, where the buttons are placed, both the underbody and the overblouse have deep armholes, and while the sleeve is actually sewed to the underbody it appears to be a kimono sleeve, since the armhole seam is concealed. The pattern, No. 7030, can be obtained in sizes from 6 to 16 years. Price 10 cents.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age of a child.

The social held by the Girls' Guild of St. John's church in the church basement last Thursday night, was a decided success. The one act comedy, "A Tipsy Pudding," the sale of work and refreshments, besides songs, speeches, etc., were enjoyed by all present.

Mr. R. W. Allin, secretary of the educational department of the Missionary Society of the Church of England, addressed a large congregation in St. John's church on Sunday in the interests of missions. Taking for his text, "The Unknown God," Mr. Allin clearly and strongly pointed out the great importance of mission work, both at home and abroad. His lecture was illustrated by lantern views which were especially attractive and instructive. Mr. Allin is certainly one of the mission forces of the Church of England, and is always a welcome speaker to St. Johns.

A men's Adult Bible Class is being organized in St. Johns church, which should be a great aid to the Sunday school.

Owing to the recent heavy snow storms which blocked the C.P.R. yard badly, several men have been engaged to clear it from snow.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF HAIR STOPS FALLING

Glide! Try This! Makes Your Hair Thick, Glossy, Fluffy, Beautiful.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair, and lots of it if you will just try, a little Danderine.

The Devil's Wall.

Hay Fever Cured By Plant Pollen

Of Twelve Cases Treated Five Were Cured and Four Were Helped

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—The cure of a number of persons suffering from hay fever by the injection of plant pollen responsible for the ailment in the individual cases is announced in a preliminary report published in the New York Medical Journal by Drs. Seymour Oppenheimer and Mark J. Gottlieb, of this city. The announcement is based on the result of a series of laboratory experiments at the College of Physicians and Surgeons and the treatment of a number of patients.

The objects of the investigation was to find a substance that would immunize persons who had suffered from the distressing ailment against further attacks, and hence the preliminary report bears the title, "The Active Immunization of Hay Fever."

Not all the persons treated were cured, the report states, but the results were encouraging. Eleven cases were treated in 1914, before and during the season for Autumnal catarrh. Six cases were treated in advance of the attack, and of these one was cured for the season, four exhibited very mild symptoms, and one was not impressed.

Five cases were treated during the attack. The symptoms of four subsided after receiving from one to four injections, while one patient received no benefit.

Altogether, the report concludes, there were five cures for the season, in four cases there was marked improvement and in two cases there was no improvement.

Nervous Prostration and Heart Troubles

Nervous Prostration, or Neurasthenia, is one of the worst forms of nerve trouble and brings about a general weakness of the whole nervous system.

The symptoms presenting themselves are headache, a feeling of depression, disturbed and restless, unfreshing sleep, often troubled with dreams, 'right when in crowded places, dread of being alone, horror of society, fright of travelling, muscular weakness, sense of fatigue upon effort, etc.

When the nerves become affected in this way the heart generally becomes affected too.

All are curable if taken in time.

Milburns Heart and Nerve Pills are just what you require at this time. They strengthen the nerves and build up the whole system.

Mrs. John Hewson, Caledonia, Ont., writes: "I feel it my duty to let you know the great benefit your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills did for me. I suffered for four years with heart trouble and nervous prostration. I was so bad I could not go up stairs without sitting down at the top before I could go to my room. I could not sleep nor could I lie on my left side, for it would seem as if my heart would stop. I thought my time had come. I was doctoring with the doctor, but didn't get any benefit. I took eight boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and am enjoying good health."

Price, 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PUNISHMENT SHIP.

How an English Shipping Company Keeps Discipline.

An effective method dealing with minor offenders has been discovered by a leading steamship company whose vessels regularly sail from and arrive in the Mersey. The particular seagoing community concerned are the trimmers, firemen, and greasers—a most deserving and respectable class, generally speaking, but, like every other body of men, containing a few black sheep. When a serious breach of discipline is reported against any man engaged by the company in the departments specified he is not dismissed, but is transferred to what is popularly known amongst the employes of the line as "the punishment ship of the company."

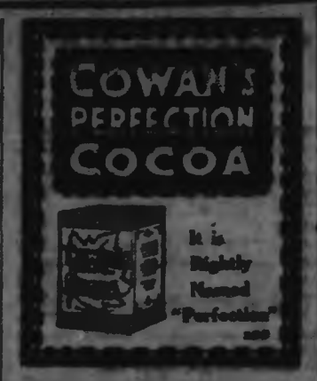
The work involved by trimming, firing or greasing is of a trying nature on the most modern ships, on account of the intense heat in which the labor has to be performed, but on the vessel in question—a steamer with many years' service and not a few records to its credit—it is rendered additionally arduous from the manner in which the furnaces and boilers are disposed in the vessel. This necessitates much more climbing and running about than is required in vessels of more modern construction. In addition, the quarters of the trimmers and firemen are situated in close proximity to the boilers, so that the men are practically always in a hot temperature.

Needless to say, transference to the "punishment ship" is not hailed with delight. Many offenders prefer to leave the service of the company altogether rather than undertake employment on this particular vessel. At the same time it is pleasing to learn that a few voyages in this ship, with discharge books marked "V. G." at the end of the trips, are held by the company to have expunged the various offences so punished, and as vacancies occur in the lower fitness the men are promoted to more comfortable and at the same time cooler berths.

BOTHA DEFEATS GERMANS.

Attack on Village of Kalkaputs in South Africa Repulsed.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The Pretoria correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Co. says that a force of 800 Germans attacked the village of Kalkaputs, in the Keetsdrift district, Cape Colony, and was repulsed. The German casualties were also killed and 23 wounded, and fifteen men were made prisoners. The British losses were one killed and two wounded.



Talked on the 'Phone While Bombs Fell

SPECIAL CABLE:

War adds to the difficulty of carrying on a telephone conversation, according to an article which appeared in a recent issue of the Figaro. The French newspaper tells of a conversation which was being held with Dunkirk at a time when the German aviators were dropping bombs upon the city. In relating the incident the Figaro says:

"The other day a high official of the government in Havre was telephoning to Dunkirk. All of a sudden the sound of a loud explosion came to him over the wires. He cried out to the man on the other end of the wire:

"'What on earth is happening now?'

"The answer came back, 'A Taube is throwing bombs. He took good aim at the City Hall, where we are.'

"At the same instant, 'Boom!'—a second bomb. The man in Havre cried out, 'You'd better run to the cellar.'

"But the official in Dunkirk said, 'Not on your life. That would be giving too much honour to the Boches.'

"And so, while the aviator continued his work of destruction, the conversation over the wire was kept up."

BRITISH ARMY EXCEEDS 3,000,000

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, Feb. 9—The army estimates, to which Parliament will devote the first part of this week's session, give the number of effective men in the army, exclusive of those serving in India, at three millions.

There is this year a novel change in the form of the estimates, as no totals of estimated expenditures are given. The vote under each of the fifteen headings is set at the nominal figure of £1,000. This gives the House of Commons opportunity for the discussion of each heading, while the Government may spend whatever is necessary under these various headings to prosecute the war.

Too Much of a Breakfast.

Even Peacock's generous ideas of suitable provisions for a breakfast were surpassed by a London host who entertained J. L. Mosley. Aug. 8, 1837, Mosley writes to his daughter: "I went to the last breakfast of the season of the Philobiblon society, given by Sir Turner, a collector of rare books. Beginning with coffee and tea, we ended with sherry, champagne and maraschino; fish, entrees, rolls, salads, game, puddings and tea going on meanwhile in regular order. If you asked me what I did I can only say I opened my ears to the animated and intellectual conversation and my mouth, not to eat, but to gape and gasp and wonder at the prodigious consumption of victuals at that hour of the day. When I reflected that all those people would lunch at 2 and dine at 5 I howled my head in humiliation, and the fork dropped from my nerveless grasp."—London Chronicle.

Two Speeds in Same Wheel.

The top of a carriage wheel in passing along the road moves more quickly through the atmosphere than the bottom. This sounds absolutely foolish but it is absolutely sound. It is due to the movable axis, or axle. The top of the wheel has forward motion plus forward revolution. The bottom of the wheel has the same forward motion minus backward revolution.—London Saturday Review.

HOW TO GAIN WEIGHT A POUND A DAY

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Sargol with their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and most any thin man or woman can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days by following this simple direction. And best of all, the new flesh stays put.

Sargol does not of itself make fat, but aiding with your food, it turns the fats, sugars and albumens of what you have eaten, into rich, ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—prepares it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. All this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Sargol stops the waste and does it quickly and makes the fat-producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive.

Leading druggists in Peterborough and vicinity sell it in large boxes—forty tablets to a package—on a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

BELGIAN "NUN" CAUGHT SHAVING

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 9.—The fate of a German spy disguised as a Belgian nun in England was told succinctly in a letter received in San Francisco by Miss Alice Robinson from her cousin, Miss Ada Grant, of Boston, Lincolnshire county, England.

The letter said in part:

"Did I tell you that we had taken a Belgian nun as a companion, though we were taken in as well? One night we heard a noise in 'her' room, and, going up quietly, we peaked through the transom and what we saw I shall never forget. There was the 'sister' in a German uniform, shaving.

"My sister phoned for the police, and after a struggle the man was arrested. A little later a shot was heard that announced the last of him. Our feelings are better imagined than described, for we had really got to like the 'sister.'"

COLLAPSE OF GERMAN MOVEMENT AGAINST WARSAW

PETROGRAD, Feb. 9.—The collapse of the German movement against Warsaw is believed to be imminent. The Russian movement in East Prussia, originally designed to lift the pressure on the Russian defensive positions west of Warsaw, has been completely successful.

The Germans are withdrawing their troops from positions along the Vistula and in the Gumine Borjimow regions and are hurrying them north into East Prussia to meet the Russian advance which is being well maintained.

While the troops remaining are making a brave showing in an effort to stimulate an offensive, the officials of the general staff declare that conditions are rapidly assuming such a character that the long-delayed forward movement of the Russian Army which must result in the expulsion of the Germans from Poland, can be begun.

The German morale has been greatly shattered by their complete failure to make any impression on the Russian line. For weeks German officers have been encouraging their men with stories that the Russians were demoralised and that their retreat was inevitable. Yet in a series of desperate assaults, unparalleled for ferocity in any war, the Germans not only were unable to make any headway, but were thrown back on their own lines completely crushed.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally if You Eat Meat Regularly

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clog the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a teaspoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

MARVELLOUS BALSAMIC ESSENCES GIVE CATARRH NO DRUGS TO TAKE—A DIRECT BREATHING CURE

Statistics Prove Ninety-Seven Per Cent. of Canada's Population is Infested With the Germs of Catarrh

This disease is most dangerous owing to its tendency to extend the Bronchial tubes and lungs, where it causes Consumption. Unfortunately the people have had faith in sprays, ointments and snuffs, which can't possibly cure, and in consequence catarrhal disease has become a national curse. Science is advancing every day, and fortunately a remedy has been discovered that not only cures but prevents Catarrh. This new treatment "Catarrhozone" has sufficient power to kill the germs of Bronchitis, Catarrh and Asthma. It contains pure pine essences and healing balsams that go to the remotest part of the nose, throat and lungs, carrying health-giving medication to every part that is tainted or weak. It does away with drugs, it does take Catarrhozone like cough mixture—you inhale its healing vapour at the mouth and it spreads all through the breathing organs, soothing and curing wherever Catarrh exists. This is nature's way of supplying the richest balsams, the purest antiseptics known to science.

A spreading cold is cured in ten minutes. A harsh cough is eased in an hour, the most offensive catarrh is thoroughly drawn from the system.

For Asthma and Bronchial irritation neither can equal Catarrhozone—every physician and druggist says so, and we advise our readers to try this treatment if suffering with any winter ill. The complete outfit costs $1.00, medium size 50c., at all dealers.

BRITISH RETAKE GERMAN POSITIONS

SOISSONS AND FURNES ARE BOMBARDED

FIGHTING AT BOTH ENDS OF THE LINE

Engagements Are Growing in Intensity at Two Extremities of the Eastern Battle Front in East Prussia and in the Carpathians---Fighting in Front of Warsaw Slackens.

SPECIAL CABLE:

Petrograd, February 9.—The engagements are growing in intensity at the two extremities of the eastern battle front, in East Prussia as well as in the Carpathians, according to information reaching Petrograd to-day. The same news sets forth that on the Warsaw front the battle has subsided. A despatch reaching here from Warsaw says that among the prisoners taken by the Russians in the fighting at the junction of the Bzura river, were a number of German women. According to this message, some of these women were found with rifles in their hands in the first line of trenches.

Grand Army Headquarters, Poland, via Berlin, February 9—The Kaiser making his inspection of troops in the eastern theatre of war, has been received with unparalleled enthusiasm. To-day he reviewed the main army on the Rawka river, and the Silesian Landwehr battalions, addressing the various units in turn, congratulating them on their achievements, and declaring that victory was certain. His Majesty was in excellent health. He held a long conference with General Von Hindenburg and his staff and later inquired into the condition of the country now held by the German troops. It is believed that as a result of the Kaiser's visit a new offensive will shortly be developed, which it is hoped will be very advantageous to the German cause.

C.P.R. EMPLOYEES HAVE THEIR MAGAZINE TOO

The Canadian Pacific "Echo" is a twenty-seven page magazine which the local employees of the C.P.R. are perusing with interest to-day. It is the product of members of the local freight office and reflects great credit upon its editor and assistant editor, Messrs. Wm. J. Brooks and L. Dunn.

Mr. J. W. Byers is one of the contributors.

Among the articles is a history of all the hockey contests between the representatives of the C.P.R. and G.T.R. freight offices in 1912 and 1913.

The magazine appears as the March number. A few weeks ago the Grand Trunk Gazette, January number, a magazine which was the product of talent in the rival office, was issued. There is evidently some pretty fair journalistic talent in both offices.

NERLICHS ARRESTED.

Toronto Merchant and Wife Faces With Wider Charges.

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—As the result of speedy action before the grand jury in the criminal assizes yesterday, Emil Nerlich faces a new charge of conspiring with his wife, Hedwig Nerlich, to commit treasonable acts in connection with the attempt to leave Canada of Arthur Zirsow, a German reservist. Nerlich himself, already indicted on a straight charge of treason and admitted to bail, was rearrested at once, and the police also took Mrs. Nerlich into custody at her home, 16 Dunbar road.

As soon as the new indictment, which charged the couple with spying, by giving information to assist the enemy and also by trading with the enemy, were returned, E. A. DuVernet, K.C., the crown prosecutor, requested that bench warrants be issued for both of those named, and the detectives acted on them at once.

Chief Justice Meredith, before whom the prisoners were arraigned, granted them bail in the sum of $100,000.

Huerta Last Ruler Recognized.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—Neil Primrose, Parliamentary Under Secretary of the Foreign Office, replying to questions in the House of Commons, said the British Government had not recognized anybody as President of Mexico since the retirement of Gen. Victoriano Huerta.

He added, however, that the Government had brought to the attention of the U. S. several claims of damage and loss to British interests in Mexico which had occurred since the ex-President's departure from that country in July of last year.

THE CONVICTION WAS QUASHED

Against the Proprietor of the Palace Hotel—Sitting-room Not a Place Where Liquor Was Dispensed

EVIDENCE OF POLICE

In the County Court, to-day, His Honour Judge Huycke quashed the conviction that was registered against Frederick Blastorah, Proprietor of the Palace Hotel, some weeks ago, by Police Magistrate Dumble, of allowing Howard Innis, a blackfister, to loiter on the premises. He was fined ten dollars and costs. He appealed against this conviction, with the above result. Crown Attorney Hatton appeared for the Crown, and Mr. Widdifield for the appellant. The witnesses that were heard this morning, included the entire detective force of the City and several constables. Two important elements entered into the case—one as to whether Innis was allowed to loiter on the premises and the other as to whether the sitting room in which Innis was found constituted a place where liquor was dispensed. According to the Act the latter was permissable, but Mr. Blastorah testified that liquor was never served in the sitting room of the Palace Hotel, although there was nothing in the Act to prevent it. As to whether Innis had been allowed to loiter on the premises, His Honour Judge Huycke held that the evidence tended to show that Innis visited the Palace Hotel on the morning of the day that he was apprehended, for the purpose of collecting an account from Blastorah and was not on the premises longer than ten or fifteen minutes. In the afternoon Innis again visited the hotel for the apparent purpose of washing his hands when he was arrested and subsequently charged with being under the influence of liquor while on the prohibited list. Innis asserted that what liquor he may have had that day was not obtained on the premises of the Palace Hotel.

Drinks Served Over Shelf.

License Inspector Stewart gave evidence as to the location of the sitting room in which Innis was found on the day of his arrest. A hinged shelf that formed a movable barrier between the bar and a passage-way adjacent to the bar figured largely in the evidence. It was admitted by both sides that drinks were served over this shelf. Mr. Hatton sought to show that this passage-way constituted a part of the sitting room in which Innis was found.

Detective Newhall submitted a plan of the bar and adjoining rooms. Howard Innis, who was called, stated that he visited the hotel on the day in question for the purpose of collecting an account of forty cents, representing express charges on a trunk and grip. He failed to find Blastorah in the morning and returned again in the afternoon. He was arrested within about ten minutes after his arrival at the hotel. The circumstances of his arrest were related by two police constables who participated in the event.

Mr. Blastorah who was called by the defence, testified that he did not see Innis on the day in question until after his arrest. He said that drinks were sold over the shelf leading into the passage-way, but never in the sitting-room.

Inspector Stewart declared that he had never recorded a conviction against the Proprietor of the Palace Hotel, which, in his opinion, was doing its part towards enforcing the laws under which liquor licenses are issued.

Increase In Price Of Sugar

Amounts to Twenty-Five Cents a Hundred—Flour is Also up

Sugar has risen twenty-five cents a hundred-locally. This brings the price of granulated up to seven dollars and fifty cents a hundred and yellow up to seven dollars and ten cents. The last increase within the past two weeks is fifty cents a hundred on both grades.

Mr. R .C. Braund, Park and Albert Streets, states that there are prospects for a further increase, as over one half of the amount of sugar consumed is produced in Germany, Austria, France, Russia and Belgium. This amounts to approximately eight million pounds or a total consumption of twenty-six million and seventeen million pounds.

The ordinary grades of baked flour has increased twenty-five cents a hundred, so that the prevailing price is now $4.25 a cwt., or $8.50 a barrel.

YOUNG GIRL IS CHARGED WITH MURDER

Toronto Domestic Who Killed Her Employer Last Evening Was Hopeless With Fear in Court Room

CASE IS REMANDED

SPECIAL WIRE TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—Carrie Davies, the eighteen-year-old domestic, who last evening shot and killed her employer, Charles Albert Massey, popular young society man, and grandson of the founder of the Massey-Harris industry, appeared in the Women's Police Court this morning, her face swollen and flushed after a night of weeping. She is an English girl, but her features resemble the Slavic rather than the English type. Her mouth is strong, showing a strong capacity for resentment. She cried continuously in the dock.

When the charge of murder was read out to her she collapsed and appeared to be helpless with fear.

The case was remanded till a week from to-day, no evidence being taken. In the meantime the police will investigate fully.

Votes For Women Bill is Passed

SPECIAL WIRE TO THE EXAMINER:

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 9.—By a vote of 130 to 71, the House of Representatives to-day passed a resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution of Pennsylvania to giving the women the ballot. The vote was almost identical to that of two years ago, when the measure was endorsed 131 to 70. It is expected the Senate will pass the measure through.

EIGHT CENTS A DAY WAS AVERAGE HAUL AT MARKET LAST WEEK

Forty cents was the grand total of the market tolls received last week between Monday and Friday night. The big snow storm filled in many roads cutting off the lines of communication with the city, and until Saturday morning there were no arrivals from even the proximate concessions. Saturday was a light day, and this week has been correspondingly quiet.

In spite of the Weather Man's interference Market Clerk James Brown installed a new heater this morning, scrapping the old stove whose age and early history is mere tradition.

MOUNTED RIFLES AT FULL STRENGTH

Lt. Col. Johnston Receives Word to Stop Recruiting Although Names Will be Taken For Future Use

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

Lt.-Col. T. J. Johnston, officer commanding the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons received orders from Col. Hemming, O.C., 3rd Divisional Area, yesterday to discontinue recruiting for the Mounted Rifles, as the 6th Mounted Regiment is now at full strength. The local squadron had practically completed its establishment when the order came. Lt.-Col. Johnston was instructed to take the names and addresses of future applicants in order that the information may be available.

The men of the Mounted Rifles are all eagerness to know when they are to leave for Ottawa, where they will be quartered in Howick Hall. The officers have nothing definite to tell them yet, although word has been received to be prepared to leave at any time, possibly to-morrow night.

The 57th detachment to the 39th Battalion are still taking on recruits for the Third Contingent, and now that the Mounted Rifles complement is complete there will probably be a bigger rush to join the infantry. For some reason or other the Mounted Corps seems to appeal to the men, especially to the Canadian-born recruit.

A Kingston despatch says: The number of recruits accepted for the Third Contingent of the Overseas Force in the 3rd Division now reaches 1,731. The 38th Battalion, of Ottawa, has 501 men, and the 39th Battalion, Belleville, has 800. The 6th Mounted Rifles, also of Ottawa, is now over strength, with 480 men. The two battalions of infantry, which have together 1,000 men, need about 700 more men to bring them up to strength. The authorities are quite satisfied with the way the recruiting has been going on, especially in the western half of the division, although the district around Ottawa has not done nite as well. The city regiments still seem to be the best for recruiting purposes. The farmers have not answered the call as well as was expected.

MAY BE UNDER FIRE

General Sam Hughes Likely to be Discussed in Conservative Caucus

SPECIAL WIRE TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 9—The Conservatives will hold their first caucus of the session to-morrow.

The Minister of Militia and his general administration of the Department will be the centre for considerable discussion. It is a matter of general report that the Toronto members and also certain Government members from the West, at one time urged a change in the militia portfolio—a change which Premier Borden strenuously opposed.

Major Sharpe of North Ontario clashed seriously with the Minister at Valcartier and left his Battalion and camp under exceedingly strained conditions, so far as his relations with the Minister was concerned. It is stated that the resentment of the member for North Ontario has not died down since then and there are indications that he will be heard in caucus to-morrow and probably in the House.

FIERCE FIGHTING IN THE ARGONNE FOREST

Line is Surging Back and Forth Like an Accordion With the Advantage Ranging First on One Side and Then on the Other---German Taube is Brought Down

SPECIAL CABLE:

Paris, February 9.—3 p.m. official.—The French artillery brought down a German taube which was endeavouring to reconnoitre the trenches along the Oise to-day, and the pilot and the observer were killed in the fall. The British troops operating in the vicinity of Labassee have retaken the mill which was recently ceded to the Germans, who had attacked in overwhelming forces. The activity about Soissons continues to increase. The reports received to-day say that the city, which is already almost a mass of ruins, is now being bombarded by the Germans with incendiary bombs and parts of the ruined buildings have been set on fire. The Germans are bombarding Furnes, where the Belgian headquarters have been located, with heavy guns, and in the vicinity of Ypres and Nieuport the British artillery is again engaged in a furious duel. The battle in the forests of the Argonne region is still in progress and is characterized as very much confused by the officials. The line swings back and forth like an accordion, the advantage ranging first on one side and then the other. The woods are full of snow which hampers aggressive movements, nevertheless the fighting is of a very fierce character.

New York, February 9.—The New York Herald says to-day: "The British Intelligence Bureau in this city has been much chagrined recently, it was learned yesterday, because the German agents in Halifax are able apparently without the use of the telegraph or the lines to this city, to deliver information concerning Halifax troop movements with more expedition than British agents. It is confidently believed by persons high in the British government service both here and in Canada that the Germans are arranging for some kind of a move to be made at or against Halifax. The activity of dynamiter Horn at Vanceboro, Maine, last week, added to this fear, it was said yesterday."

Toledo, Ohio, Feb. 9.—"I am a German, and I do not care how soon some one drops 1,000 bombs on the Kaiser's head. I do not care particularly if it is an Irish, Russian or British airman that drops them—just so it is done." This statement by Federal Judge John M. Killits, of this city, in a public speech to the Pursuits' Club, of Glenwood School, is the basis of a formal protest which the German American Alliance of Toledo, is forwarding to President Wilson, with a request that Killits be punished for violating the spirit of neutrality.

PROPOSES DRASTIC MEASURES

London, February 9.—Lord Charles Beresford, will in the House of Commons to-morrw, demand that Great Britain treat the German raiders on undefended places as pirates and after a trial by court martial hang them in public for the murder of women and children.

ADDRESSES AT THE GOSPEL HALL

Mr. R. Irving of Belleville, gave an able address on the first chapter of the Book of Revelation, last evening in the Gospel Hall. He said that this last book of the Bible was not a sealed book. The command to St. John, who received the revelation, was, "Seal not the sayings of the prophecy of this book, for the time is at hand," Rev., 22-10. Mr. Irving is a gifted preacher, and for about forty-five minutes he kept his hearers in rapt attention.

Come and hear him to-night on the message of Christ to the churches. "He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches," Rev., 3-13.

THE SILVER BULLET.

The Germans boast that in spite of the war their resources, financial and alimentary are unimpaired, and that the country is prepared for a long continued strain." This may be so, but the fact that one big German bank has reduced its annual dividend from 8½ to 6 per cent., hasn't a wholesome look; and the fact that another big bank has "passed dividend" altogether emphasizes the financial stress. These conditions are very significant, in face of the fact that in Canada, in spite of war conditions, we have Canadian banks one after the other announcing in their annual reports, dividends of 10, 12 and 14 per cent., indicating that the country is doing "business as usual," and that our finances, though seriously affected by war conditions, are in a healthy state. Expert authorities on finance and war have stated that one of the serious difficulties Germany will have to wrestle with will be exhaustion of financial resources, and with that naturally and inevitably, will come exhaustion of all other resources, and weakening of military efficiency all round. When German banks have to forego dividends, and when a popular loan is "subscribed" to by seizing the bank deposits of private individuals, the conditions must be bad, and the outlook worse.

CANADIAN NICKEL.

The nickel question will not down. It is revived continuously by press paragraphs and news despatches, and by the immanent probability that Canadian nickel is reaching the enemy. A despatch from Ottawa states that for the year ending with last November, Canada exported nickel to the value of $6,218,522, of which about three-quarters were sent to the United States. When our nickel reaches the United States it passes out of the control of Canada as effectively as if it went to Mars, where it is actually going. Yet the same despatch states that the Canadian Government is taking no action to prevent Canadian nickel reaching the enemy "beyond keeping as close a watch as possible to see that none of the finished product ultimately goes from the smelters in the United States to Germany." Keeping close watch will have no more effect in preventing this than a close watch upon a predatory and roving cat will prevent it catching and eating sparrows. The Federal Government will, it is also stated, "take no action in regard to prohibiting or controlling export of nickel ores, pending the report of the Ontario commission." The circumstances demand immediate action of some kind. There is no doubt of the possibility, and even probability, of Canadian nickel smelted in the United States, reaching Germany. Canada should take this action, and not further embarrass Britain, which, with her hands full, has enough to do without doing the duty of Canada, in regard to keeping Canadian nickel out of Germany. Waiting for a commission is folly under the conditions; it is like the city fathers holding a meeting in regard to organizing a fire department while the city hall is blazing above their heads. The Government affects emergencies; here is one they must believe in. We are at war and definite and effective control of our nickel exports, might be regarded as a justifiable war measure—for more justifiable than a policy of futile "watching."

UPHOLDING THE RED CROSS.

Our relatives, or our friends, or our other neighbours, are now, or soon will be in the thick of the terrible fighting at the front. We know that they will give a good account of themselves, and sustain the credit of the country they represent, and measure up to the achieved traditions of British bravery in the fighting on many a field under the same old flag. We send them forth, as they themselves go, willingly. But our whole duty is not implied in send-offs and good wishes. While our soldiers can take care of themselves, when everything goes well, and though they ask no odds of anybody, even of the enemy, so long as they are sound in health or whole in body, yet when disease may seize them, or wounds rend them, then our duty begins. Hospital supplies, and hospital service are as important in a strict military sense as in the humanitarian sense. A soldier invalided to a field or base hospital, or not seriously wounded, will, with proper care, soon be again in the fighting line, and again become a cog in the great human fighting machine. But if, through failure of proper teratment, failure of hospital supplies or necessary comforts, the sick or wounded soldier is, perforce, neglected, he is doomed, lost to his friends, lost to t... army, and lost to the world.

While the soldiers are fighting our battles we have much to do at home to fill gaps that we can fill. Reports come of some of our hospitals being in continual need of assistance in various ways; in need of clothing, dressing material, surgical instruments, medicines, etc., with no adequate supply available. And there is especial need of physical comforts, especially socks, which seem to be in particularly urgent demand, and other comforts that come within the functions of the Red Cross work. Every soldier recruited; every contingent enlisted, creates new obligations. While our soldiers go to fight our battles we have a battle to fight at home, and that battle consists in providing for their needs, perpetually recurring, and never satisfied, so long as the soldiers are in the fighting line.

WHOLESOME AND CHEAPER MEATS.

The preservation of the public health is the most important matter that can engage the attention of our government or civic administrators. Pure and practically uncontaminated water supply is an essential. Polluted water supply, as in the case of Ottawa last year, produced a wasting epidemic of typhoid. Polluted water is the case of the town of Brockville being under the almost decimating sway of a typhoid epidemic. Peterborough is blessed with pure water, and consequent virtual immunity from typhoid of local origin. Pure food is also an element in health maintenance. When we eat what we eat we do it with better appetite and better nutritive results, if we are reasonably assured of its cleanliness and freedom from disease. Our paternal government has provided for inspection of meats handled at packing houses; that is, meat chiefly intended for export. This amounts to a protection to other people outside of Canada that is denied the people of Canada themselves; for, except for the comparatively small quantity of meats retailed by the packing houses, the bulk of our meat is slaughtered and prepared, and marketed, purchased and consumed, without inspection as a guarantee against the sale and consumption of possibly diseased meats. Toronto avoids this by the establishment and maintenance of a municipal abattoir. The following from the Toronto Globe in reference to that city's abattoir will be interesting reading for our citizens and instructive reading for our authorities, if they will heed its lesson:

Toronto's abattoir is now rendering a valuable service in providing for the proper inspection of animal food in the city and for the handling of meat under conditions of free competition. One of the greatest dangers attending modern precautions regarding food supplies is the closing out of the small dealer and the consequent subjecting of the public to the exactions of monopolies. This has been entirely avoided by the civic abattoir, for it gives the small butcher-shop all the advantages of the big packing-house. The butcher can buy one or more animals and can use the abattoir or have the killing done by municipal employees. He also has there a market for all the food offal and by-products. An equally important matter is the complete inspection provided. This is encouraged by a provision for buying, at the ordinary price of animal waste, any carcase found on inspection unfit for human food.

The abattoir has prepared the way for the adoption of every sanitary provision which science has devised. Instead of the modern methods closing out small competitive dealers, as in the case of the milk business, the most stringent regulations can be accepted and fully complied with by local butchers. They are supplied with inspection, sanitary methods of handling, cold-storage, and a market for their by-products. This will help to save the public from the sale of unwholesome meat and from monopoly prices that can force the use of injurious food. While the abattoir is kept available for the competitive butcher on fair and reasonable terms it will serve a valuable purpose in making a supply of cheap and wholesome meat continually possible.

When we consider the many advantages that the people of Toronto derive from a public abattoir, could not the subject enlist the practical attention of our authorities — the City Council, the Board of Health, and the Board of Trade? In the case of Toronto its abattoir guarantees the public wholesome meat and discourages the adoption of expedients to enhance meat prices.

THINGS LOOK DIFFERENT IN GERMANY.

Mr. Irvin Cobb, the war correspondent, who, with several colleagues was a "guest" of the Germans for some time, has come home and is lecturing in his native United States. His articles, written while under the censorship of the German Army, leave a rather different impression to that which one gets from a report of his lecture. He was wont to assure his readers that he never came across one case of German outrage in Belgium. They were plentifully reported, but always as having occurred in the next village. Now, Mr. Cobb tells us things that sound as bad as any of these stories of the first weeks of the war. Nor does his picture of the treatment given their wounded by the German authorities strengthen our respect for the German war machine. Every week since the beginning of August, he says, 60,000 wounded are sent in from the front.

The physicians gave them such treatment as they could, and in each batch they weeded out five or six who would never be sent to the hospitals. Instead, said Mr. Cobb, they would be carried out in a "pine box and laid with thousands of other pine boxes containing the remains of nameless German soldiers."

"In the German code," Mr. Cobb reports, "the lightly wounded means the men that are still in one piece." Altogether the lecture gives an impression of ruthlessness and of the subordination of every human instinct to the military machine, which is the severest indictment of Germany that can be made. — Toronto World.

WAR AND TAXATION

Never did the people of Canada face a more serious financial situation than that which prevails to-day. We have run through the revelry of a period of wild land speculation, and now has come the day of judgment—paralysis and depression of trade. And now, with a great number of people on the verge of bankruptcy, and a host of workmen out of employment, we are called on, suddenly and most unexpectedly, to provide extraordinary expenditure for a war.

How to restore our prosperity, and how to provide means for the war, without further embarrassing and injuring our industries, is a question which calls for the most careful investigation. Patriotism in the field we applaud with our loudest huzzah. Should we not show equal patriotism in striving to adjust our financial methods, so that we do not undermine the very source of our strength.

Is the war to blame for our financial breakdown? To some extent, but not wholly. The cataclysm would have come even if there had been no war. Around every growing town the land was bought by speculators, often for miles beyond settlement. It was staked out in lots and each successive buyer added to the price, till the figures ran so high that those who wished to get the land to put it to its proper productive use could not afford to pay the price.

With this increasing price in land, rents rose higher and higher, thus reducing the purchasing power of the workers. This reduced consumption and checked production. Consequently enterprises were stifled, and the manufacturers, seeing their warehouses overstocked, either closed down or ran their factories on short time.

Before we can expect a recovery of good times the price of land must come down, until it becomes profitable for people to use it for productive purposes. With the revival of prosperity, the speculator, if not stopped, will come to life again, the mischievous process of booming will be repeated, to be followed by the same disaster of bankruptcy and unemployment.

Could there be a wider contrast than that between the methods adopted by all our business enterprises, and the methods adopted in our legislation. Wherever men work, in the factory or on the farm, we expect them to do their best, to use the best implements, to work in the most efficient manner, at the right time and in the right place. What could we think of the man who would say to his workmen: On the men who do their best, who raise the best crops, or who make the most goods of the best quality, I will inflict a punishment, but to the men who do their worst, who waste away their time and produce nothing but useless weeds or rubbish, I will give the chance of a fortune.

The usefulness of a horse depends on his training as a colt. Study to develop the intelligence of the colt and you have an asset that will pay dividends as many years as he is with you.

We Can Fight For Our Soldiers When They Can't Fight Themselves

The Necessity of Helping the Red Cross Work in the Relief of Our Wounded or Sick Soldiers at the Front

TORONTO, Feb. 8. — Mr. Brown-Landone caused such a stir in this city and other parts of the Province by his statement as regards conditions existing in the hospitals in northern France, that a cable was sent on January 13th, to Colonel Hodgetts, the Canadian Commissioner of the Red Cross Society in England, by Mr Noel Marshall, Chairman of the Executive Committee, of the Canadian Red Cross Society. The cable was worded as follows:

"Dr. Brown-Landone reports hospitals in northern France in serious need of assistance with clothing, dressings, surgical instruments, drugs not available in France. He recommends shipments to Havre. Says Osborne, American Consul (at Havre) will distribute through private agents. People here are greatly stirred and women are acting promptly. Communicate with Osborne at Havre at once, whether urgent." Take opinion British Red Cross."

Upon the receipt of this telegram Dr. Hodgetts left immediately for northern France and visited Havre, on the way. He made a thorough investigation of conditions existing in the hospital there, and spent altogether two weeks in the country in order that he might visit all the hospitals. A cablegram was later received at headquarters of the society in this city, stating that Colonel Hodgetts was investigating the charges made by Mr. Brown-Landone.

After a thorough investigation had been made by Colonel Hodgetts, the following cablegram was despatched by him and received yesterday by Mr. Marshall: "Personal inquiry made in France indicates the situation misrepresented. This confirmed by the British Society. Brown-Landone unknown. Deserving institutions neglected, but situation complicated by unofficially operated hospitals. Any assistance given must be through official Red Cross channels. Cannot approve of method suggested for distribution of supplies. With your approval will directly furnish assistance where, in my judgment, necessary. French Government now requiring action through official lines only and we must through British Red Cross. "Just returned from France."

The more troops that are sent to the front the greater will be the demand for comforts and surgical appliances. The work of the Red Cross cannot stop for one moment, but rather must go on with greater impetus and energy as the war continues. The generosity of the people of Canada has been splendid, but the Society needs every dollar that they can afford, and every comfort that they can make or procure. Socks, socks, socks, is the everlasting cry of the gallant soldiers in training camps and trenches, and thousands of pairs of socks are needed all the time. Of course other comforts, such as shirts, knee caps and all the articles enumerated in the suggestions contained in the printed booklet compiled by the Red Cross Society, are needed all the time.

It would be to point out that all comforts and goods should be sent to the headquarters of the various provinces and not to the headquarters of the society in this city. The Province of Alberta, which has done so splendidly in every way, has its headquarters situated in the Herald building, in Calgary Those who make comforts in that Province or desire to send a subscription, should send them to the Provincial headquarters, and they will be forwarded to Halifax en route for London, where they are distributed by the Canadian Commissioner

The following cablegram received to-day by Mrs. Plumptre, Superintendent of Supplies for the Red Cross and Secretary of the National Committee for Patriotic Service, from the Secretary of the Canadian War Association will show the need of field comforts for the men at the front. The telegram is as follows: "In addition to supplies for the contingent, while at Salisbury, the Association think it desirable to collect a good stock of woollen and other comforts in anticipation of the departure of the contingent for the contingen to meet requirements when they reach the front. Consignments should also be forwarded to meet requisitions until the contingent leaves and for further contingents, also to enable supplies at the front to be maintained. Please give this matter publicity and forward supplies through the Red Cross."

All these supplies, which are in the nature of field comforts, should be sent to the headquarters of the Red Cross Society, 77 King Street, East, Toronto, or No 1 Campbell Road, Halifax. Each parcel should be carefully marked, "Field Comforts". If there are local depots for dealing with these supplies, they should be sent there.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

PETERBORO JUNIORS DOWN TWO GOALS IN FIRST PLAY OFF GAME

Lindsay Surprised Home Brigade Last Night Winning 5 to 3 in a Hard Fought Game—Visitors Were in Front at End of the Second Period

Reversing the dope of ten days ago the Lindsay Juniors turned the tables on the fighting Petes at Brock Street rink last night in the first of the games to settle the group championship. The Scugog seven won by 5 to 3 with the period scores, 3 to 1, 5 to 2 and 7 to 3. It was no fluke win, as Simpson's gang had a decided margin on the Homesters in the last half of the first period and in the middle of the second session and in that time piled up enough goals to put them off the Petes who came to life after that period and made a game but belated attempt to pull the game out of the fire.

It was a rattling good game with the play a let-up all the way and although the home fans did not relish the game they appreciated the battle, both teams gave all they had and there was not a dull moment.

The Lindsay team played the best game they have shown against the locals. They had speed and pepper, good nice combination and backchecked all the way. O'Loughlin was a star in goal and Flavelle did some good defence work. On the forward line the two Carew brothers and Sandercock were always dangerous. The latter was shifted up from the defence and did good work on the attack, packing a shot that was generally on the nets.

The Petes played their best hockey in the last period when they came back at a clip that had Lindsay on their own nets. Legros played another star game in the nets and the defence checked well. Morrow was very closely watched and the Lindsay players swarmed around him every time he tried to break away on a rush, rendering the damage he worked against them in the last game. On the forward line everyone worked well, with Knapman probably the most prominent. Two of the Petes' goals were the result of his good stickhandling and his persistent backchecking always helped. Jackson and Richardson showed speed and stickhandling, and Smyth was always dangerous, although he found Art Carew a harder proposition than in the first game here.

Referee McCreath handed out fifteen penalties, Lindsay drawing seven of them.

The line-up:

Lindsay.	Peterborough.
Goal
Loughlin	Legros
Defence
Flaveille	Morrow
Hough	Long
Rover
C. Carew	Knapman
Centre
Elroy	Jackson
Right Wing
Sandercock	Smyth
Left Wing
A. Carew	Richardson

Referee—B. H. McCreath, Toronto.

The Petes opened the scoring right after the reel. After a Lindsay rush which was wrecked on the defence, Knapman broke away and after some pretty stickhandling passed to Morrow. The latter's shot was blocked by O'Loughlin, but Knapman came right in and slammed the rebound home. The counter acted like a tonic on both teams and the pace was fast with alternate rushes, that kept the fans on their toes. Richardson was chased for tripping and Knapman followed in for the same offence. Playing two men short the Petes were hard pressed, but a penalty to Sandercock for slashing, evened things up a little. Finally Flavelle broke away after checking a Peterborough rush. Long bodied him just as he shot, but the heave from well outside beat Legros, tying the score.

Honours were even for the next few minutes and then Sandercock sent the Lindsay hopes up when he took a pass from the corner and slammed a counter past Legros, putting the Stripes in front.

McElroy and Long were benched together for mixing it and Sandercock followed for loafing. Shortly after Haugh was chased for slashing. A few minutes before the period ended Lindsay increased their lead when Sandercock snapped up a careless pass from Morrow and went in all alone for the shot.

Lindsay outplayed the homesters throughout the second period. They were breaking away fast, while their back-checking smothered up the Peterborough attacks. The locals were not benefitted much in the early stages of the period, Long, Richardson and Morrow serving sentences, the last pair being off together. Sandercock of the visitors also drew another penalty. Legros made several brilliant saves of close-in shots. Finally Lindsay broke inside in a combination rush and Carew's shot hit the post. The Lindsay goal umpire hoisted his hand, but Referee McCreath was in a position to see the play and removed the goal-umpire, while the counter was not allowed. It might just as well have been however, as McElroy scored from the face-off that followed and the score was 4—1.

Jackson and Richardson were penalized in turn and the Petes were kept busy holding the visitors out. Finally "Chuck" Carew found the nets on a combination rush, leaving the figures 4 to 1. Just before period Haugh was chased for tripping.

The Petes came to life in the last period, and had the better of the game for the rest of the period. In the first minute of play Knapman tore off a nice rush and although his shot was blocked, Smyth secured on the rebound and slid the rubber past O'Loughlin. Sandercock drew another penalty and shortly after Long was hurt and had to retire, Hough being dropped with him. The Petes were keeping O'Loughlin busy at this stage and there were many close calls. A. Carew was chased for tripping, and while he was off the Petes scored again, Jackson doing the trick after a bombardment of the Lindsay nets. Long and Hough came back a moment after. There was no further scoring although the Petes tried hard. Sandercock drew two more penalties before the game ended.

The summary:

SHOULD SANDERCOCK ALSO BE SUSPENDED?

The Port Hope Guide says:

The Lindsay press is not at all jubilant over the result of the protest. They state that Lindsay and Peterborough will play off for the district championship. Port Hope having been thrown out on a protest from Peterborough. We don't wonder that Lindsay is ashamed to acknowledge their part in the protest, but they will have to think umpire[illegible] when they endeavour to lay the blame on Peterborough. Sandercock told the writer that Manager Simpson, of the Simpson House, was responsible for the protest and had put up the protest fee of twenty-five dollars.

Peterborough and Lindsay have been ordered to play home and home games for the championship of the district, in Peterborough on Monday and in Lindsay on Wednesday night. We have always held the very best wishes for a team that defeated us squarely, but for Lindsay we hope that they receive a sound trouncing. And further, that any future sporting organization in the town under the same management shall always draw a blank. Are you listening, Manager Simpson?

"Why did the O.H.A. suspend the whole Port Hope Club," is a question asked by an enthusiast. Their reason was that the other members knowingly played with Hill when they knew he was playing under an assumed name. Sandercock admitted to the O. H. A. that he played with Hill for two years and knew that his name was Wilfrid, and that his certificate read Robert. If the O.H.A. wishes to be fair and Simon Pure, why not suspend Sandercock? Will Mr. Hewitt give us any good reasons why Sandercock is not in the same position as the members of the Port Hope Club?

A World Revival of True Religion Needed

Editor, Farm and Dairy,—The extraordinary anomaly of so-called Christian nations having celebrated the anniversary of the birth of Jesus Christ, the Prince of Peace and Saviour of Men, in the year 1914 A.D., by being engaged in the worst man-slaughtering war known to mankind, is an unmistakable indication of the need of a world revival of true religion, that the Christ which the so-called Christian nations profess to serve, may become really enthroned in the hearts of the people. How can men and women really possess the Christian spirit of love and goodwill toward men, and at the same time uphold such wholesale murder?

Is it not time that every militarist hung his head in the deepest shame? Would it not be very much wiser and better for the Christian nations to spend $40,000,000 a day for the evangelization and Christianization of the nations, than to worse than waste that amount of wealth each day for six months and more in the misdirection of the energy of millions of men to the destruction of life and property? If the amounts spent by the so-called Christian nations in recent years for military rivalry had been spent for world evangelization and Christianization along educational, missionary and philanthropic lines, and the energy of men that have been misdirected to foster international jealousy and military strife had been rightly devoted to the promotion of harmonious co-operation, peace and goodwill, the condition of affairs in the world would be vastly different and better than it is. Had there been half as much real patriotism displayed by the statesmen of the different nations in support of a world federation of the nations for amicable adjustment of international matters (as has been advocated by the peace societies of the world since 1825 A.D.) as the statesmen are now displaying in their appeals for citizens to become soldiers to defend their homeland from invasion, the necessity for a call to arms would have been entirely obviated.

Is it not high time that every true Christian all the world over bowed down in earnest prayer to God for the complete overthrow of all militarism? If there ever was need for earnest revival efforts on the part of Christian people to get people in general converted to right ideas of religion and of citizenship, it is now. And since probably has never been a more opportune occasion than the present time of world distress and sufferings for the promotion of such a revival effort. Let all the pastors and Sunday School superintendents and teachers and other Christian workers of every church congregation and Sunday School, therefore, unite with one accord in prayer to God for the promotion of the much-needed revival, and may all Christians co-operate, irrespective of race, creed, denomination, politics and social standing, to win to Christ all ranks, classes and conditions of men.

Ministers of churches and others desiring help in promoting or conducting special revival services, please communicate with the undersigned for valuable help that can be rendered. All persons interested in world peace and evangelism are requested to send their names and addresses to the undersigned for information how they may help the cause. Start the New Year right by getting right with God, that the year 1915 may be indeed a happy year.—Wm. E. De Forest, Field Secretary and Organizer for The Canadian Peace Society, Springford, Ontario.

The rate quoted for insurance against the cessation of hostilities by the end of the year is 25 [illegible]

THIRD ROUND GAMES ARE ARRANGED

The O. H. A. sub-committee has cancelled the game played between Midland and Victoria Harbour junior at Victoria Harbour on Thursday last, in which Midland was defeated by 11 goals to 10, because Victoria Harbour played Clarkson, Nicholson and Robson Vent, both ineligible under the age rule, though they had been certified to as being eligible by governmen in Hamilton and Victoria Harbour who had no interest in the championship. The boys are disqualified, but the club is not otherwise penalized, having been imposed on by the two players.

The draw for the third round was made as follows:

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Notwithstanding a general downpour in the U. S. visible supply, total wheat today swung to the bull side, losing all of an early advance and more. Export sales were disappointing to the bulls, and there was a slight enlargement of country offers. The market closed unsettled at 2½c to 1⅝c net decline. Other losses for the day were: Corn, ⅛c to ¾c; oats, ⅜c to ¼c, and provisions 7½c to 15c.

Cornmeal—Yellow, 98-pound sacks, in car lots, $3.20; in small lots, $3.50.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 8.—The wheat market was quiet generally, and prices kept very steady. Trading in futures was light. May wheat was traded in at from $1.55⅝ to $1.53⅝; July, from $1.52⅝ to $1.50⅛. Oats opened ⅛c higher, and made a fractional gain, but weakened later. Trading was from 43⅝c to 43⅛c, but transactions were few. There was a fair demand for cash wheat of the higher grades, and quite a number of offerings were on the market.

May wheat ranged from $1.57 to $1.59⅛. July from $1.50⅝ to $1.52⅝.

Wheat futures closed 1⅛c lower for both months, cash closed ⅛c to 1⅜c lower, oats ⅛c to ⅛c lower, and flax ⅝c to 1c lower.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Feb. 8.—Business in grain over the cable today was dull, the demand being very limited and the few firm bids that were in the market were out of line and 1c to 2c per quarter below what exporters asked. The local market for coarse grains is firm with a steady trade passing in car lots, but the demand for round lots was limited. Buckwheat is very strong and prices have scored a sharp advance with sales of car lots at 59c here. Feedstuffs continue to rule firm with a fair local business doing, but the export demand is slow. Millfeed is in good demand at firm prices.

Butter is strong. Cheese unchanged. Eggs steady.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 8.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.54½; No. 1 northern, $1.52 to $1.56; No. 2 do., $1.49⅛ to $1.53½; May, $1.53⅛.

Corn—No. 2 yellow, 71⅜c to 71⅝c.

Oats—No. 3 white, 54⅛c to 54⅝c.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Feb. 8.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 2281 cattle, 540 hogs, 220 sheep and and lambs and 30 calves.

Butchery Cattle.

Choice heavy, butchers' steers, $7.75 to [illegible]; good, $7 to $7.25; medium, $6.75 to $6.90; common, $6 to $6.25; choice cows, $6 to $6.25; good, $5.50 to $5.75; common, $5 to $5.25; canners and cutters, $3.75 to $4; bulls, $5 to $6.75.

Stockers and Feeders.

Feeders, 900 to 950 lbs. each, sold at $6 to $6.40; steers, 700 to 800 lbs. at $5.75 to $6; stockers at $5 to $5.75.

Milkers and Springers.

Choice milkers and forward springers sold readily at prices ranging from $65 to $85 each, and more would have found ready sale.

Veal Calves.

Receipts were light. Choice calves sold at $10 to $11 per cwt; good at $9 to $10; medium, $7.50 to $8; common at $4.50 to $6.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

Light ewes, $5.75 to $6.25; heavy ewes and rams, $4.50 to $5.50; light lambs, $8 to $9.25; heavy lambs, $7.50 to $8; cull lambs, $7 to $7.25.

Hogs.

Hogs weighed off cars, $8.25; $6 to $8.10 fed and watered, and $8.05 f.o.b. cars.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Feb. 8.—At the west end market receipts of live stock were comparatively light, with prices practically unchanged. Sales of full loads of choice steers were made at $7.75, but the bulk of the trading was done in cattle ranging from $6.25 to $7.50 per cwt., with picked lots of all grades selling at an advance of 25c per cwt. over the above prices. Sales of bulls were made at $4.75 to $5, and cows at $4 to $5.50 per cwt.

The feature of the small meat trade is also increasing scarcity of sheep and lambs, and in consequence a stronger feeling developed in the market and prices, as compared with a week ago, show an advance of 25c per 100 pounds. Demand for lambs is good. Sales of Ontario stock were made at $8.25 to $8.50, and Quebec at $7.75 to $8. Spring sheep brought $6 to $6.25 per cwt. There was a good demand for calves, and sales of good stock were made freely at $10 to $12 each. Hogs were strong and prices, as compared with a week ago, show an advance of 10c per cwt. The demand from packers was good, and an active trade was done in selected lots at $8.50 to $8.60, sows at $6.50 to $6.60, and stags at $6.50 to $4.60 per cwt. weighed off cars.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Cattle—Receipts, 13,000; market weak. Beeves, $5.00 to $8.25; cows and heifers, $3 to $7.85; calves, $7.50 to $11.

Hogs—Receipts, 42,000; market firm and higher; light, $6.65 to $6.90; mixed, $6.65 to $6.90; heavy, $6.50 to $6.90; rough, $6.50 to $6.65; pigs, $5.40 to $6.70; bulk of sales, $6.75 to $6.90.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 12,000; market firm; native, $6.25 to $7.10; yearlings, $7.50 to $8.15; lambs, native, $7.50 to $9.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

FEDERAL TAX ON ALL REAL ESTATE IN THE DOMINION

Farm Property, City Lots, and Houses May Be Subject to the Levy

FOR WAR EXPENSES

OTTAWA, Feb. 8.—There is a difference of opinion among the members of the Government as to how best the $15,000,000 additional revenue which is needed to defray the cost of administration during the coming fiscal year can be raised. The proposed new measures of taxation prepared by the Minister of Finance have not apparently met with the favour of all the members of the Cabinet, and there will be a revision before the budget speech, which was at first scheduled for next Tuesday is delivered. The question of the incidence of this new taxation is a knotty problem. Shall the masses or the classes bear the greater part of the burden, is the question which is causing the worry.

The Tea and Sugar Duties.

Increased taxes on sugar, and a tax on tea are said to be among the proposed methods for raising the required money. Here it is pointed out the poor man with the large family must pay more proportionately than the rich man with the small family. In the matter of tea there is said to be a difference of opinion as to whether a specific or ad valorem duty should be imposed. A specific duty would raise more money, but the rich man consuming the expensive blends would not have to pay any more per pound toward the new taxes than the poor man who consumed the cheaper blends. With an ad valorem duty the tea would be taxed according to the value.

The taxing of raw produts is said to be another proposal which the Government has in view. Such taxes, it is said, would be accompanied by a corresponding increase in the duties upon the finished product, and the consumer of the finished product would be assessed the additional cost, while the manufacturer would be little affected. Increased excise duties on tobacco and liquors are always considered defensible, as are also taxes on the luxuries of life, but the income to be gained from such increases will necessarily be ininitisimal.

Tax on Real Estate.

There is a large mass of opinion among members here in favour of a tax of, say, one mill on the dollar upon all assessable property in the Dominion, and it is stated that this method will find many advocates when the question of taxation is being discussed. Such a tax during war times only would, it is believed, meet with a very general measure of approval throughout the Dominion, and would net an estimated amount of about seven million dollars. The question may arise as to whether the Federal Government has power to raise taxation by such a method, but the British North American Act defines one of the powers of Parliament as "the raising of money by any mode or system of taxation whatever." While, therefore, the taxation of property has generally been conceded to be the exclusive right of the municipalities, it would appear that present extraordinary conditions should justify the Dominion Parliament in resorting to any reasonable method available.

The assessable value of the Dominion is estimated roughly at about seven billion dollars, so that a tax of a mill on the dollar would bring to the Dominion treasury seven million dollars.

Tax on Farms.

In the case of a man owning a ten thousand dollar farm the portion of the tax which he would be called upon to pay in the year would be only ten dollars, while in the case of a householder owning a six thousand dollars. The tax would be easily and readily collected. The machinery is already provided, and the municipalities would collect and deposit the monies with the Dominion.

It is recorded in the regard that the city of Peterborough recently collected ten thousand dollars for the patriotic fund by the simple means of taxing all the assessable property in the city at the rate of one mill on the dollar, and there was no complaint. It is contended by many members here that a tax of one mill on all the assessable property in the Dominion for war purposes should meet with a proportionate measure of success and with just as little complaint.

It is a matter of general knowledge that the Government is casting about for new methods of increasing the revenue, has considered the above method. Whether it will figure in the budget is a matter for conjecture.

NOTED UNIONIST PASSES.

Marquis of Londonderry Succumbs To Pneumonia at Age of 62.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The Marquis of Londonderry died yesterday of pneumonia.

The marquis was one of the foremost leaders of the Ulster movement, and was one of the most successful members of the British Bar. He was one of the great noblemen of the United Kingdom, being a Knight of the Garter and an aide-de-camp to the King.

Lord Londonderry traced his descent from Sir Piers Tempest, who fought at Agincourt, through a family distinguished in English history and had himself led an active political life.

Born in Ulster, 62 years ago, he was a graduate of Trinity College, Dublin, which he represented in Parliament. His first preferment under the Government came in 1892, when he was made Solicitor-General for Ireland, and in the last Unionist Ministry he served as Solicitor-General of England from 1900 to 1906. In his younger years he was a member of Parliament for County Down from 1878 to 1884, and Viceroy of Ireland from 1886 to 1889. He held several offices in the Balfour Ministry. He was one of the largest landowners in Britain, holding 50,000 acres.

GENERAL LOAN UNLIKELY.

Joint Flotation of Allies Will Be For Advances to Other Powers.

LONDON, Feb. 9. — The Times, commenting on the official bulletin relating to the conclusions of the allies' financial conference, says:

"We think that a close reading of the announcement will suggest that no general international loan is contemplated. The joint loan to be issued in the name of the allied powers, is to cover, it will be seen, advances made or to be made to other powers.

"The news that the financial measures necessary to re-establish the parity of exchange between Russia and the other allies, so far as this is possible, have already been adopted, is particularly welcome. Russian commerce has suffered greatly owing to the closing of the Dardanelles at a time when her northern ports are frozen.

"It is good news, too, that purchases from neutral countries are to be made jointly by the allies. There were obvious dangers of competition."

British Loss in 104,000.

LONDON, Feb. 9. — Premier Asquith speaking in the House of Commons yesterday said that British casualties in all ranks in the western arena of the war, from the beginning of hostilities to Feb. 4, amounted to approximately 104,000 men. This includes killed, wounded and missing.

WAS REAPPOINTED TO THE BOARD

Meeting of the Charity Board —Tenders For Wood

At last night's meeting of the Charity Board, Mr. H. Rush was reappointed chairman for the ensuing year, and Mr. J. McClelland, vice-chairman. Mr. S. R. Armstrong was also reappointed secretary, and Mr. H. Stabler, treasurer. Mayor Buller and Relief Officer Miller were authorized to examine the carload of wood now at the station, with authority to purchase same if satisfactory at $4 per cord.

John S. Crowe, of Mount Pleasant, offered to supply a quantity of mixed wood at $3.00 a cord, and hardwood at $4.50. He later amended this offer which was not accepted.

Mr. W. Manley, 682 Downie street, wrote to the Board stating that he would not be able to fulfil his contract for a supply of wood owing to the deep snow. He also claimed that the price was too low.

Mr. C. O'Reilly, of Ennismore offered to put in a supply of mixed wood, half soft and half hardwood, at $3.50 a cord. The tender was not accepted.

SPOKE TO CROWDED HOUSE AT KEENE

Envoy Brown of the Salvation Army closed his series of meetings at Keene last night with a crowded house. He kept his audience spellbound with the thrilling story of his life and his wonderful conversion. Envoy Brown will open meetings in Lakefield on Thursday night.

Police Court

Matthew Doody, charged with vagrancy in Police Court this morning was remanded for a week. He was not asked to plead.

Doody joined the Third Contingent, but was discharged a short time ago. When he was forced to wear a band on his arm to let the hotelkeepers know that he was to be refused drink between the hours of 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. it did not agree with his usual habits. He followed the system of quitting work when it interferred with his drinking.

EXPORT UPHELD.

Sir Robert Borden Says Britain Approves Nickel Policy.

OTTAWA, Feb. 9.—Before the debate on the address commenced in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon W. F. Maclean (S. York) moved for leave to introduce a bill to regulate the export of nickel. He said the bill was designed to prohibit export of nickel matte during the present war, as undoubtedly Canadian nickel was reaching the enemy through the United States.

Sir Robert Borden objected that the bill had not been preceded by a resolution, but waived his objection for the moment in order to make a statement on the subject.

"So far as the general subject of the bill is concerned it has received the very careful and prolonged consideration of the Government," he said. "The arrangements which have been made with regard to the exportation of nickel have received the unqualified and absolute approval of the British authorities and especially of the committee which has been formed in Great Britain for the purpose of dealing with the exportation of any materials or supplies which might be of use to the enemy."

In reply to a question from Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Premier promised to table all correspondence on the subject.

BRITISH COLONIAL SECRETARY'S TRIBUTE READ IN COMMONS

While Expressing His Desire to Keep Out Political Issues, Sir Wilfred Laurier Asks That Charges of Poor Boots For Soldiers Be Ventilated

OTTAWA, Feb. 9.—The address in the reply to the speech from the throne was adopted by the House last night after an interesting debate, in which a number of leading members on both sides participated.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier expressed his desire to avoid party bickerings and to give a generous support to the policy of the Government. At the same time, he declared that the people, through their representatives, had a right to enquire how the large appropriations were being expended. Errors of judgment were, in his opinion, unavoidable, but the charge has been freely made that the boots supplied to the first contingent were entirely unsuitable, and that the health and lives of our soldiers had hereby been endangered.

The Minister of Militia had stated that the man who furnished some of these boots should be shot. Surely it was the duty of the Minister to locate and punish the guilty persons. It was claimed, indeed, that the fault was not found in the material or workmanship, but in the specifications furnished by the Militia Department. In any event there should be a searching investigation.

Sir Robert Borden said, in reply, that the Opposition were clearly entitled to inquire what had become of all the moneys voted for the public service. The Government would welcome the fullest inquiry into any expenditures in connection with the war. If the specifications for the boots were wrong the blame lay at the door of the former Minister of Militia. However, it was not clear what type of boots should be adopted.

The British army service boots was open to serious objections. As far as the Prime Minister knew, the illness at Salisbury Plain camp had been due to the extraordinary weather which would have invalided many of the troops no matter what kind of boots they had on.

The Prime Minister gave an interesting review of the war, and in this connection read a despatch from the Colonial Secretary.

The Colonial Secretary said: "Nearly four months have now passed since the first Canadian contingent arrived in the United Kingdom. It was recognized on its arrival that Canada had sent a fine body of men, constituting a most valuable addition to the crown's fighting forces. Training has been continued in the time that has since elapsed, and is now practically completed, under unprecedented conditions of climate, which have involved discomfort in spite of every effort on the part of his Majesty's Government to alleviate the hardships, which have been borne by the contingent with a cheerful resolve that augurs well for their endurance of the arduous conditions of actual active service.

"The contingent was inspected by his Majesty the King on Thursday last, and his Majesty was much gratified at the marked general improvement since he last inspected them, and at the spirit of eagerness and loyal enthusiasm which fills all ranks. The contingent will shortly join their Canadian comrades of the Princess Patricia's Light Infantry at the front. These are acquitting themselves in a manner worthy of the great Dominion to which they belong, and some of them have already given their lives for the great cause for which the Empire is now fighting."

The address was moved by Mr. Weichel (Con., N. Waterloo), who made an excellent speech, and was seconded by Mr. Achim (Con., Labelle). Speeches were also delivered by Dr. Clark (Lib., Red Deer), W. F. Maclean (Con., S. York), and E. M. MacDonald (Lib., Pictou, N.S.).

Entertainment Of Young People

Of Park Street Baptist Church Proved a Great Success

The Young People's Society of Park Street Baptist church held a social last evening that proved to be a great success. About one hundred people were present. Just two items composed the short programme—a violin solo by Mr. M. Dunkley and a vocal solo by Miss Hill, both of which were appreciated. This was followed by a game that was introduced by the President, Mr. Dunkley. The game, which is known as the "potato race," proved very interesting and laughable. After that "musical chairs" was played, and was followed by refreshments. Credit is due the Social committee for the splendid entertainment that was provided. A very enjoyable evening was brought to a close with the singing of the Doxology.

A Letter From The Trenches

Pte. Charles Stenner Late of Douro Now With Princess "Pats" Writes to Friends Here

The following is a very interesting letter from Pe. Charles Stenner, late of Douro, to Mr. Fred Walsh, of Douro. Pte. Stenner is fighting in the trenches with the Princess Patricias:

270 P. P. C. L. I.
No. 1 Co.
Canadian Expeditionary
Force, Europe.

Dear Fred,—Having a bit of paper to spare, I thought I would drop you a line to say I am O.K. here so far, hoping all is the same with yourself and family. I was just thinking a game of checkers with you would go down fine for an hour or so. I have been sick for a day or so, but am fine now and expect to be back in the trenches with the boys again. I can't tell you where we are, as I would like to. All I can say is we relieved a French regiment from the trenches. Say, they are trenches, too—knee deep in mud and water and dead bodies lying everywhere and impossible to bury them as they lie between us and the German trenches. Show yourself and you are as good as dead. We can't advance till our artillery has driven their artillery from the woods on each side of us, which is hard to do. The weather is bad here and the country very flat, which makes the trenches fill up with water. It must be as hard for the Germans as for us, and that is one consolation. We are only 100 yards from them and can hear them at night fixing up the damage our guns do in the daytime. We put the bullets to them then and make them quiet. I guess they wonder who we are, but they will know some day.

Must close with kind regards to all.

Your friend,
C. STENNER.

P.S.— Have no more paper, no excuse short letter. C. S.

Unnamed Sum For War Purposes

LONDON, Feb. 9. — For the first time in two hundred years the British Government yesterday invited the House of Commons to give it a blank check for army purposes.

This is virtually the effect of the new precedent set up by the introduction of the army estimates without details and without the aggregates of the expenditures, and when Parliament has voted the sum of £5,000 sterling under each of the fifteen groups of expenditures it will have voted supplies without limit for an army of 3,000,000 men, to be accounted for when the war is over.

H. J. Tennant, Parliamentary Secretary of the War Office, paid a warm tribute to the territorial troops, whose value and efficiency, he declared, had been proved by recent events to be unquestioned. The British design of aeroplane, the Secretary contended, has been found superior to that used by any other country. The speaker said also that as a result of the excellent sanitary services cases of enteric fever were rare, and that evidence was accumulating that inoculation ought to be made compulsory.

The naval estimates, issued last evening, asks Parliament to vota for an additional force of 32,000 officers and men.

This would bring up the total personnel for the present year to 250,000 men.

THOMAS M. HUNTER APPOINTED ASSESSOR FOR NORTH MONAGHAN

At Regular Meeting of the Township Council—Month's Relief Bills Mount up—No Action Re Library Proposal—Seek Aid From the Ratepayers

TO BORROW $3000 NEEDED

The North Monaghan Council met yesterday afternoon in the Town Hall, all the members being present, and Reeve McIntosh presiding.

A communication from H. J. McCannan, Real Estate dealer, was fully discussed. Moved by Messrs. Bell and Robson, that H. J. McCannan's request be replied to by the clerk as follows: "That the Council could not find any reasons for complaints in the amount of assessment as he is not assessed any higher than any other parties owning property on the same subdivision."

Mr. Wright came before the meeting and asked permission to cut two beach trees and two pine trees on the highway near his property. Moved by Messrs. Forster and Robson that the question of Mr. Wright cutting trees on the public highway be left in the hands of the Reeve to consult the township solicitor before any action be taken.

A communication was received from the headquarters of the Salvation Army in Toronto, soliciting contributions. Moved by Messrs. Forster and Rye that the Salvation Army be granted five dollars.

Auditor's Report Accepted.

The auditor's report was then read in full. Moved by Messrs. Forster and Robson that the report be accepted and that the same be published according to law.

Moved by Messrs. Robson and Bell, that By-law No. 609 be read and finally passed, authorizing reeve and treasurer to borrow sum of $3,000 from the Bank of Ottawa to meet current expenditure. Carried.

Township's Charity.

Mr. Rye, acting relief officer, made a full report of his services to date as relief officer. The following charity bills were presented for payment:

J. E. A. Fitzgerald, fuel.....$22 00
J. D. Manley, provisions 13 53
E. A. Saunders, provisions..... 20 80
W. J. Byers provisions..... 31 81

Moved by Messrs. Robson and Bell that the above bills be passed and paid. Carried.

The clerk presented an order from the Provincial Government re registration of births, deaths and marriages for $15.60. Moved by Messrs. Forster and Robson that the above order be passed and paid.

Reeve McIntosh presented an application from Mr. William Stevens for Relief Officer. The application was received.

The applications for the assessorship were then taken up. Applicants were Bert Sanderson, assessor for the past two years, and T. M. Hunter. Mr. Forster moved that Bert Sanderson be reappointed. The motion was not seconded. Moved by Mr. Robson and Bell that T. M. Hunter be appointed assesor. Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Bell and Robson that the assessor's salary be $95. This is the same amount as paid last year.

The appointment of road commissioners was then dealt with. Moved by Mr. Forster, seconded by Mr. Rye that the six former road commissioners be reappointed. The following amendment was moved by Messrs. Bell and Robson: "That Mr. Archie Patterson be appointed road commissioner for R.D. No. 6." Reeve McIntosh voted for the amendment, which carried.

Notice to Street Railway.

Moved by Messrs Bell and Robson that the attention of the Peterborough Radial Railway Co. be brought to the banks of snow along the sides of their tracks in North Monaghan.

No Action Re Library.

Mr. Rye reported that the committee of the public library, Peterborough, had asked for an interview with him and proposed that the township grant 50 cents toward each subscriber from the township, each subscriber to pay 50 cents per year. The present rate for all members outside the city limits is $2.00 per year. No action was taken.

Moved by Messrs. Forster and Rye that any one in the township who desires to contribute provisions or clothing for the relief of the poor to leave the same at Joseph H. Bell's residence, and H. B. Rye, acting relief officer, will distribute the same.

The next meeting will be held at the Court House, Peterborough, on the second Monday in March at 2 p.m.

ATTEMPT TO PREVENT DESTRUCTION OF FISH

LINDSAY, Feb. 8.—Superintendent Hammond, of the Waterworks Department, has a couple of men employed cutting large air holes in the ice on the upper Scugog river with a two-fold purpose in view, (1) Relieving the stench and gas from the river, and (2) To prevent the destruction of fish by the wholesale.

For some time past citizens have noticed a very disagreeable odour coming from the water of the Scugog, particularly as they passed the Lindsay street bridge, where the water has been flowing over the mill dam. The drinking water also has been tasting bad, although it is in no way dangerous.

The cause is attributed to the decayed vegetation in the river, and upper Scugog Lake. The weed beds and the bogs have been polluted and are stagnant for the want of air, and as a result, the fish, it is claimed, are being destroyed in large numbers, and will be found lying on the shores of the Scugog again this spring as they were last spring.

The remedy is found in cutitng air holes in the ice, a work that should be undertaken by the Government authorities, but which is being undertaken by the Waterworks Department.

It is stated that when the men employed began cutting holes in the ice the fish came to the surface in large numbers, and that they were almost suffocating for the want of air. The poisonous gas, has not doubt, already killed a great many of the piscatorial tribe.

RECRUITING LIVELY AMONG THE IRISH

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The Central News publishes the following notation from an interview with John Redmond:

"The Irish people are represented as a sentimental people. I thank God that they are.

"Their sentiment is entirely with France and Belgium and the small nationalities. The Irish people are also people of political instinct and common sense. You may take it from me that in this grave crisis they will decide their course for themselves. Those people who at a distance attempt to speak for them are wasting their breath.

"In proportion to population — bearing in mind that the number of men between the ages of eighteen and thirty-five is smaller in Ireland owing to emigration than in any other country in the world—recruiting has been eminently satisfactory and creditable.

"Figures which I got to-day for the first time show that up to the beginning of January, including the Irishmen in the army at the beginning of the war and those who have joined since, there were on that date 92,042 Irishmen with the colours, of whom 65,000 are Catholics and 20,451 Protestants.

"Of the Irish National Volunteers, who the people of America are being told, refused my advice to enlist, there are to-day 16,000 with the colours. What is more, the recruiting is going on at present at a rate of about four thousand a month. The figures given me show that last month 3,500 recruits joined, of whom 2,300 are Catholics and 1,200 are Protestants."

TORONTO MAN MURDERED BY EIGHTEEN-YEAR-OLD GIRL

Charles Albert Massey When About to Enter His Home on Walmer Road is Shot Down by Domestic

TORONTO, Feb. 9. — Charles Albert Massey, 34 years old, 169 Walmer road, a son of the late Charles Albert Massey, whose family established the firm of Massey-Harris and erected the Massey Music Hall, was deliberately murdered as he turned from the sidewalk to enter his home about 6.15 o'clock last night. Carrie Davies, an 18-year-old domestic employed in the Massey home, fired two shots from the verandah at her employer, one of them going wild and the second striking him in the chest close to the heart. Mr. Massey died almost immediately. The girl is held on a charge of murder.

According to the story told by the police, a newsboy named Ernest Murphy, address unknown, came to the door and asked for Mr. Massey so that he could collect money due him. The Davies girl told the boy her employer was not in. When he was leaving the verandah the boy saw Massey coming from Dupont street and waited for him. He got his money, and when he had walked a short distance up the street he heard a shot fired. He turned around and another shot was fired and Massey dropped on the sidewalk. The girl was said to be on the verandah then.

CHARLES ALBERT MASSEY.

Dr. Mitchell, 140 Walmer road, was also coming from Dupont street to his home, when the shooting took place. He was soon at Massey's side, but could do nothing for him. The police were called and on their arrival surrounded the house. Sergt. Brown entered and in the cellar he found Albert Massey, aged 14, a son. After passing through the rooms of the ground floor he started to ascend the stairs. Miss Davies called him to come up. He called back, commanding her to come down. They met at the top of the stairs. She had the revolver in her hands with which she did the shooting, but did not attempt to use it.

Miss Davies had been employed by Massey for the past two years.

According to police and neighbors, Mrs. Massey left Toronto yesterday morning for Hartford, Conn. The dead man was a prominent figure in the younger society set in Toronto.

$149,962,168 Is Asked For

Main Estimates For 1914 Are Tabled in the Commons

OTTAWA, Feb. 9.—The estimates for the year were brought down in the Commons yesterday. The total sum to be provided for is $149,962,168, of which $105,870,093 is on consolidated fund account, and $44,092,075 on capital account. This is $17,789,330 less than was asked for last year, which shows economy on the part of the Government, for a large proportion of the various sums for public works are re-votes for works already in progress or arrangements for the progress of which has been entered into.

There is a noticeable diminution in the number of new works provided for.

The public debt, including sinking funds, takes up $23,648,506, as compared with less than $15,000,000 last year. There is a slight increase in civil government, which is placed at $7,024,353.

Public works is $22,351,830, compared with $33,390,656. Militia and defence is $5,780,100, as against $11,608,682. The war expenses are, of course, not included in this.

Subsidies to provinces are about the same — $11,451,673.

Railways and canals are $15,515,500, which is over a million less than last year.

Capital expenditure on railways and canals is $32,000,000, or $4,000,000 less. Public works capital expenditure is about $12,000,000, or $4,000,000 less.

There is a decrease of $2,000,000 in the amount required for annual drill for the militia, nearly $2,000,000 less for ordnance, arms, etc.; $293,500 less for cadet services, $360,000 less for clothing, and $500,000 less for stores.

Railway and canal votes include: I. C. R., $8,128,359, decrease $1,340,000; P. E. I. Railway, $1,938,925, increase $292,000; Hudson Bay Railway, $5,500,000; N. T. R., $500,000 for construction.

Crooked breast-bones are mostly the result of allowing young stock to roost too early.

It is more profitable to keep 20 good fowls than double the number of indifferent ones. If a small flock cannot be made to pay, it is useless attempting to conduct the business successfully on a larger scale.

LIVE STOCK MARKET

SPECIAL WIRE TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—Live Stock Market.—Receipts fair, trade fair. Prices: Canners, $4.00 to $4.25; hogs, off cars $8.15, fed and watered $7.90, f.o.b. $7.65.

THINGS TO REMEMBER

Strong germs in the eggs cannot be secured if the fowls and houses are infested with vermin.

Poor feeding is not conducive to high records.

The profit from fowls depends largely on the amount of attention they receive.

The flavor of eggs is largely influenced by the quality of the food supplied to the birds that lay them.

Constitution, laying type, and breed points are the main essentials in mating the breeding-stock.

It is a wise policy to have on hand reserve males for the breeding-pens.

The strongest germs are invariably found in eggs laid by birds that have a free range.

DIED IN ROCHESTER

Brother of Local Resident Passes Away in That City

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Feb. 8.—Richard Leonard Hayes, aged 19, brother of Mrs. H. Fitzgerald, of Peterborough, Ont., Canada, died suddenly Saturday night following a brief illness, at the home of his parents, 175 Averill Avenue. Deceased leaves his mother, and four other sisters, three residing in Rochester and the fourth, Mrs. E. J. Killeen, in Cleveland, Ohio. Interment will take place Tuesday morning here in Holy Sepulchre cemetery, Rochester.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The big Allan liner Mongolian arrived at St. John, Nfld., shortly after midnight Monday with a large hole in her bow, caused by striking a rock outside the harbor.

The assembling department, one of the largest at the Singer sewing machine works at Elizabeth, N.J., has announced a return of all men on a full time schedule.

In reply to an interpellation in Parliament yesterday Admiralty Lord Churchill stated that no court-martial would be held in connection with the sinking of the battleship Formidable.

The Russian ambassador at Rome has given notification to the Italian Government that the Austrian prisoners of Italian nationality whom Russia is ready to deliver to Italy number 3,837.

Percy Scott, a young man, has admitted at Kenora that he murdered Fred Lewis, a farmer, near Dryden. Seeing Lewis working in the bush he took deliberate aim and fired. He then robbed his victim of $15.

Urging the Government to furnish seed grain to all deserving persons and not only to those in limited areas where the crops were affected, a delegation from the Regina Board of Trade waited on the Dominion Government yesterday.

CONTINGENT IN FRANCE?

Arrival of Part of Canadian Force Evidenced by Messages.

TORONTO, Feb. 9. — Cable messages received in Toronto yesterday indicate that part at least of the Canadian Expeditionary Force is in France. One of these was to Mr. Frederic Nicholls, whose son, Lieut. Walter Nicholls, is with the Queen's Own Rifles. Another Torontonian whose son is with the Queen's Own Rifles received a cable. Each cable was from France, and each recorded the safe arrival of the sender. The Q. O. R., the Grenadiers and the Governor-General's Body Guard constitute the 3rd Battalion of the force.

Further Casualties.

OTTAWA, Feb. 8.—The following casualties in the Canadian Expeditionary Force were announced by the Militia Department:

Died of wounds—Jan. 21, Sergt. Robert J. Mansfield, P.P.C.L.I. Next of kin, Mary Mansfield, Southwark, London, Eng.

Wounded—Feb. 6, Lieut. Henry E. Sullivan, P.P.C.L.I. Next of kin, Col. Sullivan, Wilmington, Surrey, Eng.

Seriously ill—Pte. R. J. Phillips, 17th Battalion, at Netheravon, with tuberculosis. Next of kin, Mrs. Mary E. Phillips, Woodbridge, Ont.

Man Reported Dead Is Alive.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 9. — Private Frank Oram, a British reservist, who left here for the front on the outbreak of hostilities, has been killed in action according to the British War Office, but Oram writes to his wife in this city denying the report and saying that he is "very much alive." He explains the discrepancy by saying that his identification disc got into the possession of a fellow soldier who later fell in the fighting.

Soldiers Will Guard Tunnels.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 9.—An order received from the Militia Department at Ottawa yesterday called for the stationing of guards at the Grand Trunk tunnel between Sarnia and Port Huron and at the Michigan Central tunnel between Windsor and Detroit.

The Conservatory Orchestra Concert

Mark Tapley's sentimental philosophy that admits no merit is being "jolly" when things are fortunate, suggests that there was no merit in being patriotic at last night's concert, when one couldn't help it, considering its object and the splendid humour for being good represented by the delightful quality of the programme; especially when Frank Oldfield "came out strong" in striking the keynote, by his splendid singing of "Be British" as his opening number. The Opera House was fairly well filled with a listening audience, who could not help enjoying the excellent programme, which had only one fault; it was too long, and had to be curtailed on the principle of giving Hamlet with Hamlet left out—Elgar's "Land of Hope and Glory," to be sung by Oldfield as the closing number was omitted.

The concert was the annual concert of the Conservatory orchestra; and the Conservatory orchestra held the boards in every sense. Its work was exceptionally worth while. It gave its three numbers with the aplomb and finish of a professional orchestra, and in the cleanness, neatness and spirit of its work, showed that its hard work, and Mr. Gliddon's painstaking training, combined with the musical enthusiasm of the members, is rounding out a splendid musical organization, a credit to the musical capabilities of the city. The three numbers given by the orchestra were Thomas' overture to "Raymond;" a Donizetti excerpt— from the "Daughter of the Regiment," and selections from Gounod's "Faust." In all these the orchestra achieved a striking success. There was a splendid balance of parts and impeccable tempo, in the most involved passages. The shading was delicate and smooth; the forte passages strong, without loss of musical quality. The members show a fine proficiency, the incidental solos revealing capability of execution of an artistic order. In a word the work of the orchestra was quite up to concert pitch.

Mr. Frank Oldfield, baritone, was a host in himself. The "Farmer's Pride," an old English folk song, was brilliantly sung, and his rousing patriotic song, "Be British"—Moss—struck the patriotic chords of the hearers' hearts, and the keynote of the spirit that marked the evening. "The Trumpeter" by Dix, was a strong rendering of a strong song, and showed the fine quality of his voice and the beauty of his method to advantage. Mr. Oldfield knows how to sing, how to use a beautiful baritone; his enunciation is exceptionally pleasing and his restraint and elan are artistically gauged. The bracketted number, "Somewhere a Voice is Calling," was soulfully sung. His encore number, "Floral Dance" by Moss—a Cornish air—was a genuine musical delight, lilty and uplifting, sprightly and graceful in character and execution. He sang Handel's "Why Do the Nations" from the Messiah, with grand effect, which was, however, somewhat impaired by piano accompaniment which, however, well played, cannot take the place of the great master's orchestra accompaniment.

Miss Lina D. Adamson, of the Conservatory staff, was the violinist, and opened with Vieuxtemp's arrangement of "St. Patrick's Day." This was played with fine vim and dash and spirited reproduction of the sprightly musical temper that marks the transcriptions of this composer. Her other selection, a double number, gave her a chance to display the special quality of her playing, a dainty tenderness and sweetness that few, if any artists can surpass—a berceuse by de Grasi; and a Kreisler caprice, "Viennois," in contrasting character brought out her ability for brilliant effects. While Miss Adamson's tone is not robust, it is pure and sweet and dainty, her harmonics are of pearly purity, and her double stopping is faultless, her technique is ample—a fine combination of daintiness and dexterity. Mr. Leo Smith the 'cellist, scored a deserved triumph. His numbers were, his own arrangement of an excerpt from Carmen; Saint Saens' "Swan," which delightfully displayed the dainty artistry of the performer; and a rollicking Spanish dance by the prodigal Popper, Mr. Smith's wonderfully fine double stopping and harmonics are features of an exceptional artistic equipment as a 'cellist.

Miss Ada Richardson, soprano, opened her contributions to the programme with an artistic presentation of the selection, "Piano, Piano, Canto Pio," from "Der Freischuts." This was sung with fine adaptation of her excellent voice, to its demands; with sentiment and appreciation of dramatic values. She appeared with equal success in duet with Mr. Oldfield, the two finely blending voices being heard, with charming effect, in Parker's "Spirit of the Wood."

Miss Jeannette Kilmaster, of the Conservatory staff, was the solo pianist. She played a contrasting double number, a concert study by Liszt, and a scherzo by Chopin. This is the first time Miss Kilmaster has played in public since her recent course of musical study in Germany. Her playing of these numbers showed a fine artistic spirit and capability. Her tone is excellent and her method free from affectation and while soldily effective, is brilliant, facile and graceful.

The accompanists, who share the large credit due to all participants, were Miss Pearl McKee and Miss Kilmaster, of the staff, for Miss Richardson and Mr. Oldfield, respectively; Miss Adamson for Mr. Smith, and Mr. Smith for Miss Adamson.

The pianoforte used on the occasion was a Steinway Grand, supplied by the Nordheimer Company, Toronto.

CLASSES OF INSTRUCTION

Home Guards' Officers and Non-Commissioned Officers on Parade

The class of instruction to enable officers and non-commissioned officers to qualify for their respective positions, was organised at the armouries last evening, and will continue each Monday evening at 8 o'clock sharp.

Regt. Sergt. Major C. Peters was in charge and has been appointed instructor. Last night he gave the class two hours' good drill as a squad, with intervals, and this will be followed each night with advanced drill, lectures and catechism by the instructors and other officers.

A large number was present, sixty officers in all, and marked attention was given to the work. This will be a splendid opportunity for the members of this class to get thoroughly posted under Sergt.-Major Peters, as probably no instructor in the Dominion has passed as many officers through his hands.

Arrangements have been completed for a supply of instruction books, also for a properly heated room in the armouries for lecture purposes.

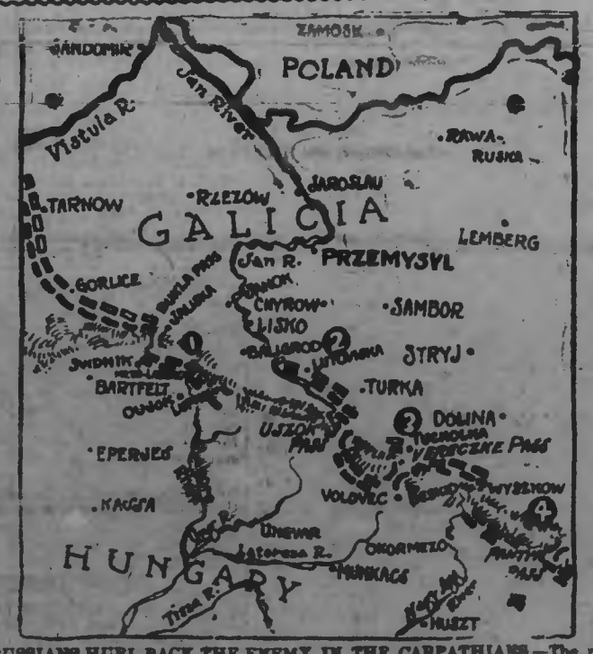
Mr. Beland Cannot Get Away.

QUEBEC, Feb. 9.—News came yesterday by cablegram that Hon. Dr. H. S. Beland, M.P. for Beauce, is unable to leave Belgium, the German authorities refusing him passports.

That Dr. Beland well weighs the danger he incurs in Belgium is indicated by the fact that, in his cablegram, he asks his relatives in Beauce County to see that payment is made on a life accident insurance policy he holds in a local insurance company, be paid in due time, as he cannot see to it himself.

Prayer Read In Germany.

BERLIN, Feb. 9.—(Via London.)—Pope Benedict's prayer for peace was read Sunday in the Catholic churches throughout Germany. The reading of the prayer was the occasion of a ceremonial of particular solemnity at the Cologne Cathedral. Cardinal von Hartman took part in the eucharistic procession to the cathedral and read the Pope's prayer.



RUSSIANS HURL BACK THE ENEMY IN THE CARPATHIANS.—The recent official Russian statements are more favourable. The figures on this map illustrate it thus: (1) Resistance of Austrians broken and 2,000 men captured; (2) Enemy compelled to retreat from Latoviaka; (3) Austrians retreated hurriedly after crossing Tucholka and Beskid passes, where they formerly had been victorious; (4) Enemy in considerable force at Pantyr Pass successfully checked.

Beware of Trouble

It is the wisest thing you can do to have your watch examined at this time of the year.

The cold weather is apt to harden the oil—that stains the mainspring and affects the motion.

People usually wait until something breaks. The other way is the cheapest in the end and a little attention at the right time save the watch.

Wages of Women On The Farm

THE wages of women for domestic labor on farms was first investigated by the United States Government in 1902. In hiring by the season the wage rates of domestic labor of women on the farm are higher than in hiring by the year. The monthly rate by the season was $9.71 in 1909; $11.95 in 1910, and $12.02 in 1909.

This is about the average wages of women in Canada also. Since 1909 wages have still further advanced, so that the average monthly wages of women on the farms in 1913 was $13, as near as can be arrived at. The western provinces have an average rate far above the average of the country. In 1910 the average rate in the western division of the States was $1.55.

In 1913 the rate in the western provinces averaged about $25.

The foregoing rates are with board and room. When domestic labor of women was employed by the day the average wage rate for Canada was about 80 cents, differing, of course, according to locality; though in this regard the difference is much less than in the United States for the older settled parts.

In farm household matters the situation has become acute with regard to the supply of hired labor. Country girls, as well as city girls and immigrants, seem to regard household labor as undesirable. Joined with this fact is the other one, that the women of the farmers' family are neither able or willing to repeat the manual labor performances of their grandmothers on the farm. Besides this, the farmers' standard of living has risen. In a perceptible degree, the women of the farmers' family have engaged in social functions which are beginning to be incompatible with the performance of household labor without the aid of a servant, which it is almost impossible to possess. The social obligations undertaken by them are for the Women's Institutes, the Grange, Women's Clubs, Women's C. T. U., the local church and Farmers' Clubs. This list might be much extended.

DOMESTIC INDUSTRIES PASSING

The old-time domestic industries are all but forgotten. The women of the farm make no more soap, candles or lye. They neither spin or weave, and so on with a long list of domestic products of former days. It is rarely that one of the younger of the women know how to knit. Throughout large areas the pride of the household in its home-made cheese supply, its home-made soap supply; its hand-woven rugs, blankets and wearing material,

ACCOUNT HAS BEEN PAID

City Will Have to Bear a Loss of Six or Seven Hundred Dollars

There seems to be little doubt but what the City will have to pay the account of $1,200 that is demanded by the Hydro Electric Commission of Ontario for electric current, part of which was used in connection with the street lighting system. That portion of the current which was not used to illuminate the streets, was said to have been dissipated through one of the transformers. The actual loss to the City will be in the neighbourhood of six and seven hundred dollars. It is stated that two transformers or "rectifiers" were connected where one would have served the purpose, with the result that there was nearly double the amount of current passing through the transformers and being metered as was actually required to operate the magnetite arc lighting system.

Account is Certified.

The current was supplied by the Peterborough Light and Power Company and charged to the City through the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario. The latter has certified the account with the Company and is now looking to the City for payment.

The Commission is of the opinion that the account will have to be paid in fact the account has been certified to and arrangements made to meet it so that the matter has been definitely settled, with the exception of a possible enquiry that may be instituted for the purpose of ascertaining who was responsible for the loss of current.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. W. Comstock, 211 Sherbrooke Street, will not receive to-morrow or again this week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hamilton, of Fort William, arrived in the city to-day to attend the funeral of the late Ellen Sim, who was a sister of Mrs. Hamilton.

The many friends of Mr. G. W. Mann, "The Hawthornes," Smith, will be glad to know that he is rapidly recovering from his recent operation in Nicholls Hospital.

Mr. Ernest Brownscombe, who has been spending the past few months in the City, left to-day for Ottawa, where he will be attached to the head office staff of the Bank of Ottawa.

Miss Alice Logan, who has spent the past year in the X-Ray department of the City Hospital on Blackwell's Island, New York City, is spending a short vacation at her home, 14 Murray Street.

Mr. George Perks, of No. 4 Company Divisional Engineers, of the Second Contingent, now in training at Ottawa, spent the week-end in the city visiting family and friends. It is probably the last visit he will make to Peterborough before going to the front.

AUCTION SALE.

Mr. John O'Reilly of lot 3, con 1, Ennismore, is holding an auction sale of his farm stock and implements on Thursday, February 23rd, at one o'clock sharp. The sale is without reserve, as Mr. O'Rielly has disposed of his farm. W. J. Howden, Auctioneer. 1d-33-1w-6.

WEDDING BELLS

CONROY—O'CONNOR.

A very pretting wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Conroy, Otonabee, on Wednesday, Feb. 3, when their daughter, Miss Pearl Conroy was joined in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Thomas O'Connor of Peterborough, son of Mr. and Mrs. John O'Connor, Smithfield, by Rev. Dean McColl. Miss Kenna Sheehan was bridesmaid, while the groom was assisted by Mr. John Conroy, brother of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor will reside in East City.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

Mr. H. O. Fisk, manager of the Peterborough Public Utilities is developing into an expert marksman. Last evening he made his periodical visit to the Murray Street Ranges where he accounted for a number of bullseyes. Mr. Fisk is a member of the Home Guard.

The City Hall Flag.

The flag that decorates the flagstaff at the City Hall will soon be a thing of the past. As far as appearances it is in a class with the one on top of the Customs House. Alderman Edgar has suggested that the latter emblem be supplied with a few pieces which would complete the semblance to the Stars and Stripes. The original flag is represented by three or four strips of bunting.

Will Purchase a New One.

As a result of a communication received from J. J. Turner and Sons, calling the Council's attention to the dilapidated looking flag on top of the City Hall, Alderman McIntyre has been instructed to secure from J. J. Turner and Sons, prices on a new one. This will envolve an expenditure of about twelve dollars.

WITH OTHER COUNCILS.

The Public School of Wellesley was burned with a loss of $30,000. Insurance was carried at $17,000.

Irregularities Alleged.

General irregularities are alleged against the township council elections of Sandwich East. Proceedings have been taken to unseat the whole council.

Hospital Destroyed.

The isolation hospital of Bradbridge was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. The fire is supposed to have been started by a smallpox patient.

Has Resigned.

William MacIntosh, for 41 years Public School Inspector for Hastings County, has tendered his resignation, to take effect in July.

Incinerator Wanted.

The City of Kingston has been notified that her garbage collecting company will quit their contract. They are faced with the problem of installing an incinerator plant immediately.

A Cut in Rates.

The Hamilton Hydro-Electric Commission has announced a cut in rates shortly. Teh commission wil also consider the lighting of approaches to the city and will take up the matter with adjoining township councils.

$4,000 for Relief.

Lincoln County Council has decided to raise another $3,000 to invest in flour to be sent to the Belgians, as well as $5,000 for the Patriotic Fund.

Called for Tenders.

The Municipal Hydro Union has called for tenders for 1,000 electric stoves to be retailed to buyers at cost. The Toronto commission will take 300, London 100, and the remainder to be distributed in small lots.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Matilda Reynolds, relict of the late Conductor William Reynolds, passed away on Monday, Feb. 8, in Toronto.

The funeral will be held to-morrow (Wednesday) from the noon C. P. R. train to Little Lake cemetery, for interment.

PATRIOTIC PUMPERS FOR THE FARMERS

The campaign to encourage the farmers of Canada to increase their production of foodstuffs, which is being undertaken by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, was formally launched at the Winter Fair held recently in Ottawa. The principal speakers were Hon. W. P. White, Minister of Finance; Robt. Miller, of Stouffville; and Dr. C. C. James. The following extracts are taken from their speeches:

Hon. W. T. White: "The true patriot is often the man who remains at home and works."

"The true economic policy of a nation at war is to increase production at home."

"When our men are fighting and dying in the trenches, we should put forth corresponding efforts to increase production at home."

"Since 1891 manufactures in Canada have doubled, wheat production has trebled. City population has increased 61 per cent. and rural population by only 17 per cent."

"Cattle production in Canada has not kept step with other lines of production."

"Cattle production is the very basis of successful agriculture."

"Conserve your brood animals and rear your calves to maturity."

"Let those who can't go to the war put forth a supreme effort to increase the food supply of the Empire for anything that increases our [illegible] gthen our position as it relates to that of our foes."

"I don't believe that any country in the world has come through the financial crisis caused by the war better than Canada."

"We have spent millions upon our railways, canals, harbor, and other national undertakings. This has been to facilitate transportation. Now we have reached a new era in which increased production must be the slogan."

"The national policy to-day is increased production."

"It is the duty of Great Britain's colonies to see that she does not suffer from a lack of food supplies."

Robert Miller, Stouffville: "There will be no limit to what our young men at the front will do to achieve their end because they know that their end is right. There should be no limit to what we will do to keep them and our Allies fully supplied with the necessities of life."

"What will it be worth to us all when this war is over if we are able to say that we made sacrifices on behalf of the Empire? We will be able to do this if we put forth an effort to increase the production of those things which are necessities for our country in this time of war."

Dr. C. C. James: "The seven millions of people of Belgium have had their land devastated, their homes ruined, and hundreds of thousands of lives sacrificed in order that they might defend the great principles involved in this war. In doing so, they defended France and Great Britain and Canada. Let us show our gratitude by putting forth the effort necessary to increase the production of the farms of Canada."

DESPERATE CONFLICTS IN PROGRESS AT MANY POINTS

Fierce Battles for the Carpathian Slopes

ADVANTAGE WITH RUSSIANS GERMANY'S HEAVY LOSSES

Kaiser's Army in the East Have Been Driven Back to Their Second Line---Germans Concentrating Fresh Troops

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PETROGRAD, Feb. 10.—Battles for the slopes of the Carpathians and passes which command the Hungarian Plains, are being waged with a desperation that is unprecedented.

The mountain sides are strewn with dead and dying. Both sides are being constantly reinforced and the battle is developing so that it promises to become one of the most decisive of the war.

If the Russians win—and all reports indicate that the advantage is with them—then they will be able to retain their holdings in Bukowina and also to attempt an invasion in force of Hungary.

If they are forced to retire it will not be disastrous inasmuch as they will simply fall back on their strongly entrenched positions in Galicia and Northern and Eastern Bukowina.

At Bartfield and Svidnik attacks of the Germans have been repulsed with heavy losses, and in the region of Lupkow Pass they have been driven back on their second line, the Russians capturing 600 officers, 5,200 men, 10 machine guns, and a large number of supplies. In East Prussia the Germans are concentrating fresh troops for an offensive movement against the Russians who are invading in force. They have essayed the offensive in the Horzele-Johannisburg neighbourhood and in the region of Lasdehnen. At the latter place the Russians almost entirely exterminated one attacking battalion of Germans.

On the left bank of the Vistula, after a series of attempts to break through the Germans have abandoned their offensive and are now reported to be quiet. The German losses in six days of fighting along the Borshymow-Gouine-Volleshidlowska are declared to be in tens of thousands.

GERMANS SOON TO ESSAY A GENERAL OFFENSIVE

Enemy Bringing Up Large Numbers of Men and Huge Quantities of Supplies to the Triangle of the Oise and the Aisne.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PARIS, Feb. 10.—Isolated conflicts at half a dozen points in the long battle line from the sea to the Swiss frontier are being fought with the utmost desperation. This is especially so in the Woevre region, Argonnes, La Bassee and at Furnes.

But according to reports reaching here to-day, the Germans have been unable to gain any material advantage, although they greatly outnumber the French.

Elsewhere on the front fighting is confined to artillery duels.

The Germans have been bringing up large quantities of men and supplies to the triangle of the Oise and the Aisne, and it is expected that they will essay a general offensive in this section soon. In front of the long La Bassee line the Germans have been reinforced by a reserve Bavarian regiment, and in anticipation of an attempt to break through the British defence positions along the canal have been very greatly strengthened.

The Belgian artillery in the north is reported to have demolished part of a German trench and supply depot north of Nieuport. The Belgian forces, withdrawn for a fortnight to permit their being refitted, are now back holding all of the territory inside of their own frontier not occupied by the Germans, and they are reported to be making slow but steady gains at a number of points.

In general there is little change in the dispositions. The Alsace campaign is halted by heavy snows, but both sides are in readiness to assume the offensive shortly.

THE SMITH COUNCIL APPOINTS ITS OFFICIALS

Members of the Municipal Council of the Township of Smith met in the County Council chamber on Monday, February 1st at ten o'clock. All the members were present, with Reeve McKee in the chair. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Three applications were received for the position of assessor for 1915: Bruce Fitzgerald at a salary of $130, R. N. Scott at a salary of $125 and postage, and C. A. Northey at a salary of $100 and postage.

By-law No. 733 was passed, making the following appointments:

Jas. A. Young and R. J. Edmison, auditors, at a salary of ten dollars each.

Mr. C. O. Northey, assessor at a salary of $100 and postage.

Mr. John Chittick, collector, at a salary of one hundred and fifteen dollars and postage.

R. N. Scott, relief officer, with usual fees.

By-law No. 734 appointed the local Board of Health as follows: Reeve Fred McKee, Deputy-reeve Jobe, Dr. J. A. Morgan, and the Clerk to act as secretary.

Mr. J. J. Bickell addressed the Council and said that it was his intention to erect a wire fence along his property on the River road, providing it came under By-law No. 730. The Council assured him that they considered such a fence to be of great advantage to the road and approved of his building it.

Moved by Deputy-reeve Jobe, seconded by Councillor Northey, that section two of By-law No. 730 be changed to read 20 cents per rod instead of 15 cents.—Carried.

Moved by Councillor Nichols, seconded by Councillor Northey, that the following rules governing snow or wire fences be issued to the fence viewers of the township.

I—All fences must be in proper place.

II—Fence must be of some advantage to the adjacent highways in preventing snow from drifting.

III—Fence must be of No. 9 wire, 4 ft. 6 in. high and built in a substantial workman-like manner.

IV—The sum of 20 cents per rod be paid.

V—An order signed by an appointed fence viewer on the township treasurer, is sufficient authority for the treasurer to pay the same—Carried.

Moved by Councillor Nichols, seconded by Councillor Northey, that the communication of Mr. J. H. Garbutt, re relief to one Alex. Austin, a resident of the township, be received, and that the sum of five dollars be granted.—Carried.

Ex-Warden R. N. Scott adressed the Council in the interests of the Sawyer-Massey Co. He pointed out that the present grader had exceeded its usefulness and should only be used as an auxiliary. He showed several cuts of graders and the matter was left over for future consideration.

Messrs. Scott and Garbutt, President and Secretary of the Smith Patriotic Society, addressed Council and gave a report of the amount of funds collected. It was decided to leave the matter of distribution to the local Council.

Mr. T. T. Millburn addressed the Council re his road division, and pointed out that the road, although in fair condition, was too narrow for safety. He suggested that stone could be drawn during the winter and a portion of it considerably widened at a very little cost. Reeve McKee spoke favourably of the suggestion and would give it his consideration.

Moved by Councillor Northey, seconded by Councillor Moore, that the communication of Mr. F. M. Dela Fosse, the City Librarian be received and laid over for future consideration.—Carried.

Moved by Deputy-reeve Jobe, seconded by Councillor Moore, that the treasurer be instructed to pay the following accounts: Earnest Scott, 14 cords stone, $53.60; Sidney Bicwell, 39 cord 80 ft stone, $49.50, Dr. Morgan, service as M.H.O., $9.00; St. Joseph's Hospital, L. Beauvorain, $9.00; Clerk, registration fees, $18.20; Oliver Buck, snow fence, $2.00; Harry Millburn, snow fence, $2.00; Fred Dunber, statute labour, $6.00; R. Hetherington, digging pitch holes, 25c.; Ed. McEwen, stone on road, $10.00; J. McManus, 16 cords stone, $36.40;

Council adjourned to meet again on Monday, March 1st.

WHO GOT WHEAT PROFITS?

Speculators Say the Farmers Did, but the Farmers Deny It.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Considerable speculation is indulged in here as to who has made the big profits on the 300,000,000 bushels of wheat in the United States after the last harvest. Prices have doubled in six months. Board of Trade men say the farmer has reaped the greatest profits, but the farmers insist that the speculators are the real winners. Both agree that several Wall Street men and foreign agents who got in heavily when the going was good have taken the cream of the business.

Many of the big trades here were scared out of the market before wheat reached $1.50. James A. Patten says he has had no wheat since the price left $1.45, but he had a great quantity of it before and his profits are estimated between $250,000 and $1,000,000. J. Ogden Armour has been a bull on wheat since the war began and his deals are on an enormous scale. C. W. Partridge is said to have cleared $500,000 before wheat reached $1.50. On the Board of Trade are many men who have cleared from $50,000 to $250,000.

The Wall Street men got into the market early and on a large scale. They had the advantage of being closer to the export buyers, but their deals have been handled over private wires and no estimate of their profits can be made.

COUNTRY ROADS IN BAD SHAPE

Rural Mail Deliverers Report Them in Bad Condition—Hastings News

Special to The Examiner:

HASTINGS, Feb. 9.—It was learned with regret during the past week, that Mrs. J. O'Reilly, late of Toronto, but formerly of Hastings, had passed away, at her home in the City after an illness of only three or four days, death being due to paralysis. The body was brought to Hastings where interement was made Mrs. John Sullivan of Percy is a daughter of the deceased. Much sympathy is expressed for the bereaved relatives.

Rural mail deliverers inform us that the roads throughout the country are in a very bad condition, owing to the snow blockade of the past week. On the side-lines recourse has had to be made to the fields, in a great many instances, as too much labour would be involved in shovelling out the hills.

The hockey match on Monday night was very well attended, and a good game put up betwen the locals and a team from Trent Bridge. The Quarterly Sacrament service was held in the Methodist Church on Sunday morning.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tyler was the scene of a quiet though pretty wedding, on Tuesday evening, when their daughter, Florence, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. J. Pulfer of Saskatchewan. Rev. T. H. P. Anderson tied the nuptial knot in the presence of only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. After the ceremony the bride received the congratulations of her friends, after which the company repaired to the dining-room, and partook of a sumptuous repast. Mr. and Mrs. Pulfer left the following day on a honey-moon trip with friends in Western Ontario, after which they will repair to their future home in Saskatchewan, followed by the best wishes of a host of friends who join in wishing them a long life of connubial bliss.

Word has just come to town that Mr. Wm. Savage, who is well known here, had succumbed to injuries received while on the battlefield. His friends are still hoping that the report may not be confirmed.

Miss Campbell of Morganstown has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. M. Baker.

At the Manse, on Monday evening, the Rev. D. A. Thampson, Pastor of the Presbyterian Church, united in the holy bonds of matrimony, a young couple, well known here. The bride was Miss Blanche, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Graham, and the groom, Mr. Reginald Warner, both of Hastings. Mr. and Mrs. Warner will take up residence here. Their many friends extend congratulations.

Mrs. Taylor Huycke returned last week from a visit with her sisters in Peterborough.

Mr. Wesley Oakley was in Norwood on Monday attending the funeral of his aged mother, there.

Miss Maud Warner of Fenelon is holidaying under the parental roof.

Miss Willema Fife is spending a few days with friends in Peterborough.

Miss B. Baker of Warkworth has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. H. Wilson.

Mr. J. Clarke spent Monday in Peterborough.

Miss Roe of Warkworth visited friends here on Saturday.

The many friends of Mr. C. Beamish regret very much to learn that he is about to be transferred to another branch of the Union Bank after being manager of the local branch for the past five years.

Mr. Jas. Stevenson has taken over the rural mail delivery for R. R. No. 3, relieving Mr. Milton Beavis.

Mr. Alex. Fleming is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fleming.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Doherty of Percy spent Sunday with friends in this section.

Mr. F. Hubbs was in Peterborough on Monday.

Mr. Reg. Runnels of Toronto spent Sunday in Hastings with his parents.

WHAT CAUSES COLDS?

This question and "How to Prevent Colds" is asked a thousand times every day. A cold is really a fever, not always caused by the weather but due to a disordered condition of the blood or lack of important food-elements. In changing seasons fat-foods are essential because they distribute heat by enriching the blood and so render the body better able to withstand the varying elements.

This is the underlying reason why the medicinal fats in Scott's Emulsion quickly overcome colds and build strength to prevent more serious sickness. It combines nature's medicinal fats, so skilfully prepared that the blood profits from every drop, and it is totally free from harmful drugs.

"AN EVENING IN JAPAN" GIVEN

By the Ladies of the W. F. M. S. of the Methodist Church

Examiner Special:

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 8.—"An Evening in Japan," held in the lecture room of the Methodist Church on Monday evening proved to be very interesting and unique. Ladies in Japanese costume, presented papers on Japan, to a large and appreciative audience. The ladies enhanced the beauty of their narratives, not only by appearing in costume, but also by the profound obeisances at the commencement and finish of their discourses.

Mrs. Moore, W.M.S. Organizer for the County of Peterborough, was present and addressed the meeting.

The following was the programme:
Hymn—No. 5.
Prayer—Revd Mr. Johnson.
Chairman's Address—Mrs. (Rev.) Johnson.

SICK, SOUR STOMACH, INDIGESTION OR GAS

"Pape's Diapepsin" Makes Upset Stomach Feel Fine in Five Minutes

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Pape's Diapepsin and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

Millions of men and women to-day know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favourite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief, is Pape's Diapepsin which costs only fifty-cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. Please, for your sake, don't go on nauseated with a weak, disordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.

"THE BATTLE CRY"

Charles Neville Buck

CHAPTER XXXIII.

If in the mountains there was one person of whom the Bluegrass knew with favour, it was Juanita Holland. She had worked quietly and without any blare of trumpets. Her efforts had never been advertised, but the thing she was trying to do was too unusual a thing to have escaped public notice and public laudation. That she was spending her life and her own large fortune, in a manner of self-sacrifice and hardship, was a thing of which the State had been duly apprised.

She at least would stand acquitted of feudal passion. She stood as a lone fighter for the spirit of all that was best and most unselfish in Kentucky ideals and the ideals of civilization.

If she chose to come now as a character witness for Anse Havey, she should have respectful hearing. The prisoner bent forward and fixed eyes, blazing with excitement, on the door of the witness-room. He saw it open and saw her pause there, rather pale and perplexed, and then she came steadily to the witness stand and asked: "Do I sit here?"

The man had known her always in the calico and gingham of the mountains. This seemed a different woman, as she took her seat and raised her hand to be sworn. She was infinitely more beautiful, he thought, in the habiliments of her own world. She seemed a queen who had waived her regal prerogatives and come into the mean court-room in his behalf. His heart leaped into tumult. He would not have asked her to come; would not have permitted her to submit to the heckling of the prosecutor whose face was already drawing into a vindictive frown, had he known. She had come anyway—perhaps after all she cared! If so it was a revelation worth hanging for.

Then he heard her voice, low and quietly pitched, in answer to questions.

"I have known Mr. Havey," she said evenly, "ever since I went to the mountains. He has helped me in my work and has been an advocate of peace, wherever peace could be had with honour."

At the end of each answer the Commonwealth's attorney was on his feet with quickly snapped objections. Anse Havey's heart sank. He knew this man's brutal capacity for bullying witnesses and he had never seen a woman who had come through the ordeal unshaken. Yet slowly the anxiety on his face gave way to a smile of infinite admiration. Juanita Holland's quiet dignity made the testy wrath of the State's lawyer seem futile and peevish.

The defendant saw a subtle change of expression dawning on the faces of the Jury. He saw them shifting their sympathy from the lawyer to the woman and the lawyer saw it, too. They kept her there, grilling her by all the tactics known to artiful lawyers for an unconscionable length of time, but to each brow-beating question she returned a calm and unshaken response.

"By God!" exclaimed Anse Havey to himself as he leaned forward, "she's makin' fools of 'em all— an' she's doin' it for me!"

Even the Judge whose face had been sternly set against the defence shifted in his chair and his expression softened. The Commonwealths attorney rose and walked forward, and Anse Havey clenched his hands under the table while his fingers itched to seize the tormentor's throat.

"You don't know that Anse Havey didn't incite this murder. You only choose to think so. Isn't that a fact?" stormed the prosecutor.

"I know that Anse Havey is incapable of it," was the tranquil retort.

"How do you know that?"

"I know him."

"Who procured your presence in this court room as a witness for the defence?" Each interrogation came with rising spleen and slurring accusation of tone.

"I asked to be allowed to come."

"Why?"

"Because I know that back of this prosecution lies the trickery which seeks to dispose of Anse Havey so that it may plunder his people."

The lawyer wheeled on the Judge.

"I must insist that your Honour admonish this witness against such false and improper charges or punish her for contempt," he blazed furiously.

But the Judge spoke without great severity as he cautioned, "Yes—the witness must not seek to attribute motives to the Commonwealth."

It Juanita, however, was sustaining with no outward show of discomfort the savage onslaughts of a man trained in the art of confounding those who sat in the pillory of the witness-chair, she was inwardly feeling need of holding her emotions masked and in check. As the questions became more and more personal, and she recognized in their trend the purpose of making her appear biased, she first flushed a little, then paled a little, but her voice betrayed no hint of annoyance.

The attorney took another step forward with a malicious smile. He paused that the next question and its answer might fall on the emphasis of a momentary silence. He pointed a finger toward the girl and demanded.

"Is there any sentimental attachmen between you an this defendant, Anse Havey?"

There was a moment's dead silence in the court room, and Anse saw Juanita's face go white. Then he saw her finger nails whiten as they lay in her lap and a sudden flush spread to her face.

She looked toward the Judge, and at once the lawyer for the defence was on his feet with the old objection: "The question is irrelevant."

Then, while counsel tilted with each other, the girl drew a long breath, and the man whose life was in the balance turned pale, too, not because of this, but because the woman he loved had been asked the question which was more to him than life and death—a question he had never dared to ask himself.

"I think," ruled the Court, "the question is relevant as tending to affect the credibility of the witness."

So she must answer.

The prisoner's finger nails bit into his palms and he smothered a low oath between his clenched teeth, but Juanita Holland only looked at the cross-examiner with a clear-eyed and serene glance of scorn under which he seemed to shrivel. She replied with the dignity of a young queen who can afford to ignore insults from the gutter.

"None whatever."

The defendant sat back in his chair and the smile left his lips like writing effaced from a slate with a wet sponge. He knew that his case was gone and yet as he saw her leave the witness-stand and the court-room, he felt sicker at heart that he had felt since he could remember. He would have preferred condemnation with the hope against hope left somewhere deep in his heart, that there slept in hers an echo to his unuttered love.

The question he had never dared to ask, she had answered; answered under oath and liberty seemed now a very barren gift.

When he had been acquitted and was going out he saw a figure in consultation with the prosecutor, a figure which had not been inside the doors during the trial. It was Mr. Trevor of Louisville, and he was testily saying, "Oh, well, there are more ways of killing a cat than by choking it with butter."

Anse Havey did not require the interpretation of an oracle for that cryptic comment. He knew that the effort to dispose of him would not end with his acquittal.

Juanita was going away to enlist her staff of teachers and arrange for the equipment of the little hospital and the man did not tell her of his insecurity.

"You'll promise to be very careful while I'm away, won't you?" she demanded as they sat together the night before she left.

"I'll try to last till you get back," he smiled. He was sitting with a pipe in his hand which had gone out and had been forgotten.

In the darkness of the porch everything was vague, but herself. She seemed to him to be luminous by some light of her own. She was a very wonderful and desirable star, shining far out of reach of his world.

Suddenly she laughed, and he asked: "What is it?"

"I was just thinking what a fool I was when I came here," she answered. "Did you know that I brought a piano with me as far as Peril? It's been there over a year."

"A piano!" he echoed, then they both laughed.

"I might as well have tried to bring along the Philadelphia City Hall," she admitted. "Just the same there have been times when it would have meant a lot to me, an awful lot, if I could have had that piano. I don't know whether music means so much to you, but to me—"

"I know," he broke in. "I sometimes 'low that life ain't much else except the summin' up of the things a feller dreams. Music is like dreams — it makes dreams. Yes, I know somethin' about that."

She went away and though she was not long gone, her absence seemed interminable to Anse Havey. On her return, he met her at the train, with a starved idolatry in his eyes and together they rode back across the ridge.

But when she entered the building, which had been the first school-house, the man drew back a step or two to the rear and switched as surreptitiously as a boy who has in due secrecy planned a surprise.

She went in and then suddenly halted and stood near the threshold in amazement. Her eyes began to dance and she gave a little gasp of delight. There against one wall stood her piano.

She turned to find Anse Havey waiting in the door as awkwardly as a green boy. Just how difficult a task it had been to bring that great weight across those roads unharmed, she could only guess. He must in effect have built the roads before him as Napoleon built them for his armies.

She turned to him, deeply moved, and after the first flush of delight, her eyes were misty.

"I wonder how I am going to thank you,—for everything," she said softly.

SUFFERED FROM BILIOUS HEADACHE.

At Times Thought She Would Go Mad.

Headaches are one of the most aggravating troubles a person can have. They are many and varying; but when the headache starts you may be sure that there is some other chief cause of this most painful difficulty. The stomach may go wrong, the bowels become constipated, the blood may not circulate properly, but the presence of the headache clearly shows that there is some other baneful disease which is liable to assert itself unless the cause of the headache is removed. Get rid of the headache and thus perhaps save yourself many years of trial and suffering.

Burdock Blood Bitters has, for the past forty years, been curing all kinds of headaches, and has also proved itself to be a remedy that cures where all others fail. It does this by removing the cause of the trouble.

Miss Mary A. Roberts, Hampton, N.B., writes: "For about two years I have suffered from bilious headache. At times I thought I would really go mad. Not long ago a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters which I did, and after taking three bottles I have never been troubled with any kind of a headache. I think that B.B.B. is one of the wonders of the world. I can safely recommend it to all who suffer from bilious headache."

Burdock Blood Bitters is the oldest and the best known blood medicine on the market to-day, and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Danger Signals Warn You of Approaching Paralysis

Slowly and Surely Exhaustion Goes on Until Collapse of the Nerves is the Natural Result.

You may be restless, nervous, irritable and sleepless, but you think there is nothing to be alarmed at. You have no appetite, digestion is impaired, and there is weakness and irregularity of other bodily organs. You feel tired in body and mind, and find that you lack the energy to attend to the daily task.

MRS. ALLAN.

You may not realise that these are the symptoms of nervous prostration and the danger signals which warn you that some form of paralysis is the next step of development.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most successful restorative for the nerves that has ever been offered to the public. This has been proven in many thousands of cases similar to the one described in this letter.

Mrs. Thos. Allan, R.F.D., 2, Sombra, Ont., writes:—"Five years ago I suffered a complete breakdown, and frequently had palpitation of the heart. Since that illness I have had dizzy spells, had no power over my limbs (locomotor ataxia) and could not walk straight. At night I would have severe nervous spells, with heart palpitation, and would shake as though I had the ague. I felt improvement after using the first box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after continuing the treatment can now walk, eat and sleep well, have no nervous spells and do not require heart medicine. I have told several of my neighbors of the splendid results obtained from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

...A... CAREER

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

Edward Wilkins was a farmer boy who when he was but seven years old showed signs of a towering ambition. Even at that tender age he discerned that, while there were a number of sources of power, the one that covered the widest field was wealth. At any rate, he saw persons living in fine houses and driving about in style, and he not only envied them, but resolved that as soon as he was able to accumulate money it should be the object of his life.

When Edward was fourteen he said goodby to his father and mother and went to the city to begin a career. Being bright and ready at all times for work, he found a situation and not only kept it, but advanced rapidly. As he grew older there was no desire in him for money in itself, but for the power and prominence it would give him. Except for the first few years he spent in the city, he did not accumulate by saving. The fortune that came to him was the result rather of daring operations, for which he seemed to have a genius.

After awhile Edward Wilkins had accumulated so much money that it seemed impossible he should ever be poor. His safety lay in having so much capital that he could carry through any scheme he undertook. If he wished to buy all the corn in the country and hold it at his own price he was able to do so. Did he choose to buy a railway he could first depress the stock, then purchase it and hold it at his own valuation.

Wilkins had no desire to exercise the power his wealth gave him. He was content with knowing that he possessed it. He did not care for political preferment; he took no interest in influencing the course of the government.

When the great financier was forty years of age he had reached the summit of his ambition. He had acquired enormous power through his wealth, but since the exercise of that power would give him no enjoyment he had come to the end of his desire. He was like Alexander, who complained because there were no more kingdoms to conquer.

When an active brain tires of what has occupied and fed it there comes a craving for something to take its place. One such person will spend years building a sumptuous residence, which is more likely to be a sepulcher than a home. Another will turn author, taking comfort in giving to the world theories for which it has no use. Wilkins, now that he had reached his goal in half a lifetime, began to wonder what would be the end of the other half. After a continued rise to the summit would he descend again to end his career in the valley?

One thing he had lived long enough to recognize. Life appeared to him a constant shifting. Nothing seemed to endure unless it was inanimate, and even that, though slowly, was continually changing its form. There were mountains where there had been valleys and valleys where there had been mountains. Cities had been buried for centuries, forgotten, then uncovered to serve as curiosities. Whole sections of land had slid down into the sea and passed out of sight.

What would become of his great fortune? He knew that after his death it would pass back into the great ocean of wealth. But would he retain it for the rest of his life? Now that he had achieved it he no longer valued it and cared not so much what was to become of it as what was to become of him. Enough to give him the ordinary comforts essential to old age was all he desired. But that much was of great moment to him.

One night he dreamed a vivid dream. He dreamed that he returned to the farm and was a boy again. Yet he possessed all the experience he had acquired. His ambition was gone. He said to himself: "Here I am, and here I wish to remain. My body is not as it was, full of life. It is tired. All I desire is rest."

It was a strange dream, this old spirit in a young body. It made a marked impression on him at the time, but gradually passed out of his mind with other forgotten things.

When Wilkins found that he had attained his desire he bethought himself what he could do to replace the object he had lost. Like many other rich men under similar circumstances, he decided to build himself a magnificent residence. He had long owned the farm on which he had been born. His father and mother had died there, and he had no use for the place. So the house was shut up and the land left untilled, though he gave orders that the house and fences should be kept in repair. The farm marked his beginning; the palace he was about to build would mark his end.

He spent a year on designs for his residence, then began to build. Four years passed, and it was not finished. Indeed, he did not wish it finished. He clung to building it for something to occupy him. When it was complete and he moved in he seemed lost in it. It was big enough for a hundred families, and there was only himself to use it.

One day when he felt ill and tired and lonely he concluded to go to the farm. He had not been there in many years. The view in front of the house he had always loved, and he sat down on the little porch to look at it.

Then he remembered his dream.

He never left this place of his birth and a few weeks he died.

Doctor Said She Had Bright's Disease.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED HER.

Bright's disease is a term applied to one of the most serious of all diseases of the kidneys, the symptoms of which are often of a severe character.

Severe pains in the back appear at first and are followed by disturbances of the urinary organs which show that the urine contains a large amount of albumen. Dropsy is also another forerunner of the dreaded Bright's disease. On the first sign of any kidney trouble you should at once put the kidneys right by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. The pill that cures kidney troubles only.

Mrs. C. A. Heistand, Mooswa, Alta., writes: "Last May I was taken down sick. The doctor told me I had Bright's disease. My kidneys got so bad I could not rest day or night. The doctor's medicine did not give me any relief. I used four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, and they put me in good shape again."

Doan's Kidney Pills are the original kidney pill, so when you ask for "Doan's" do not accept any others with similar names.

Price, 50c per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

No Bobbie Kilties.

A recent official announcement that in view of the difficulty of obtaining the becoming tartans Highland regiments would in future be supplied with a uniform of khaki kilts disgruntled the Scots, but an additional order just issued to the effect that two yards less of cloth will be used in making the uniforms has set the heather ablaze. The Highlanders declare they object to wearing bobbie skirts.

Sympathizers with the Highlanders add that the men are afraid their sweethearts will ridicule their appearance in the new uniform. Highland associations, Scottish members of Parliament and others are sending concerted protests to the War Office against this innovation. The question is entirely a matter of sentiment with the Highlanders. Their attachment to clan tartans cannot be realized by other races, but it is so strong that many men would rather risk the results of being a better target for the enemy than abandon them.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GREY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Colour and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or safe brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all grey hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Grey, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.

Some Curious Wounds

There have been a number of curious casualties in the war. One man was struck by a small splinter of shell, which passed through his cheek, broke all his teeth, and came out near his jaw without injuring his tongue at all. He escaped with a very swollen face and a great deal of pain from his teeth.

Another soldier was wounded by a large splinter of shell, which struck him absolutely flat on his chest. The only harm done to him was a gigantic bruise. In the case of a third a bullet passed through his body just above his heart, avoiding all important vessels. He was able to march two miles with his knapsack and rifle to hospital. On arrival a nurse gave an antiseptic dressing to his wounds, and he was discharged next day cured.

According to the latest figures, the five principal armies engaged in the war possess something like 630,400 motor vehicles.

TORTURED BY CONSTIPATION

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Paralyzed Bowels and Digestion

ST. BONIFACE DE SHAWINIGAN, QUE. Feb. 3rd. 1914.

"It is a pleasure to me to inform you that after suffering from Chronic Constipation for 2½ years, I have been cured by "Fruit-a-tives". While I was a student at Berthier College, I became so ill I was forced to leave the the college. Severe pains across the intestines continually tortured me and it came to a point when I could not stoop down at all, and my Digestion became paralyzed. Some one advised me to take "Fruit-a-tives" and at once I felt a great improvement. After I had taken four or five boxes, I realized that I was completely cured and what made me glad, also, was that they were acting gently, causing no pain whatever to the bowels. All those who suffer with Chronic Constipation should follow my example and take "Fruit-a-tives" for they are the medicine that cures".

MAGLOIRE PAQUIN

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

WAR NEWS IN BERLIN

Astounding Stories Printed to Keep up Spirits of the Citizens

The most amazing untruths concerning Great Britain are daily circulated in Berlin for the purpose of deceiving the German public into the belief that England is in a state of panic. Here are a few of these gems, which make up in humor what they lack in veracity:

"Sir John Jellicoe is to be tried for incapacity."

"The immediate resignation of Mr. Winston Churchill is expected."

"The organ of the Labor Party demands the whole Cabinet shall be impeached for participation in the war."

"The Indian troops in France were told before leaving India that they were being taken to Europe for exhibition purposes."

"Half of London is burned down, and Zeppelins are always hovering over it. Plymouth has also been destroyed by fire caused by bombs from the air."

"Mr. Asquith has fled from England, and is hiding in Ireland."

"The citizens of London now hurry hither and thither like scared mice because their battalions of football-kicking louts are melting away before the fire of German artillery.

"Instead of blowing their victims from the mouths of their guns as they did in the Indian Mutiny, the British now employ the truly humane and gently acting dum-dum bullets, with the approval of Lord Kitchener."

"The French Government pays for the support of the British troops, so that each man draws on a day on which there is no fighting four francs, while on each fighting day he is entitled to eight francs. The British are also completely clothed and fed by the French."

"The deeds of the German fleet are already causing the Lords of the Admiralty sleepless nights, while on board the British ships fearful apprehension lurks in every corner."

"'Come into the Army,' says the British recruiting-sergeant to the youths. 'You shall have a villa in Rome, a bungalow on the Mediterranean, and in two months you shall be King of the Belgians.'"

ROSE FROM THE RANKS

It is not often that a private in the British army rises to the rank of Lieutenant-General, but there are rare exceptions. The case of Sir Hector Macdonald—Fighting Mac—is well known, and the present war has established another record in this direction. Thirty years ago a lad, William Robertson, accepted the Queen's shilling which admitted him to the 16th Lancers.

Young Robertson did not intend to rest content with his lot. His abilities were not lost upon his commanding officers. In the early days of the Boer War he was a captain, and within the succeeding decade he attained the rank of Brigadier-General. He received the D.S.O. in 1896, was created a Companion of the Order of the Bath in 1905 and received the honor of knighthood in 1913. The present war gave Major-General Sir William Robertson, K.C.V.O., another opportunity to display his military genius, and his brilliant services in connection with the British retreat from Mons drew forth high encomiums from Sir John French. Further promotion was inevitable, and the announcement that Sir William had been made a Lieutenant-General has brought widespread satisfaction, especially among the "Tommies."

The Price of a Fowl

At Harseet, in Belgium, a patrol of Uhlans descended unexpectedly upon the village. They commenced shooting all the men they could find. Then, having got rid of them, they dragged out the women and insulted, tortured, and outraged them.

After this they found twenty-two more men, whom they made prisoners. Passing to the outskirts of the village, two Uhlans demanded a fowl from a peasant; he told them he had none, but making the man a prisoner they searched the place, and eventually they found one. And they promptly shot the peasant.

ACHED ALL OVER, HAD PAINS IN CHEST

Jackson, Miss., Minister Tells How He Suffered After the Grippe and How He Was Restored to Health by Vinol.

Jackson, Miss.—"I am a minister of the gospel and I had the grippe so badly that I ached all over, flesh was sore, I had pains in my chest and back, no appetite, was nervous and had a stubborn cough.

"I tried different medicines without benefit; finally a friend recommended Vinol. I tried it and soon noticed an improvement and continuing its use I am entirely relieved of my troubles. I have also used Vinol in my family for chronic coughs and cold with the best results."—O. W. Cairns, Jackson, Miss.

Grippe leaves the blood in a thin devitalized condition. It takes away the appetite and leaves one weak, without energy and often in a dangerous condition.

In order to restore the blood to a healthy condition, iron must be supplied in an easily assimilated form. We guarantee this may be done by Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, which contains no oil. If you try it and it does not help you we will return your money.

CHILDREN CRY FOR CALOMEL AND PILLS

"California Syrup of Figs" Best For Tender Stomach, Liver, Bowels.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful give to-day saves a sick child to-morrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

A Quakeress' Feat.

The first Englishwoman to have speech with the Sultan of Turkey was Mary Fisher, a Quakeress, who in 1667 undertook to convert the Commander of the Faithful to Christianity. She traveled by water to Smyrna, and then tramped to Adrianople—about 600 miles away—where Mahomet IV. was encamped with his army. After many attempts, Mary found someone bold enough to tell the Grand Vizier that "a woman was come who had something to declare from the Great God to the Sultan."

He arranged for an audience with his master, at which three dragomans were in attendance as interpreters, and Mahomet was so impressed with what he heard that, while unwilling to become a Christian, he declared that Mary should stay in his dominions. When she insisted on returning, he offered her an escort, adding, "I would not for anything that you should come to the least hurt." She got back safely to England, and was honored ever after among her fellow-Quakers as "she that spake to the Grand Turk."

TRY THIS IF YOU HAVE DANDRUFF

Or Are Bothered With Falling Hair or Itching Scalp.

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to keep your hair looking rich, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair so quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everybody notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

Mothers will appreciate the fact that the closing is right up to the throat, where a little turn-down collar holds everything snugly together, although for later in the season the frock may be thrown back to form revers. There are two styles of sleeve, one gathered into a deep cuff, the other a regulation two piece coat sleeve. Cheviot, serge or corduroy would be appropriate. The pattern, No. 7,037, comes in sizes from six to fourteen years. Price 10 cents.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age of a child.

German, Weary of War, Makes Sport For the British Soldiers

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.— One of the most interesting sidelights in connection with the desperate conflict in France and Flanders, and the outbursts of humor that take shape even in the most tragic circumstances, is from the pen of Mr. C. G. Harper, English artist and author, who is at the front with the British troops. In a letter to the Autocar he says:

"There came slowly into view a straggling squad of bandaged warriors, with a guarded figure in their midst. He was bareheaded, he wore the grey trousers of a German soldier, and yet he had a short thick khaki overcoat.

"'What is it, Scotty?' asked one of the soldiers of the foremost among this new party, whose shoulder straps with the letters R. G. proclaimed him one of the Scots Guards.

"'Guess what it is, an' I'll give it yer,' said Scotty, adjusting a bandage where his cap ought to have been. His hand came away from it red.

"'They've ladled some out of you, too?'

"'Yes,' said Scotty, indifferently, 'caught it on the napper. But you guess what this is, Adolphus, an' you shall 'ave it,' and he jerked a hand toward the prisoner, for such evidently he was.

"Adolphus walked up to the prisoner, looked him up and down, and said: with characteristic humor, 'Don't want it; I've giv' up the curio business.'

"The prisoner puffed out with suppressed wrath at this, and uttered one ejaculation, 'Damfool!'

"'Ow!' Adolphus sprang back with well simulate horror, "it's alive!' and then, with intense conviction, 'It's German!'

"'You've guessed it in once,' said Scotty, 'it's yours.'

"'Well, then,' said Adolphus, 'I'll trade it away for a penny packet of fags (cigarettes) * * * Don't speak all at once,' he added sadly when no offers were forthcoming * * * 'Look 'ere!' suddenly and fiercely to the German, 'Who did yer get them togs off? * * That's a British khaki overcoat 'e's got on,' he explained, turning to me. 'That's what they do when they capture some of our chaps' * * Takes their overcoats an' cuts 'em short, like that, an' wears 'em. An' look at me!'

"I looked at him, as desired; he was certainly well worth a glance. A military blanket with a hole cut in the middle of it for passing the head through served him by way of a flowing cloak, and a belt restrained it at the waist. Convenient slits gave play to the arms.

"'You'd better off with that coat, quick,' he said to the German. 'Some of our chaps if they catches yer wearing it might shoot yer.' (The prisoner made haste to take it off.) 'There, yer see,' continued Adolphus, triumphantly, 'e unnerstan's English as well as you or me' * * 'Lor', I'd like to boot 'im, so I would,' and he aggressively lifted one of his substantial wide welted eighteen and six penny Northampton made army boots.

"'Oh, come off it!' exclaimed one of the group. Adolphus, according, came off, and took the coat, grumbling. The German, thus stripped of his borrowed plumes, stood fully revealed.

"'Ow did yer get it?' asked Adolphus, of the Scots Guard, nodding toward the prisoner.

"'Picked 'im up lyin' on 'is face. Thought 'e was wounded, but 'e was only doin' a mike. Shamming' dead, wasn't yer?" he said.

"The prisoner smiled amiably, as though he was rather proud of it than otherwise. 'Ja; you take me prisoner—I shall nodt wandt to fight, no; and I do nodt wandt to be kicked. Gottferdham! Ho wharf the commandant kicks.'

"That was it. Here was one of the many thousands that the German military machine had put into the field against their will. He had been in Bloomsbury, he told me, before the outbreak of the war, lodging in one of the innumerable German boarding houses of that district and reading at the British museum. He proudly said he was a doctor of philosophy and his father was a 'Herr professor.'"

DON'T KILL PAIN WITH DRUGS.

Search For Its Cause and Have That Properly Treated.

Of all the symptoms that watch to give warning that something within our bodies has gone wrong, pain is the most insidious, although its importance is frequently overlooked by physicians as well as laymen. Pain is simply an expression of rebellion against objectionable stimuli; therefore, however desirable it may be to get rid of, it is far more important to find and cure its cause.

The old time family doctor's first thought when called to a patient in pain was to smother it by means of powerful drugs. This was sometimes useful in tiding a patient over a short illness, which was bound to right itself, but it was worse than useless in chronic ailment because it substituted for the malady in question a far worse disease—namely, the opium habit. It was exactly as though a railroad inspector on finding a red lantern on the track should throw a coat over it and go on his way. The patient was satisfied when the pain was lulled, but in this an important danger signal was disregarded and nature's call for permanent relief remained unanswered.

In appendicitis, for instance, it used to be the custom to "kill pain" by administering large doses of morphine. We now know that this dulls the patient's senses to a degree which makes diagnosis of peritonitis or other complications impossible and that a life may be lost because one of the most important symptoms is masked by drugs. It is interesting also to note how pain in appendicitis sets up a reflex action of the abdominal muscles. The muscles become hard and "boardy" nature attempting to hold the appendix as if in a splint so that further injury may be impossible and conditions favorable to repair may obtain.

WHAT DYSPEPTICS SHOULD EAT

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE.

"Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten, due to acidity; therefore stomach sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in its nature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, such a rule eliminates most foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building properties. This is the reason why dyspeptics and stomach sufferers are usually so thin, emaciated and looking in that vital energy which can only come from a well fed body. For the benefit of those sufferers who have been obliged to exclude from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty food, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten products, I would suggest that you should try a meal of any food or foods which you may like, in moderate amount, taking immediately afterwards a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be formed, and instead of the usual feeling of uneasiness and fullness, you will find that your food digests with you perfectly. Bisurated magnesia is doubtless the best food corrective and antacid known. It has no direct action on the stomach; but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of the acid irritation which inflames the delicate stomach lining, it does more than could possibly be done by any drug or medicine. As a physician, I believe in the use of medicine whenever necessary, but I must admit that I contest the claim of drugs as different and digested stomach with drugs instead of getting rid of the cause of all the trouble. Get a little bisurated magnesia from your druggist, eat what you want at your next meal, take a dose of the bisurated magnesia as directed above, and see if I'm not right."

NOSE CLOGGED FROM A COLD OR CATARRH

Apply Cream in Nostrils To Open Up Air Passages.

Ah! What relief! Your clogged nostrils open right up, the air passages of your head are clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, mucous discharge, headache, dryness—no struggling for breath at night, your cold or catarrh is gone.

Don't stay stuffed up! Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Ely's Cream Balm is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer has been seeking. It's just splendid.

FOUGHT GERMANS THRICE

Aged Italian Chevalier Looks Back on Life-time of War

There are not many people who can boast that they have fought in three wars against the Germans, but that is the proud boast of the Chevalier Luigi Ricci, the famous Garibaldian; and at the headquarters of his Foreign Legion in London he talked to a representative of "Answers" of his long life.

The chevalier has, for the last forty-four years, lived entirely in England, and is the leader of the Italian colony in London. He is now contemplating the publication of his memoirs, while his son, aged twenty-three, is fighting the Germans as a senior wireless operator.

Besides being an intrepid warrior this gallant old gentleman is also a great scholar, and founded the Dante Society for the study of that poet; he is also a member of the governing body of the City Polytechnic and a Professor at the University of London. Since by his extreme age he is unable to take up arms, he started the formation of the King's Foreign Legion.

"I suppose my life has been unusually full," said the veteran. "At the time of the Italian War for Independence I was at the Royal Military College, which I left in order to raise and equip a corps of Guides. That was in 1860, and I then numbered among my friends Garibaldi, Mazzini, and our great national poet, Carducci, who was my tutor.

"In 1870, during the Franco-German War, I was at Paris. I went through the siege and served as captain in the 23bth Battaillon de Guerre. I was wounded at the battle of Le Bourget, and my name was mentioned in despatches.

"After the siege I came to London, where I have been ever since. It is the city that I love, in the land that I love next to Italy. It is because I love it, and because I have learned to hate Prussianism in every form, that I resolved to form my Foreign Legion.

"So great was the response from all the foreign colonies in London that we had to close our acceptances, having raised the full complement of 2,000 men and 200 officers. We have Russians, Poles, Armenians, Italians, Servians, Americans, Colonials, and Britishers in this company. In one week, from the day on which I approached the War Office, I was able to offer them these 2,000, and another British Legion, formed in France, of, at the very least, 500 men."

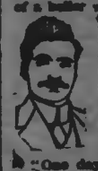
Fifty-six Miles on Four Biscuits

A transport column taking rations for the East Lancashires was cut out by the Germans, and the East Lancashires had to do marches of 26 and 29 miles on successive days on two biscuits per man.

"But," as one of the regiment said, "we revenged ourselves by taking a German supply column next day."

BLISTERS ON FEET COULD NOT SLEEP

Skin Much Inflamed, Itched and Smarted. Could Not Wear Shoes. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Entirely Healed.



"Victoria St., Thetford Mines West, Que.—"One day I was repairing a valve on top of a boiler when a steam pipe close to my face burst scalding both. Blisters came on my face and I could not wear my glasses. The skin was very much inflamed and it gave me much pain that I could not sleep at night. I was treated for ten days with no improvement so tried cuticura Soap and Ointment and soon found relief. One day I came across the Cuticura advertisement and decided to try a sample. The Cuticura Soap and Ointment gave me such relief and lessened the inflamed and smarting so quickly that I bought a box of Cuticura Ointment and some more Cuticura Soap. Now the wounds are entirely healed and the scars have quite disappeared." (Signed) William Stock, Jan. 31, 1914.

Samples Free by Mail

In selecting a toilet soap why not procure one possessing delicate emollient properties sufficient to allay minor irritations, relieve redness and roughness, prevent pore-clogging, soften and soothe sensitive conditions, and promote skin and scalp health generally? Such a soap combined with the purest of unobjectionable ingredients and most fragrant and refreshing of flower odors, is Cuticura Soap. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A."

A GERMAN CRITIC

Dr. Von Heydebrand a Small But Powerful Prussian Politician

It is small wonder that Dr. Ernst von Heydebrand, the leader of the agrarian element in Germany, whose political label is Conservative, is known as the Uncrowned King of Prussia. Though its numerical strength neither in the Imperial Parliament nor the Prussian Diet is formidable, conservatism's influence on government is paramount. Chancellors challenge it at their peril. Bethmann Hollweg trembles when Jove Heydebrand frowns.

Heydebrand, like many German politicians, is a member of both the Prussian Diet and the Reichstag. He leads the Conservative forces in both Houses. Individually almost the most powerful man in German politics, he is physically the most diminutive. He stands barely 5 feet in height, and when slouching in his seat, hands imbedded deep in his trousers pockets—his favorite attitude in debate—he is almost hidden by the portfolio of papers which adorns his desk.

Von Heydebrand, as becomes a king, hits straight from the shoulder when he has something to say. Although Conservatism and Government are both companions and traditional bedfellows in Germany, the party takes the powers that be unhesitatingly to task when necessity demands.

Von Heydebrand is the man who applies the lash on these occasions. He seems to expand to the stature of a grenadier as he advances to the fray.

Letters For Belligerents

Striking figures published by the Swiss Government show the extent to which Switzerland is acting as postal intermediary between the belligerent nations. On one day the Swiss postal authorities sent on 164,946 letters addressed to prisoners of war; 54,755 went to France, 45,665 to Germany, and the rest to England and other belligerent nations. In one month 9,287 money orders, representing a sum of $50,000 received from Germany, were sent on to German prisoners of war in France and England, and 11,400 money orders, representing a sum of $46,000 received from France, were transmitted to prisoners in Germany.

Woman Sufferage

Its War Time Aspect

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The women of England are doing their duty. They are taking care of the wounded, or if they cannot assist in work of that kind they are adding their savings to promote the good work. They are knitting and sewing for the soldiers at the front.—The suffragists have given so little trouble to the government that it will undoubtedly soften the hearts of those in Parliament, since the "militants" have turned all their energies to aid the fighting men of England, and so sufferage may soon come after this terrible war is over.

Thousands of women in Canada have overcome their sufferings, and have been cured of womanly ills by Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription. This medicine, though started nearly half a century ago, sells more widely to-day than any other womanly tonic. It can now be had in tablet form as well as liquid, and every woman who suffers from backache, headache, nervousness, pain at times, should take this "Prescription" of Dr. Pierce.

Mnay a woman is nervous and irritable, feels dragged down and worn out for no reason that she can think of. In ninety-nine per cent. of these cases it is the womanly organism which requires attention; the weak back, dizzy spells and black circles about the eyes, are only symptoms. Go to the sources of the trouble and the other sumptoms disappear.

Doctor Pierce's Pellets are unequalled as a Liver Pill. Smallest, easiest to take. One tiny, Sugar-coated Pellet a Dose. Cures Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. 25 cents vial, by druggists.—Adv.

DODGING THE SHELLS

Safest Place in Strong Cellar, Next Best in Open Country

"How to keep safe under shell fire" is the title of a statement given to the press by a prominent British army officer, for the benefit of scare towns.

"The first fact to bear in mind," he said, "is that no buildings in this country, however substantial, offer any protection against bombardment by warships. The biggest guns brought into action by the Germans at Scarborough and Hartlepool were of 12-inch calibre. These fire a projectile weighing about 850 pounds, one of which would be sufficient to lay the cathedral of St. Paul in ruins.

"The other guns used were 11-inch, 8.2-inch and 6-inch, throwing respectively shells weighing 750, 250 and 100 pounds. The lighter of these projectiles would go through the walls of any building as if they were brown paper, and its bursting charge of high explosive would detonate inside with annihilating effect.

"The inside of a house, then, is the very worst place to be during a bombardment, for if a shell strikes the building and the inmates have the luck to escape direct injury from the explosion or the flying splinters they are almost certain to be buried in falling debris or imprisoned and at the mercy of the fire which usually breaks out.

"The next most unsatisfactory place is the street. Shells bursting on the hard pavements are most destructive; to their own splinters of steel are added fragments of stone, each a deadly missile. The person in the street is also in imminent danger from the falling walls of houses and from bricks and tiles that go hurtling about.

"Where then is safety to be found? The only place to be recommended is a cellar, and that must be deep and strongly vaulted. If such a place is available its use is recommended. Go into it the moment bombardment begins and stay until you are quite sure all danger is past. If the building above is supplied with gas turn it off at the meter. If possible, take candles, food and water with you into your subterranean quarters, for the time of your stay is uncertain, and your exit may be blocked by debris.

"Apart from such a cellar, the best place to be when shells are falling is the open country, well away from hard roads and trees and buildings. A nice soft ditch, out of sight of the enemy on the reverse slope of rising ground, is the position that I should choose.

"Whatever is done, let it be done without panic. Panic adds immensely to the sum of the damage; it means blind rushes in which the weaker ones always suffer, it means also the overlooking of avenues of safety and neglect of many precautions.

"Curiosity is one of the strongest impulses in human nature; often it is stronger than the fear of death, and so has fatal results. We had examples of this at Hartlepool and Scarborough; when the German shells began to fall, people crowded out into the streets, curious to see what was going on. And many such were among the killed and wounded."

New Way to Curl Hair Without Heated Irons

Hair tortured with the curling iron is bound to become dry, harsh and brittle, as so many know from sad experience. It's far more sensible to use plain liquid silmerine, which can do no harm and which produces the loveliest, wavy effect imaginable. It takes so little time to apply the silmerine and the hair can be made to curl in any form, to any extent, to conform with any style of hair-dressing. A few ounces from the druggist will last a long time, so it is not at all expensive. Liquid silmerine is not sticky or sticky and it doesn't stain or streak the hair or the scalp.

A convenient way to use it is to pour about two tablespoonfuls into a saucer and then with a clean tooth brush apply evenly to the hair from root to tip. If this is done before retiring the added glory to one's "crowning glory" will be quite in evidence in the morning.

FREAKS OF BULLETS

Wonderful Escapes From Death by Soldiers—Hair Parted For One Man

A sapper in the Royal Engineers tells the story of an extraordinary escape which one of his comrades experienced. A bullet took his cap off and cut a groove through his hair, without injuring the scalp, in such a manner that it looked as though he had carefully parted his hair down the centre.

It is doubtful, however, if any soldier in the campaign had such marvellous escapes as Lieutenant A. C. Johnston, the Hants County cricketer, who relates how, shortly before he was slightly wounded, a shell hit the wall six inches above his head, while shortly afterwards a bullet hit the ground half a yard in front of him, bounded up, and hit him on the body, bruising his ribs. Then a bullet hit him over the heart, but was spent before reaching him, and when in the hospital he picked it out of his left-hand breast pocket and sent it home to his wife.

A charmed life, too, seems to be borne by a private of the Manchester Regiment, who relates how, while smoking a cigarette in the trenches, a bullet took it out of his mouth, while another cut the crown off his hat, leaving the peak still sticking on his head.

What Airships Cost

Airships cost from $250,000 to $500,000 to manufacture. A two-motor aeroplane can be made for $5,000, and as its upkeep is relatively small—hangars, gas, crew, etc., are not required—is far cheaper, and can be used in all weathers. Airships are beginning to realize that aeroplanes are far better than the clumsy old airship.

The maximum speed of the latest Zeppelin is twenty-one miles an hour; an ordinary aeroplane can fly five times as fast.

PAIN IN THE SIDE, CHEST OR BACK RISING SPECKLES CURED QUICKLY

Even Doctors Marvel at the Penetrating Power of Good Old "Nerviline."

Pains anywhere—in the chest, neck, side, back or muscles—they are always a discomfort.

If the inflammation is severe, the pain will be intense. If allowed to continue, complications will follow.

Physicians say one of the best remedies is "Nerviline"—it can't help curing, because it penetrates through the sore tissues, carrying healing properties that destroy every symptom of pain.

In case of colds, sore chest and pleurisy, there should be a good hard rubbing with Nerviline and, of course to prevent the trouble coming back, it's advisable to put on a Nerviline Porous Plaster, which, by absorption through the skin, draws out all congestion.

For general household use, for curing the ailments of the young and old, for destroying all pain, outward or internal, nothing can equal Nerviline; thousands testify to this effect.

For nearly forty years Nerviline has been a reliable and trusty remedy in thousands of homes where practically no medicine is needed.

Nerviline is safe to use. For children's coughs, colds and sore throat nothing can be said with such certain results.

Get the large 25 cent family size bottle to-day. It is more economical than the 10-cent trial size, and is sure to keep down the doctor's bill and cure a host of minor ills that arise in every household.

All dealers sell Nerviline, or direct from the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Infantry Training

The Matter in This Column is from the Official Manual 1911 and is Published According to Orders of the Home Guard

PART III. 2.

BATTALION DRILL.

169. Object of Battalion Drill.

1. Success in war depends to a great extent on the combined action of many towards a common object; it is therefore necessary, as a first step, to combine the movements of the companies and to accustom them to work in unison.

The training of the battalion in close order drill has these objects in view.

2. Night Drill.—Battalion drill will be practised frequently at night with the object of accustoming all ranks to moving in silence in close order in the dark, as a preliminary to night operations in the field.

161. General Rules.

1. Application of Company Drill.—Battalion movements are carried out by combination of companies, moving as described in Company Drill.

2. Mounted Officers.—The battalion commander, the senior major, and the adjutant will be mounted. If a third field officer be present he may be mounted, should the battalion commander consider it desirable.

When the battalion is acting independently, the battalion commander will place himself where he can best exercise supervision.

When the battalion is in brigade in column or quarter column the battalion commander will be ten paces in advance of the centre of the leading company, the adjutant being one and a-half horse-lengths in rear, and half a horse-length to the right of the battalion commander. (See Plates XV and XVI.)

3. If a third field officer be mounted, the field officers will generally supervise the half battalions to which they are attached, normally the senior major will be with the right half battalion, the third field officer with the left half battalion; but the field officers will remain with their half battalions when owing to changes of formation the right half battalion becomes the left and vice-versa.

The field officer with the half battalion in which is the company of direction will be responsible for direction, the other field officer for dressing, intervals and distances. Except where otherwise ordered they will post themselves where they can best carry out these duties.

In deployments each field officer will mark the outer flank of his half battalion.

In wheels in quarter column the field officer on the directing flank of the leading half battalion, when the order to wheel is given, will superintend on that flank, the field officer with the rear half battalion superintending on the other flank.

When a third field officer is mounted the adjutant will normally accompany the battalion commander, if there is no third field officer mounted the adjutant will take the place of the third field officer in marking deployments and superintending wheels.

The positions of mounted officers and company commanders in column and quarter column are shown in Plates XV and XVI. for positions in line see Sec. 169, for positions of mounted officers in column at halts, see Sec. 167.

4. When ranks are changed the senior major and third field officer, if mounted, will gain their positions by moving by the shortest route except in quarter column when they will move round in rear of the battalion. Company commanders will gain their positions in line and column by moving by the outer flank of their companies. Half company and section commanders and supernumeraries will act as in Sec. 77, 1:

PLATE XV. To face p. 78.

When an officer requires to pass through the ranks the two files immediately opposite to him will make way for him on the command MAKE WAY, by taking a pace to the rear and a side pace outwards, so as to cover the files on their flanks. They will resume their position as soon as the officer has passed through.

5. Ranks will be changed as in Company Drill.

6. Except where laid down, the double march is not to be used by companies during the interior movements of a battalion, unless ordered by the battalion commander.

7. If companies move into column or quarter column from both flanks they will pass each other left arm to left arm.

is a curable disease, which requires treatment. The ORRINE treatment can deal with alcoholic craving. It destroys all desire for whiskey, beer, or other intoxicants. Can be given in the home. No qualitative examination. No loss of time from work. Can be given secretly. If after using you fail to get any benefit from it your money will be refunded.

ORRINE is prepared in two forms, viz., No. 1, secret treatment, a powder; OR-RINE No. 2, in pill form, for those who desire to take ordinary treatment. Each only $1.00 a box. Come in and talk over the matter with us. Ask for booklet.

German Attacks In Lorraine Are Repulsed

THE ALLIES DROP BOMBS ON ADRIANOPLE

THE GERMAN ATTEMPTS TO CARRY FRENCH POSITION BY STORM FAIL

General Assault in Lorraine Repulsed With Heavy Losses to the Enemy--Germans Are Bringing Up Additional Men in the Aisne Region---Ready For Another Offensive.

AVIATORS MAKE SUCCESSFUL ATTACK

SPECIAL CABLE:

PARIS, February 10th.—3 p.m. official.—The Germans attempted to carry the French positions in Lorraine, northeast of Maronviller, by a general infantry assault, but were repulsed with heavy losses, according to the reports made public here to-day. This action is believed to mark the resumption of the active campaign in Lorraine, where the weather conditions are reported to be moderating.

From the Aisne to the Champaigne region the French and German artillery duels continue without cessation. The Germans are bringing up additional troops in this region and are prepared to attempt another offensive as soon as the weather will permit. In the North there has been fighting in a number of widely separated points but without any material change.

LONDON, February 10.—Considerable damage it is reported, resulted when the British and French aviators operating from the allied fleet now off the Dardanelles dropped bombs on the military depot at Adrianople on Monday. The aviators in sea planes left the fleet early in the morning and flew direct to Adrianople, dropping their bombs, and then returning to their station. It is believed that they were able to destroy large quantities of supplies.

LONDON, February 10.—The Petrograd correspondent of the London Evening Star estimates that the Germans lost no less than 30,000 killed and four times that number wounded, in last weeks battle along the Borzhymow line.

FALLMOUTH, England, February 10.—The American steamer Wilhelmina, destined for Germany with a cargo of food stuffs, is still anchored in the local harbour under the charge of her own officers. Apparently there has been no attempt up to the present time to seize either the vessel or the cargo.

PRETORIA, South Africa, February 10.—Reports reaching here say that the Germans in German South Africa have executed Colonel Maritz, the former Boer leader, for treachery. The reports are not officially confirmed.

BERLIN, February 10.—By wireless.—That the operations in the Carpathians are being carried on under difficulties of almost unsurmountable nature, was officially admitted to-day. The official press bureau, in issuing a statement, which it attributes to "The Hungarian Press," said:

"Deep snow is proving a great hindrance to our operations in the Carpathians. The troops are compelled to keep up the valley roads, and the developments to bring about battle are very difficult. The Russians are resisting stubbornly at Dukla Pass and are continually bringing fresh troops into action. They are very strongly fortified along the whole front, therefore the operations by the Austro-German forces are of necessity very slow."

MISS ALLAN SINGS IN TORONTO WITH STRIKING SUCCESS

Miss Dorothy Allan received an enthusiastic reception on Saturday afternoon at the Arts and Letters Club, Toronto, after singing a group of songs, and had to respond to persistent applause by giving as an encore, Addison Andrew's "O for a Day of Spring". Many of the members personally congratulated her afterwards. Mr. Richard Tattersall played splendid accompaniments to her numbers. There was a large attendance, including most of the leading musicians in Toronto. Mr. Redferne Hollinshead sang "The Marseillaise" in grand style.

On Friday evening Miss Allan sang three times at a private Musicale, when Signor Morando, head of the Vocal Department in the Canadian Academy, played her accompaniments, and Madame Lavoie-Herz, the great pianist, also played solos.

Injured In a Fall On London Street

Mrs. E. Airriess, 68 McDonnel street, slipped on the sidewalk on London street last night between George and Water streets, sustaining injuries that have confined her to bed. The walk was icy and without sand. Mrs. Airriess suffered a sprained ankle and twisted ligaments in one foot and will likely be confined to her home for some time.

ORCHESTRA PRACTICE.

The Conservatory of Music Orchestra will practice to-night.

SAME CONDITIONS EXIST ELSEWHERE RE SCHOOL BOARD

Mayor Defies the Board of Education—Latter Claim That City Must Give Them All the Money They Want

A CASE IN POINT

The Peterborough City Council is not alone in respect to the problem of financing the Board of Education. Seldom a Council meeting goes by without some reference to this vexatious matter and more especially at the present time because of the investigation that is pending between the City and the School Board. At the last meeting of the City Council the City Fathers were asked to issue debentures to the amount of $18,000 to meet the overdraft that was incurred in the construction of the new east and west ward schools. Some of the aldermen were inclined to demur when Mr V. Eastwood, representing the School Board, informed them that the Board was entitled to any amount of money that might be deemed necessary for educational purposes If this was not forthcoming the Board could go on and spend whatever money was required and the Government would withhold the grant to the municipality until the indebtedness was liquidated.

Clause Could Not be Found.

It would appear that Hamilton is experiencing similar difficulties, as a perusal of the following press report will show:

"Whether or not the Board of Education has the power to demand of the Hamilton City Council all the money it needs for general expenses during the year is a question which the municipal legal authorities are being asked to determine. The point has arisen over the action of the Finance Committee of the School Board in asking $489,000 for 1915 from the Controllers. On behalf of the latter, Mayor Walters this morning declared that the Council could not be enforced to give the trustees whatever they wanted, explaining, though, that he did not want any one to think that the Council would adopt an arbitrary course. On the other hand, the Board of Education points to a recent decision by Chief Justice Meredith, by which the Council has to supply, without question, is needed for school expenses. Only in case of money for new schools can the Council object, and then it has to put the question to the people if it does not approve of the scheme itself.

MEN FOR THE FRONT

List of the 57th Detachment to the 39th Battalion of the Third Canadian Contingent

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

No orders have yet been received by the Mounted Rifles or the local detachment of the 39th Battalion as to the departure of the units to their respective mobilization centres at Ottawa and Belleville. For some days it has been rumoured that the Mounted Rifles would leave to-night, but the marching orders did not come. The members are prepared to leave at any time and the majority seem anxious to get away.

Although the percentage of native born Canadians in the Mounted Rifles is high, with 80 Canadians in line, there is a falling off in the infantry, where only 21 per cent. are Canadians, 70 per cent. are English born. Following is a list of the names, with the rank and nationality of each:

BARRIE HOTEL DESTROYED BY FLAMES

$200,000 Blaze in the Northern Town This Morning

SPECIAL WIRE TO THE EXAMINER:

BARRIE, Ont., Feb. 10.— The Queen's Hotel was totally destroyed by fire about two o'clock this morning. It was filled with guests at the time, but all escaped, the majority saving their belongings. The fire originated in the Cudmore Bankrupt Stock Co., boot and clothing store, but spread to the Queen's Hotel and other stores. The total damage will be two hundred thousand dollars.

Missionary In Jerusalem

Has Returned From the East and Will Speak at Bethany Tabernacle

There will be four days' special services in Bethany Tabernacle beginning to-morrow night at 8 o'clock. The speakers are to be Rev. L. J. Long, District Superintendent of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, and Rev. A. E. Thompson, of Jerusalem, Palestine.

Mr. Thompson reached New York last week by the S.S. Adriatic. He left Jerusalem because of an order of expulsion by the Turkish authorities applying to all British subjects. He reports considerable difficulty in getting away from Jaffa, but through the most friendly intervention of Dr. Glazebrook, the American Consul, backed by a strong guard from an American warship, he and his party were able safely to embark with a large number of Jewish refugees.

Mr. Thompson has spent more than 12 years in Jerusalem as pastor and missionary. He will no doubt have many interesting things to tell in connection with his work in the country where the Lord Jesus Christ spent his earthly life.

There will be Bible and missionary addresses daily at 3 and 8 p.m. All are welcome.

CORNER REPORTED RATHER DANGEROUS

The corner of Alfred and Albert Streets, where the street railway makes a rather sharp turn, is reported to be in a rather dangerous condition for drivers. One man who drives to and from his office, stated that the Street Railway Company should remove the snow further back there, and should also look to the other corners in that vicinity. The space for drivers on Monaghan Road, he said, was none too wide for safety.

JUDGMENT AWARDED IN FAVOUR OF CITY

The late Sir Francis Langelier, Lieut.-Governor of Quebec, who will be succeeded by Hon P. E. Leblanc.

George Street Methodist Church Will Have to Pay Garbage Tax—Interesting Case Decided in the Division Court.

THE JUDGMENT

The city was successful in its defence of the action instituted on behalf of George Street Methodist Church to recover the sum of eighty-four dollars said to have been illegally collected by the city as taxes for garbage collection. The judgment, which was handed down to-day by His Honour Judge Huycke, confirms the city's attitude in respect to the levying of taxes on churches for garbage collection. Mr. Dumble, who appeared on behalf of the church contended that the city collected the sum of five hundred dollars from the various churches in the city for work that was never done or was done by the churches at half the cost. The decision of Judge Huycke will be of interest to other churches in the city. As the matter now stands the churches will have to pay the garbage tax whether they avail themselves of the service or not.

Mr. D. W. Dumble, K.C., appeared for the plaintiffs, and Mr. G. N. Gordon for the defendants.

The Judgment.

George St. Church vs. City of Peterborough.

Action to recover money — $84.00 said to be paid by mistake and illegally collected as taxes. No consideration given.

This money was paid by Mr. Brownscombe, treasurer of plaintiffs to the City Tax Collector for what was known as a garbage tax. Mr. Brownscombe received the tax bill and paid it without a resolution of the Board authorizing him to do so. No meeting was held about the time of his receipt of the tax notice and he paid it on his own motion to save the penalty to be added. He had always paid bills where penalty added or discount allowed without waiting for special authorization—his action in such cases being always approved and ratified at a subsequent board meeting.

This was such a bill, paid to save the penalty and strictly speaking the plaintiffs would have difficulty in convincing the ordinary individual it was paid by mistake. But assuming it was so paid under mistake the further ground remains, was it illegally and improperly collected by the City. To this question the answer must be in the negative and the action therefore fails.

This garbage by-law and taxation may be a hardship and unjust. As to that I express no opinion and should not if I would. My only task is to determine is it legal and I think it is. I do not make the law: I can only strive to administer the law as and when made.

The Municipal Act provides inter alia that Municipal Councils of cities and towns may enact by-laws for a system of garbage collection and levy on land a special rate to meet such expense and further enacts that:

"No land shall be exempt from the special rate, anything in any general or special Act or in any by-law to the contrary notwithstanding."—R. S. O. 1914, Cap. 192. S. 400. S. S. 6 a.

It is true that churches are generally exempt but for this special tax the general exemption is thus expressly abrogated.

Such being the existing law, the only question remaining is whether or not the city authorities acted legally and regularly in the inception of the system and in the levy and collection of the rate. I think they did and so find.

This tax was a new thing to the church people and thought to be a hardship. They say and think no assessment notice was given. Perhaps not, but if the roll is otherwise regular such notice is not necessary.—R. S. O., Cap. 195, Sec. 70.

The case relied on by Mr. Dumble was decided before this section was passed, and it may have been passed for the express purpose of meeting such extreme and isolated cases.

The assessment of 1913 was quite regular, was regularly and properly adopted for 1914 as provided in Sec. 86 of the Assessment Act, and no second revision was necessary as contended. Such second revision is in such case declared or rather implied as quite unnecessary by S. 86, S.S. 2.

So far as I can see the by-laws in question were all properly drawn and passed. The penalty of distress and

THE STARS AND STRIPES FLOWN BY THE ORDUNA

Cunarder Leaving Liverpool on Jan. 31st, Used the American Flag for Nearly Twenty-four Hours

WARNED OF SUBMARINES

SPECIAL CABLE:

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—When the British Cunard Liner Orduna reached quarantine to-day, in bond from Liverpool, her passengers declared that she had flown the American flag for nearly 24 hours on January 31, while passing through the Irish Sea. The Stars and Stripes, it was stated, were hoisted by Captain Taylor's order an hour after the liner started out of Mersey and were kept flying until Monday morning.

Several of the pasengers declared the members of the crew had told them that the Captain had been warned by the British Admiralty that there were a number of German submarines cruising not only in the Irish Sea, but also off the coast of Ireland, and that he was to take all precautions to protect his ship and his mails.

Capt. Thos. M. Taylor, master of the Orduna, said that as he was a reserve officer in the British navy, he could not discuss anything that transpired on board of his ship. This is important as it apparently transpired a week before the Lusitania incident.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The Cunard Steamship Company this afternoon in an official statement denied statements that Captain Taylor replaced the Union Jack with the American flag for the trip across the Irish sea, when the vessel Orduna started on her voyage to this port.

A GOOD WORD FOR WALES.

In the despatches and discussions regarding this war we seldom see or hear the name of Wales, the little inset in the flank of England. Wales is only 7¼ thousand square miles in area, with a population of only a million and three-quarters. Yet that little fighting country has done more for its share in proportion to population than any other part of the Empire. The recruits, to date, from plucky little Wales total 85,000, out of a population of 1,700,000. Not only that, but the Welsh are among our pluckiest fighters. And not only has Wales done this, but it has produced Lloyd George, who is doing even better fighting than any other member of the British cabinet, or any general. He is providing the sinews of war—turning out in grand style the "silver bullet," that, in the long run, does more to win victories than the leaden missle. Judging by the large willingness of Wales to serve the Empire, the selection of "Ich Dein" as the motto of the Prince of Wales, is no misnomer.

SPIRIT AND FORCE.

Mr. W. H. Taft, ex-President of the United States, is visiting Canada, as he has often done before; and this recalls the fact that at Murray Bay, where he summers, he declared fewer than three years ago that "the tie that binds Canada to the Mother Country is light and almost imperceptible." This is true, it is light as to our feeling its weight; but in binding effect it is stronger than cables of steel. It is intangible and at the same time tremendously tangible. It is woven without a thread of force in its strands, but it is strong to resist every force that may seek to break it. It has no formal constitutional element behind it, but it is of the essence of the strength of the Empire one not from any law of compulsion founded on force, no obligation made by any law can equal the force and binding power of a tie founded upon freedom. Empires and dynasties founded upon force are crumbling in our sight; the mightiest force that the world has ever known is undergoing paralysis under the mightier force founded on freedom, whose links of allegiance are "light and almost imperceptible." Spirit, the spirit that represents the Empire is mightier than force. This war finds the Empire one not from any law of compulsion; but by the compulsion of interest inherent in affection.

THE ONLY REMEDY.

The report of Engineer Dobbin, superintendent of the waterworks, of his inquiry into the causes and cure of anchor ice or frasil, as an obstruction to the continuous operation of water wheels, justifies his conclusion that the only same way is an auxiliary steam or other plant of equivilent usefulness. The importance of this matter is derived from the fact that we can only have continuous safety from the continuous menace of fires, by some such auxiliary motive power. The expense will be considerable; but it will be amply justified. We have spent, and will spend thousandns in maintaining a first-rate fire department, whose effectiveness is liable to be paralyzed, by the possible outbreak of a serious fire at a time when frazil has reduced our pumping plant to uselessness for immediate action. With an auxiliary plant insuring certainty of continual fire pressure on our mains we shall be giving our fire department its maximum of effectiveness. Such an auxiliary plant may possibly never be needed. So much the better. We should consider ourselves fortunate if, in spite of its cost and expense, our fire department were never called upon. It is, therefore, evident that we need both the auxiliary plant and the fire department. It would be as unwise a policy to do without the one as it would be to despense with the other. While this is a time for reducing expenditure, it is not a time to neglect incurring an expenditure that will make our waterworks system at all times efficient and dependable. "Safety first"; then all the economy possible.

LOSS IS GAIN.

It will be interesting to those in favour of alcoholic abolition to note the financial results of Russia's heroic temperance measure, the national abolition of vodka—strong drink—as a beverage. The first budget under the prohibiting measure, has been presented, and in spite of the loss of 500 million dollars of blood revenue, due to this source being closed, the ordinary income from direct taxation during the coming year will exceed the income of last year by 33 millions of dollars. The government foresees no difficulty in raising by indirect taxes the equivalent to loss of income caused by deficiency of revenue from the sale of strong liquors. The prohibition of the sale of strong drink as a war measure has been justified by a higher morale and efficiency in the army, and a higher morale and efficiency and greater capacity for earning, on the part of the people; and greater capacity for paying increased taxation in other directions, to meet the deficiency caused by loss of revenue from strong drink. When one reflects what is meant in effect upon the people of the payment of 500 million dollars a year in taxes on strong drink, one is justified in assuming that the consumption of strong drink thus represented, caused greater loss of earning capacity, greater loss of paying capacity, and greater loss in national impairment of spirit and capability, than the enormous sum of half a million million dollars of revenue. This revenue, when it was collected, represented destructive force only. Drink abolished, and the revenue uncollected, effectively represents production, through the unhampered industry of the population. So that the issue between national strong drink and no national strong drink, is destruction versus production; national waste versus national gain. There is no case for strong drink as a protege of any government under a license system. Any gain in revenue is infinitely outweighed by the attendant moral, social, industrial and commercial and national injury and loss. There is no doubt that loss of revenue from strong drink is gain in many ways.

NOT A SHORT SESSION.

The opening phases of the present Parliamentary session, indicate that there will be a pretty fair and honourable observance of the party truce declared at the opening of the war. That there will be a minimum of contentious discussion of a partisan character, it is fair to assume. It is therefore argued that the present session will be a short one. It need not necessarily be so, unless the discussion and legislation are directly and solely concerned with the adoption of direct measures for providing for Canada's share in waging the war; that need not take long. It only means voting money; and, unfortunately, in parliamentary or other administrative processes, that is short work. But Canada's share in prosecuting the war is not merely confined to voting money for recruiting and equipping soldiers. It has to do with more indirect, but not less vital matters—to provide for harvesting the aftermath of such action. There should be the amplest consideration of the problems concerned in meeting the economic, the agricultural, the industrial, and social situations, resulting from the world-wide disturbance and unsettling of these conditions. A great deal of the, indeed the chief, element in national prosperity is good crops, and increased soil production. To secure this it is not enough for the government to issue injunctions to farmers to increase soil output, to make two blades of grass grow where one grew, as a type of the duty of the farmers in regard to production. It is very necessary for the government to tell the farmers how to do this; to facilitate the acquisition by the farmers of the necessary capital required to increase production; to make the sources of capital, the banks, more accessible to the farmer; to help solve the farm labour problem; to compensate the withdrawal by recruiting. If Parliament is of any use it can by ample discussion of these and kindred subjects, elicit from the ideas, experience and observation of members, very valuable information that can be used to help to the solution of the problems that arise under the present universal stress. If the members of Parliament represent the thought, ideas and conceptions of the people of Canada, as they represent their material interests, they will find much more work to do this session than unless supply and drawing their sessional indemnity.

HOW THE POLITICAL SNIPER OUTRAGES THE PARTY TRUCE

The political sniper loves a shining mark. Since August every energy of the Tory Press Bureau at Ottawa has been devoted to "bringing down" Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He has been represented as an enemy of the Empire, as standing in the way of the organization of Imperial defence, and as the friend and apologist of the German Emperor. A reader of The Globe in Manitoulin sends a copy of The Gore Bay Recorder containing an article of the most despicable sort, which has appeared in many of the smaller Conservative papers throughout the country. Under a large heading, "The German Emperor—An Appreciation by Right Honorable Sir Wilfrid Laurier," appears an extract from a speech by the Liberal leader in the House of Commons on January 27, 1913, as follows:

"The German Emperor is undoubtedly one of the great men of the present age. By intellect, by character, by moral fibre he has shown himself wonderfully endowed. In the first years of his reign some of his utterances sent a shiver through those who had the peace of the world at heart. Many believed that he was perhaps hankering for the glamour of military glory. But as he advanced in years, and as crisis after crisis came, his potent influence was always directed towards peace. And the day may come when, like his illustrious uncle, our late King, he may be called the Peacemaker. At all events we may presume that if blood is thicker than water it ought to be thicker than water in the veins of Kings and Emperors as well as in those of common mortals. And what incentive can the German Emperor have to humiliate a country like England, to which he is attached by such dear ties?"

The reader is left with the idea in his mind that this is still the view of Sir Wilfrid regarding the Kaiser. The new situation created by the war is ignored and the electors are left in ignorance as to the stand taken by Sir Wilfrid when the Kaiser threw off the mask he had worn so long and so successfully and plunged the world into war. The attempt to deceive Conservatives who read what Sir Wilfrid said about the Kaiser before the war and who are not likely to note particularly the date of the speech, is made more conspicuous by the publication on the same page, without any date, of an extract from a speech by Sir Robert Borden dealing with Prussian cynicism touching treaty obligations. Borden is thus represented as the sturdy patriot, Laurier as the admirer of the treaty-breaker.

The best answer to this sort of ribstabbing is the republication of one or two extracts from Sir Wilfrid's speech in the House of Commons when it assembled in August last to vote supplies for the war. No Liberal need be ashamed of following a leader who hoped and wrought for the preservation of peace, and who, like the greatest of British statesmen, by conciliatory words and deeds sought to bring Germany and the British Empire into more intimate and friendly relationship. Whoever by heedless word or thoughtless action added fuel to Germany's growing hatred of Britain and made the terrible events of which we are now witnesses inevitable has a great burden resting upon him. Sir Wilfrid Laurier's conscience cannot reproach him, and The Globe believes that the Canadian people will not.

When war came and the German Emperor stood before the world as a breaker of treaties and the oppressor of a little nation whose only offence was a determination to maintain its liberty Sir Wilfrid spoke in the Commons with eloquence and passion that proclaimed how deeply he was moved. Let The Gore Bay Recorder and the whole tribe of snipers who seek Sir Wilfrid's political life publish these passages from that great speech, and inform their readers of Luarier's opinion of the Kaiser in the light of his invasion of Belgium:

"Sir, it will go down on a still nobler page of history that England could have averted this war if she had been willing to forego the position which she has maintained for many centuries at the head of European civilization: if she had been willing to desert her allies, to sacrifice her obligations, to allow the German Emperor to bully heroic Belgium, to trample upon defenceless Luxemburg, to rush upon isolated France, and to put down his booted heel upon continental Europe. At that price England would have secured peace, but her answer to the German Emperor was: 'Your proposals are infamous.' And, rather than accept them, England has entered into this war; and there is not to-day in the universe a British subject, there is not outside the British Empire a single man whose admiration for England is not greater by reason of this firm and noble attitude. . . . . The German Emperor threw his legions against this landmark in the fulness of his lust of power, with the full expectation that the very weight of his army would crush every opposition and would secure their passage through Belgium. He did not expect, he could not believe, that the Belgians, few in number and peaceful in disposition and in occupation, would rise in his way and bar his progress; or if he harboured such a thought for a moment his next thought was that if he met such oposition he could brush it aside by a wave of his Imperial hand. Sir, he should have remembered that in the sixteenth century the ancestors of the Belgians rose against the despotism of Phillip II. of Spain, and through years of blood and fire, and ciseries and suffering indescribable, they maintained an unequal contest against Spain—Spain as powerful in Europe at that time as the German Empire is to-day. Sir, if there are men who forget the teachings of their fathers, the Belgians are not of that class; they have proved equal to the teachings of their fathers; they have never surrendered; the blood of the fathers still runs in the veins of the sons; and again to-day, through blood and fire, and miseries and sufferings indescribable, they hold at bay the armies of the proud Kaiser."

To picture the man who spoke thus as the admirer of the German Emperor is a political indecency which should be resented by all right-thinking people. The political sniper is a menace to national unity, a stumbling block to Imperial solidarity, and the hope of all who wish to see Canadians diverted from the business of carrying on the war with vigor. He should be suppressed with a strong hand.

WEAK THINKING.

The patriotism and production movement which made its inaugural appearance at a Toronto dinner last week, scarcely justified the expectations which its heralds had aroused. It exhibited, it must be admitted, a surprising weakness of thought or, at all events, an inability to draw obvious conclusions.

Mr. Burrell, for example, dealing with the necessity for more production, said that the Finance Minister had a much larger and more anxious responsibility than most of us, and few appreciated the difficulties of meeting our national obligations and maintaining the credit of Canada in such frightfully trying times—a task, he said, which was essential to the future prosperity of this country. Still more impressive would have been a simple statement of the facts, that is to say, that our annual national obligations abroad now engage about half of our exports, leaving little more than two hundred millions for the purchase of goods of which we have been buying six to seven hundred millions a year. He also pointed out that the contraction of credit which has already taken place has thrown thousands upon thousands out of work, and that were it not for the war orders for supplies, such as boots, clothing, saddles, shells, and lead bullets, the condition of industrial labour would be much more pitiable than it is. When to that was added the case of the starving in France and Belgium, he felt warranted to appeal to the farmers of Canada to produce more, even at a loss. The appeal, if addressed to all, is a just one. But why confine it to farmers? Why did he not also appeal to all industries, to labour and capital everywhere, to make sacrifices, even to work at a loss to meet our national obligations and to succor ou rallies? Why did he not appeal to the millers and railways to withdraw their opposition to the repeal of the wheat duties and to all other measures of the farmers' programme, which would tend to set the hand of production free? That is not the only obvious conclusion which Mr. Burrell evaded. If he were familiar with the grain markets reported in this journal, he might easily have been precipitated into an appeal to continue the war as the best means of meeting our national obligations. It is also curious that it did not occur to him to argue that a material increase of farm production is only to be assured by a material increase of the farm population, and that, as a consequence, he would promote all measures which would invite labour to the land.

He does not depend wholly on exhortation to stimulate production. He is going to continue aggressively his assistance with regard to pure-bred animals, and he will secure from the sorely-tried Finance Minister an appropriation sufficiently substantial to enable him to assist the larger fair associations whose shows are open in all classes of live stock to the whole of Canada. These promises will assure the fortunes of a handful of breeders, and they may, in the long run, have a generally beneficial effect. Their influence, however, to enable us to meet immediately our national obligations and to succor our friends in Belgium and the North of France may well be doubted.—Farmer's Sun.

Another Story of Louvain.

A remarkable incident, testifying alike to the power of Freemasonry and the splendid devotion of a citizen of Louvain, has been reported to me, writes a special correspondent from Ostend, Belgium.

At the time of the sack of the town the Germans seized 50 men, whom they bound and told that they were going to be shot.

The firing party had already raised their rifles to take aim when one of the 50, a Freemason, made one of the Masonic signs.

The German officer in command of the squad was himself a Freemason, and just as he was going to give the order to fire he saw the sign, and recognized a "brother." He at once ordered the Freemason to leave the ranks, and told him to go away.

"No," replied the citizen of Louvain, "my fellow-citizens are no more guilty than I am. If you are going to kill them, I shall not go away, and I shall be killed with them."

Touched by this act of devotion, the officer ordered the release of the 50 unfortunate men, who thus owed their lives to the intervention of a Freemason fellow-citizen.

Waiters on Horseback.

In great French houses of days gone by dinner was announced by the blowing of hunting horns, and it is on record that at certain gala feasts the dishes were brought in by servants in full armor mounted upon caparisoned horses, a practice we could only look for during the reign of chivalry. Of the attendants at dinner the carver and server took precedence over all the others. They stood probably on each side of their lord. The carver, it may be mentioned, was the officer who placed the dishes on the table.

NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that an application will be made by the Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation for the Diocese of Peterborough in Ontario, Canada, to the Legislature of Ontario, at the next Session thereof, for an Act amending the Act of Incorporation of the said Corporation, passed in the Forty-Sixth Reign of Her Late Majesty Queen Victoria, Chapter 66, so as to enlarge the powers of the said Corporation, to borrow moneys on the security of Promissory Notes and Bills of Exchange and for such purposes to make, draw, endorse, become a party to and deliver Promissory Notes and Bills of Exchange, without the necessity of affixing the Corporate Seal thereto.

The reason for the enlargement of the powers of the said Corporation as aforesaid, is that it requires to borrow moneys from time to time for its purposes in various sums and on such terms of repayment as to render it highly inconvenient to execute and deliver mortgage securities on the real estate of the said Corporation.

SPEECH AND THE CHIN.

Maybe at One Time the Tongue Proved Mightier Than the Teeth.

In man the chin seems to project more and more as he progresses toward his modern civilized condition. This must imply that immediately the huge lower canines degenerated the part took on some other function of vital importance to the race and that the need has increased with his intellectual and social advancement.

My theory, then, is that the chin is essentially a part of the mechanism of articulate speech.

It is tempting to theorize a little further and to suggest that the human chin perhaps bears testimony to a prehistoric change from carnal weapons to others which, if not exactly spiritual, were such as appealed to the part of us where spiritual forces work, for apparently long ago before the pen proved mightier than the sword the tongue proved mightier than the teeth.

If one could only prove this one might show that even before the glacial epoch parliamentary institutions (using the terms in its widest sense) began to take the place of lethal weapons in settling disagreements and that the substitution of arbitration for war is not merely a doctrine of latter day moralists, but is a part of the ordered march of cosmic progress as inevitable as the other evolutionary changes which have brought us up from among the brutes. — Dr. Louis Robinson in North American Review.

LINE ALONG THE AISNE IS LITTLE CHANGED IN MONTH

More Ragged in Outline But From Peronne, Roye and in the Valley, Practically as in November---Peasants Work Stolidly Amid War.

Special to The Examiner:

NEAR SOISSONS, via London, Feb. 9.—During a tour along the lines I have been able to ascertain the precise line of the German positions southward from Roye and east again to Soissons along the Aisne. Roye itself is still in the unhappy state of being taken and retaken almost daily. South of that the Germans hold Beuvraignes. At Lassigny the situation is curious and illustrates the fact that the whole line has become much more irregular than it was.

The town of Lassigny is held by the enemy, but it is an advanced point, because from Canny-sur-Matz through Gury to Plessis de Roye there is a ring of French positions from which the recent temporarily successful attack on Noyon was conducted. Continuing south, the French hold Mareuil-la-Motte, Elincourt and Ribecourt, but the Germans are in Dreslincourt. They have again taken Noyon, and they, of course, hold Guiscard, with the outlying villages of Bussy and Vauchelles. Opposite Ribecourt the enemy is in Chiry-Ourscamps and Pimprez.

Going toward the east, along the line of the Aisne, the Germans hold Carlepont, part of Tracy la Val and Nampeel. Here his line slopes sharply southward toward the river, for he is in Autreches, Moulinsons-Tonvent and St. Christophe, overlooking Vic-sur-Aisne. Thence the enemy's line now runs to Cuffies and Crouy, and along the Aisne valley new places are coming within the zone of the bombardment. German fire already has done extensive damage to such towns as Reasons, Ambleny, Sacouin, Pernant and Vauxhuin, which are at a considerable distance to the south side of the Aisne.

Villagers Fed by Army.

It is astonishing all along this country-side to note the courage and stoic philosophy with which the peasants continue their normal vocations. The air may be alive with shell, the village under fire, yet one finds work in the fields going on as usual. Still, all along the Aisne the aspect of the villages is sad in the extreme, though nite a proportion of the inhabitants, and especially the older folk, refuse to leave their homes. Naturally they have to be fed by the military, because they have no means of communicating with the outer world, since all movement of civilians within the extreme zones of the armies has now become practically impossible.

Beaureux is still in French hands, for the advance here has been pushed up the Foulon valley, where the trenches are barely forty yards apart; and by Craonelle the Allies' line goes to Berry-au-Bac. Craonne is neither French nor German for any practical purpose, because the situation of the town renders it untenable by either side. To the north, to the east and the southeast of Berry-au-Bac lie the plains of Rheims.

In short, from Peronne, Roye, round the corner, and along the Aisne valley the situation is practically what it was in September, neither better nor worse. The only difference is that the line has become a little more ragged in outline.

Just at the moment all eyes are turned on Soissons, where the more spectacular events are in progress, but at various other points operations are going on which have nite as important a bearing on the general scheme of things. There was reason to foresee this comparative success by the Germans in the region of Soissons.

Two German Corps Massed.

It is the German tactical reply to the menaced advance by the French in the crucial Berry-au-Bac corner. General Von Kluck concentrated from his base at Laon at least two full army corps, and was able to do this rapidly. The effect of it can be appreciated when, according to the official communiue, the French had only three brigades in that particular district.

It is considered by competent judges that the French advance, which comprised the assault of the 182 metre hill, was pushed forward a trifle rapidly, so that the foremost troops laid themselves open to severe attack by the enemy, posted upon dominating positions on both sides. Further, the official communique distinctly indicated that the French were not in sufficient strength to consolidate any advantage gained into any real break through. But the mere carrying of a certain number or a certain length of trenches cannot result in a decisive advantage unless strongly backed up and developed with determination.

In military circles General Von Kluck is admitted to be the best tactician the Allies have had against them in France, and it is considered that his present object is not to break through with any intention of advancing upon Paris, but that, should he succeed at Soissons, he would rather bear eastward in the hope of retaking Rheims and the Champagne country, which has always been coveted by the Germans. Not only so, but south of Rheims the enemy could find stronger defensive lines than he has now. This battle at Soissons, therefore, is bound to be fiercely contested, because the French, from their Berry-au-Bac positions, have also hopes of profiting by a weakness in the German line.

Germans Clear Plateau.

Incidentally there is a similar situation to the west, where the enemy, trying to break through to Amiens, has to counter the French effort from Tracy-le-Val. In this he has so far been successful. The French never succeeded entirely in taking the 132 metre hill, and when General Von Kluck's fresh men arrived in masses they were able to sweep the little plateau clear.

The French strong positions are on the southern side of the Aisne, along crests which dominate the high road from Soissons to Rheims by way of Braisne and Fismes. In most places the heavy guns can sweep the river banks, but General Von Kluck will in all probability not try to cross at Bucy-le-Long, near Crouy, where his forces are right on the river, but rather in the City of Soissons itself, where he would be more protected against artillery fire. Apparently the recent increase in the French heavy artillery has been met by a still further increase in the German big guns. The enemy was beginning to be put in an inferiority in this respect, but the balance has now been fully restored. If there be anything in which the belligerents must strain every nerve, it is in maintaining the utmost effort in the matter of turning out artillery and aeroplanes. Superiority in these is of extreme importance.

The most useful weapon from the German standpoint is an Austrian howitzer of some 305 to 310 millimetres, which seems the most mobile big gun they have.

A TOUGH SOLDIER.

Wounds Seemed to Make Lord Napier Fight All the Better.

Oliver Wendell Holmes said that the lamp of a man's life has three wicks—brain, blood and breath—and that to turn down any one of them makes the other two go out. The wounds a man will survive and even disregard so long as his head, heart and lungs are unhurt have long been one of the wonders of war history.

Lord Napier had an utter indifference to wounds, and the wonderful celerity of his recovery makes an interesting story. Two of his wounds he had not cared to notice at all in his record of services furnished to Hart's army list.

He was severely wounded at Feroneshah in December, 1845, but had recovered in time to take part in the battle of Sobraon, seven weeks later. Before Mooltan, in the middle of September, 1848, a cannon shot all but took off his leg, but he was marching and fighting again by the second week in November.

Jan. 12 following he was severely wounded in the trenches, but he was able to march several hundred miles across the country and fight at Gujrat one month later to a day.

He was shot in the leg at the first relief of Lucknow, but nevertheless rode out next day and brought in the rear guard, after which throughout the blockade he did continuous and arduous service. At the second relief he was severely wounded, but this did not hinder him from taking up the active duty of chief engineer at the Alumbagh a few days later.—Washington Star.

Ten Thousand Matches a Minute.

Simple and insignificant as a match is, its manufacture is a complicated and elaborate process that can be carried on commercially only by means of a succession of ingenious machines and devices that must work at all times with the utmost precision and delicacy. Recent improvements in the process of making square matches make it possible to turn out matches from a single dipping machine at the rate of more than 600,000 an hour, and a gross of boxes is made into matches and packed for shipment in less than two hours.—Popular Mechanics.

Common Law.

The early settlers brought with them the laws and system of courts which they had been used to in England. These laws had grown partly out of man's sense of right, also out of man's dealings in trade and in settling property. As new questions rose in the courts the decisions became precedents to help decide other cases. The common law is the accumulation of such decisions through many generations.—New York American.

Long Tailed Roosters.

Undertaking to breed roosters with but one aim in view, that of lengthening the tail feathers, the natives of the Island of Shikoku, Japan, have produced, after a hundred years of patient efforts, some surprising results. It is of record that tail feathers eighteen feet in length are to be seen on the island.—Argonaut.

GERMAN CONSPIRATORS HAVE BEEN FOILED SAYS SAZONOFF

Russian Foreign Minister in Speech to the Duma Recites Long Series of Underhand Schemes Which Germany Laid to Disable the Triple Entent

PETROGRAD, Feb. 10—(Via London.) — The short session of the Duma opened yesterday afternoon in the presence of a throng that filled the balconies of the chamber, the Ministers, the members of the council and the empire and the diplomatic representatives.

Foreign Minister Sazonoff said the allies' goal was assured. It was useless for Germany and Austria to say repeatedly they were forced into the war or to repeat the old story, that King Edward had sought to surround Germany with enemies, for, he declared, the whole world knew that the agreement entered into or projected by that monarch were fundamentally defensive.

Quite different, continued M. Sazonoff, had been the attitude of Germany, who, despite Russia's efforts to continue her relations of good neighborliness, had sought to embroil Russia with neighboring countries, especially with Scandinavia, where Germany showed distrust of Russia, with Galicia, where German gold caused the Ukraine movement; with Roumania, where the Germans tried to blunt the consciousness of the community of interests between the Roumanians and Russians, and with Turkey, where German intrigue had flourished.

M. SEIGIUS SAZONOFF.

In Persia, M. Sazonoff continued, German agents were violating the Potsdam agreement and promises given to the Russians, and had sought to compromise Anglo-Russian relations. The same intrigues, he added, had been carried out in China and Japan, but luckily, they had been sterile.

"All this," M. Sazonoff declared, "was sufficient for us to judge of the value of the German statements regarding the alleged envelopment of Germany by the triple entente. Equally worthless are the assertions that it was not Germany who began the war, for irrefutable documents exist to prove the contrary.

"Carrier Pigeon From Belgium" Brings German Soldier's Note

NEW YORK, Feb 9—The great war has been responsible for many remarkable incidents, but the following received last night by the Herald, is up to this time entitled to first prize. There is however, no way to tell what the future may hold if the war lasts long enough:

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sunday—A carrier pigeon dropped from the roof of a building here and Frederick Jacobs, who found it, discovered a message tied about the bird's neck which evidently was from a German soldier in the Belgian trenches to his wife. The message read as follows:

"Dear Wife—I am alive and well in the trenches of Belgium, but your brother has been killed."

That was all. There was not even a signature to denote the identity of the man who wrote this little tragedy of war. The pigeon showed evidence of long flight, and an injury to one wing seemed to have been received before the bird was picked up.

The message was written in English and wrapped in the heading of a German newspaper and the date-line of the newspaper was "Saxony, December —," the day of the month missing.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

What's Doing in Civic Circles--Items of Interest Concerning Municipal Administration

Ald. Stratton, Chairman of the Finances Committee, is in Toronto on business He will probably be away for a couple of days.

Board of Works.

The Board of Works will meet this evening as was announced a few days ago. It is evident that Mayor Buller's original scheme of a Board of Works meeting each week will not be continued this year unless conditions warrant. Ald. Green's slogan appears to be business first and oratory afterwards.

Building Permits.

A building permit for $300 has been issued to H. Clayton for alterations that are to be made to the Princess Theatre .The alterations include the closing of the Arcade and the putting in of a glass front.

Will Appoint Counsel.

The City Council will be asked to appoint a Solicitor to represent the City in respect to the investigation concerning the Board of Education. It is unlikely that the investigation will commence until after the completion of the arbitration between the City and the Peterborough Light and Power Company, which is to be resumed on Tuesday next.

WITH OTHER COUNCILS.

Brantford will assume its own insurance for accidents under the Workmen's Compensation Act, feeling that any profit that will accrue can be utilized by the city. All civic boards are expected to join in with the scheme.

A Municipal Enterprise.

Brantford will build a granary to store oats bought after the harvest in place of buying at high prices during the year. City streets will be oiled this year in place of watered, except on paved streets.

Salaries Reduced.

The Moose Jaw Police Commission reduced Chief Johnson's salary from $3,000 to $2,400, and city detectives from $1,200 to $1,500.

Magistrate Dunn, whose salary was cut in two, $3,000 to $1,500, has lodged a protest against the action.

Trustees Will Give Battle.

The present temper of the Toronto Board of Education in regard to the one-year term proposal indicates that at least a dozen of the trustees will actively fight the City's application when it goes before the Private Bills Committee

Will Insure Employees.

The Light Commission of Berlin is preparing a plan to provide accident insurance for employees of the street railway, gas and electric plants, under the provisions of the Compensation Act.

Fraternal Greetings.

Kingston City Council, on the evening of the 16th, will exchange greetings with Kingston, Mass., Kingston, N.H., Kingston, N.Y. and Kingston, Pa., in commemoration of the 100 years of peace.

Want Agreement Renewed

London Street Railway is asking the city for a renewal of the agreement allowing the operation of Sunday cars, in spite of the fact that the Company claims Sunday traffic is not a paying venure.

Aldermen Threatened.

Two of Brockville's aldermen have received "blackhand" notes threatening dire results unless they resign their positions at once.

Canadians Are Safe in France

All the Troops From Salisbury Plain Are Now Across the Channel

OTTAWA, Feb. 10. — That all the Canadian troops of the first division who have been on Salisbury Plain are now in France is the effect of unofficial, but nevertheless trustworthy information received here yesterday.

It is not known when they will go to the trenches, but it is believed that in France, under more favorable conditions of weather, the troops will continue the tactical training in which since last October they have been engaged in England.

The despatch from Canada of the reinforcements for the first contingent and the whole of the second contingent is anticipated in the near future.

A private cablegram from Major Archie Bell of this city, in charge of the first contingent ammunition park, says he arrived at Rouen Monday. The ammunition park, in command of Major Bell, is a division of the army service corps which handles the artillery ammunition. It consists of about 400 men.

Thirty Killed So Far.

SALISBURY, Eng., Feb. 10.—Latest official casualty list of the Princess Patricias up to Feb. 7 gives thirty killed, and forty wounded. Most of the wounded are in English hospitals. There are also one hundred ill from frostbites or pneumonia. Col. Farquhar returned yesterday as having spent two days at Tidworth barracks, arranging for the sending of extra men to France.

Admiralty Ordered It

Officials Ordered Flying of U. S. Flag Says Walter H. Page

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Ambassador Page, at London yesterday, cabled the State Department that he had obtained confirmation from the British Foreign Office of the published report that the British Government had admitted instructing the captain of the Lusitania to raise the American flag over his vessel, claiming the right to such action.

The Ambassador said he had not received any official communication on the matter from the British Foreign Office, but had merely obtained verbal confirmation.

He transmitted a copy of the announcement published in the London papers, but his message gave no details of the Lusitania incident.

Although the use of the American flag by the Lusitania and the intimation that it will further be falsely flown by belligerent merchant vessels as a blind to enemies is distasteful to the administration; the President said yesterday that such occurrences were uncommon. He indicated, however, that he did not consider the incident closed.

Was Absent From Inquest

Carrie Davis Too Ill to Instruct Him, Says Counsel

TORONTO, Feb. 10. — Evidence was taken from three witnesses last night at the opening of the inquest on the death of Charles Albert Massey, who was shot and killed in front of his own home at 169 Walmer road, Monday afternoon by 18-year-old Carrie Davies. Chief Coroner A. J. Johnston then adjourned the hearing until next Monday evening. According to counsel, H. W. Maw, she has been too agitated and nervous to even give him lucid instructions in the case.

Miss Beatrice Dinnis, 126 Walmer road, saw Mr. Massey shot on his doorstep. She walked down Walmer road on the opposite side and slightly behind him. Miss Dinnis said he mounted the steps, paused for a moment and a shot rang out followed by a second one.

Miss Dinnis said the house was unlighted except for a light in the cellar. Asked by Crown Attorney Greer if she saw the person who shot Massey, she replied she had a hazy recollection of seeing a dark figure step out on the verandah after the first shot, fire the second and then go back into the house.

Dr. Mitchell testified to the nature of the injuries.

McAndrews Sentenced To One Year.

TORONTO, Feb. 10.—Douglas McAndrews, the 15-year-old boy who ran amuck on Yonge street on Jan. 22, firing at random from two revolvers, while under the influence of liquor, was sent to the Mimico Industrial School for one year, yesterday afternoon by Chief Justice Sir William Mulock residing in criminal assize court.

The lad pleaded guilty to the charges laid against him.

French Cruiser Off Havana.

HAVANA, Feb. 10.—A French armored cruiser, apparently the Conde, arrived off the port of Havana yesterday. There she joined the British cruiser Bristol, which for some weeks has been alternating with the British cruiser Berwick, in watching the port and cruising outside Cuban territorial waters.

"Trust In God and Hold Out."

COLOGNE, Feb. 10. — (Via London.)—Cardinal von Hartman, Archbishop of Cologne, in addressing a meeting yesterday said: "The Emperor's words, 'I no longer know parties; I know only Germans, has found a unanimous echo among the German people, who are united for king and country.'

"The motto for to-day is 'Trust in God and hold out.' Our armies, protecting us in the east and west, are in good position. God will not permit atheistic France and orthodox Russia to crush the flourishing religious life in the fatherland.

"Trust, therefore, in our just cause, our brave troops and the noble Emperor who is adorned, with all the virtues of his Hohenzollern forefathers. Trust above all in the Ruler of Battles, to Whom we faithfully and continually pray."

More Baby-Killing.

PARIS, Feb. 10.—German artillery is actively bombarding the French towns of Rheims, Soissons, Betheney and Pont-a-Mousson, as well as numerous villages. All have been raked by shells, while the entire population of the towns is living in the cellars. A woman and her son, aged twelve, were killed at Rheims. A baby was killed at Pont-a-Mousson. Otherwise the damage was only material.

ONE HOUR SEES COMPLETION OF DAY'S BUSINESS AT OTTAWA

Nationalist Becomes Chairman of Committee of the Whole House—W. F. Cockshutt Will Urge Government Control of Food Exports

OTTAWA, Feb. 10. — The House was in session less than an hour yesterday afternoon.

The short session comprised the introduction by Hon. Messrs. Casgrain and Coderre of the new member for Terrebonne, George Rochon, who was elected at the polls only yesterday, the formal notice of the Premier's resolution to vote an additional $100,000,000 for war purposes; the election of Mr. Albert Sevigny as Deputy Speaker; the introduction of public bills; the answering of questions, and the tabling of volumes of reports and returns.

The question of taking steps to control the export of Canada's food products is being raised by W. F. Cockshutt (Brantford), who has given notice of a resolution that "the circumstances arising out of the present are such as to justify the Government in exercising supreme control over the quantity and destiny of our food exports, thereby regulating the prices at which bread, meat and other food products shall be sold for home consumption, while at the same time directing that our surplus food exports should only reach British or friendly countries."

Mr. Armstrong (East Lambton) introduced his bill to place inland navigation companies under the jurisdiction of the Railway Commission.

Tariff changes of the Government are to be announced on Thursday when Mr. White will deliver his budget speech.

In the Senate yesterday the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne took up the sitting, the address being adopted without division. Senators Murphy and Gibbon moved and seconded and Senator Bostock, Liberal leader, and Lougheed, Government leader, also spoke. The tenor of the speeches were loyalty to the Empire.

Kings and Queens Her Patrons, But Milkmaid Goes

Prosaic London Revokes Right to Stall in Mall Held Three Centuries—Death of Mrs. Emma Breaking London's Last Link With Arcadia

LONDON, Feb. 9—Mrs. Emma Kitchen is dead, breaking London's last link with Arcadia. Though she lived to see aeroplanes and automobile 'buses she was of the Merrie England of pipe and tabor.

Mrs. Kitchen was a milkmaid, and at her historic stall in the Mall, St James' Park, has sold to kings and queens and commoners for nearly seventy years. Long she stood there with her two patient cows, Blossom and Nancy, a quaint picture in the middle of workaday London.

Unfortunately Mrs. Kitchen did not look the part. Milkmaids should wear Watteau panniers and carry their pails on a be-ribboned yoke. And they should not be called Emma. There was nothing pastoral about Mrs. Kitchen except her trade. Just a grey, bent figure, ruddy faced and wearing an expansive apron and a white mob cap. There was perhaps one Arcadian touch in her life. She married a harlequin in a circus.

James I. Gave Permission.

The right to sell milk in the Mall has been in the Kitchen family for nearly three centuries. It was in 1633 that James I. gave one John Manley permission to set up a booth behind Spring Gardens for the sale of milk, appointing him at the same time "Purveyor to the King. Families waited on daily." At that time the cows in their stalls were reinforced by asses, the milk of which was considered a great delicacy.

"Before proud gates attending asses bray,
Or arrogate with solemn pace the way;
These grave physicians with their milky cheer
The lovesick maid and dwindling beau repair."

Here the bucks of those spacious days would repair to take their morning glass—maybe bringing their own rum—and sport their clouded canes.

At this same "pitch," Mrs. Kitchen's great grandmother kept her cows and sold their milk until she died at the age of 103. Her daughter followed, and held the fort until her ninety-second year, leaving her daughter in charge for seventy-nine years. This was Mrs. Kichen's mother. And the late milkmaid was not the last of her line, for, true to the family tradition, she left the business to a daughter who still sells milk, but on another "pitch". This is Mrs. Orford, daughter of a milk-maid and a harlequin.

By the early eighties the popularity of milk in the Mall had grown so that there were no less than eight stalls there, each with its attendant cows. Two of these belonged to the Kitchen family, one being managed by the late Mrs. Kitchen and the other by her sister, Mrs. Burry.

Interlopers Evicted.

When plans for the new Mall were drawn in 1886 the six interlopers were evicted and their stalls pulled down about their ears, but Mrs. Kitchen was allowed to remain. In 1901 they were moved back a few yards to make way for a new thoroughfare. Thenceforward life became troubled for Mrs. Kitchen. The Office of Works was a prosaic institution, with little sympathy for the archaic and picturesque, and one dark day in February, 1906, it served a cold blue notice on the milkmaids to quit. After 282 years! And in her "bottom drawer" Mrs. Kitchen had the original documents granted to her ancestor by James.

They pleaded and took counsel's opinion and pleaded again, but the Office of Works said, "Out you go." They talked of "users" and "easements" and "squat right," but the officials were adamant. They talked of their great-grandmother, their grandmother, of their mothers, but "Out you go" said the iconoclasts, and out they went. Their stall was pulled down, their cows driven home, while the two old women wept loud and long over their spilt milk.

Queen Victoria was among their mother's customers, and a brother of Mrs Kitchen had been riding groom to the then Prince of Wales. So the milkmaids appealed to King Edward.

His Majesty interviewed on their behalf, had an interview with Sir Schamberg McDonnell, and as a result the old ladies were granted a new site for their stall behind the Horse Guards' parade And here today you can buy a glass of milk from Mrs. Orford, the direct descendant of John Manley, milkman to James I.

But there are no cows now, no three-legged stool. Cows are barred in the new lease, and but for the water in the Victoria Memorial you cannot get a drink in the whole length of the Mall—except milk.

Wilson Wants Information

Wants to Know What Are Germany's Intentions

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10. — President Wilson has directed Ambassador Gerard to obtain and forward to this Government, at his earliest possible convenience, the full details of Germany's intentions with regard to neutral shipping, particularly the shipping of the United States. The President took up in Cabinet meeting yesterday the German declaration and the explanations of the same as furnished by Germany and it was decided that although Germany had expressed no intention to take summary action against merchant ships of dubious nationality, at the same time no information has been forthcoming as to what methods will be pursued by the German submarine commander or other naval officers to protect neutrals fully when engaged in enforcing the war zone decree and demand has been made for the facts in exact and specific details.

Ambassador Gerard has been instructed to obtain a definition of Germany's intentions in two particulars: First, he will ask Germany how she intends to enforce her decree; and second, he will ask what steps, if any, will be taken at once to avoid injury to neutral vessels.

HOLDS "CANNON DAY" FOR SOLDIERS

Receipts From Sale Will Reach $100,000

SPECIAL CABLE:

PARIS, Feb. 9.—To-day has been called "75 day," for throughout all France the people are celebrating the success of the famous French cannon. Little flags, medals and other insignia bearing reproductions of a cannon have been sold everywhere.

The funds collected will be used to purchase comforts for the allied armies fighting in France. It is confidently expected that the receipts today will be as large as from the sale of flags for the benefit of Belgian refugees, when 8,800,000f. ($700,000) were collected.

MANY ENGLISH MINERS ENLIST

Northumberland, Asked to Raise Five Battalions, Supplies Twenty.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Earl Grey, ex-Governor-General of Canada, said that War Secretary Kitchener last August asked him to appeal to the miners of Northumberland for five new battalions.

Instead they raised twenty battalions.

ALBERT H. BRODEUR HAS BEEN COMMITTED TO STATE HOSPITAL

For Observation as to His Sanity--Man Apprehended in Peterborough on a Charge of Murder May Be Proven Insane---Circumstances of the Case.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass, Feb. 10.—At a special criminal sitting of superior court, Albert H. Brodeur, charged with murder, was committed to the state hospital at Bridgewater for observation as to his sanity. Judge William Hamilton of this city was presiding at the sitting, which was an adjournment of the regular December criminal sitting of the Court. Brodeur is charged with shooting and killing Mrs. Matilda Case at her home, 53 Wilcox Street, on the night of September 20, 1913.

A Strong Probability.

Richard J. Morrissey, who was appointed as his attorney by Judge Dubuque, presented a motion which he had filed stating that there was a possibility that Brodeur was insane and that he was not in such condition mentally as to stand trial. On these grounds, the motion asked that he be committed to the hospital at Bridgewater for care and observation. District Attorney Niles told the court that since the suggestion of insanity had been brought up at the December sitting of the court, he had placed Brodeur under observation by two physicians, who were in court to testify as to their decisions. Dr. John A. Houston, superintendent of the Northampton state hospital, stated briefly that there was a strong probability that his commitment to an insane hospital for care and observation was a proper thing to do and that Brodeur was not in proper condition to stand trial at the present time. Dr. Charles P. Hooker said that Brodeur had been under his observation during all the time he had been at the jail. Dr. Hooker being the jail physician. Asked as to the nature of Brodeur's insanity he said that he was mentally deficient but that he had been an exemplary prisoner and that the evidences of insanity began to appear about six months ago. As the lawyers were conferring with Judge Hamilton on the order of commitment, Brodeur rose from his seat and called to his attorney, Mr. Morrissey. While waiting for the lawyer to finish the conference with the court, Brodeur held a whispered argument with Turnkey Nathaniel P. Wade, who had pulled him back into the seat, and later argued with his attorney, protesting that his case was being prejudged without giving him a chance to present his defence.

Refused to Elope.

Brodeur is charged with having killed Mrs. Case, the theory of the police being that he shot her because she refused to elope, there having been some evidence that there was a plan between them to elope on the day on which she was killed. The shooting took place in her home in the upper tenement at 53 Wilcox Street about 11.30 on the night of September 20, 1913, and, according to the stories of the neighbours, he had been very intimate with her, having practically lived at the Case home. He is known to have been with her on the afternoon before she was killed and she had told one of the neighbours with whom she was intimate that she intended to run away with him. He had been known during this time under the name of Blanchard and this adds to the confusion of the police after the shooting in looking for him.

There are no witnesses of the shooting but Louis Scarnley, who lived in the floor under the Case apartments, heard the shots fired and heard a man run out of the house. He went upstairs and found Mrs. Case lying unconscious on the bed and notified J. J. Donlin. Inspectors Raiche and Quilty took charge of the investigation, but owing to the confusion in regard to the name did not identify Blanchard as Brodeur until the next day. Brodeur spent the night at the home of his father in the city and escaped on the next day. He had served a sentence for deserting from the army and from the government officials an accurate description and pictures were secured, which were scattered broadcast through this country and Canada. From these descriptions he was recognized by a police officer in Peterborough, Ont., on January the 28th, 1914, and waiving extradition was brought back to this city by Capt. Boyle and Inspector Quilty. He was 20 years old at the time of the shooting.

Arrested in Peterborough.

It will be remembered that Brodeur was arrested in Peterborough a little over a year ago, practically surrendering himself to the police. He had been travelling through Canada hobo fashion and in one or two instances had made a practice of seeking shelter for the night at police stations along his line of travel. Whether this was due to mental deficiency is not known. However, he eventually blew into Peterborough, and in accordance with his established custom, sought shelter at the police station. Here he was identified by means of a police circular as a man who was wanted in Springfield, Mass., on a charge of murder. His apprehension was followed by his removal to Springfield.

THE PROGRESS OF THE MUTUAL

Panic Accompanying the Outbreak of War Had Little Effect Upon Well Known Company

The past year has been one during which financial institutions have had wind and tide against them. Among all such, none have withstood the stress and strain more successfully than the life insurance companies. Indeed the experiences of the past year have been a wonderful vindication of the claim of life insurance organizations. Thousands of policyholders have found that while many of the securities held by them fell in value or became entirely worthless, their life insurance contracts remain unaffected. We believe that public confidence in the institution of life insurance was never more deep-seated, and it is safe to predict that there will be a wonderful expansion of business for all the companies when normal conditions are restored.

These remarks are suggested by the experience of The Mutual Life of Canada, whose annual statement we publish on another page. The panic accompanying the outbreak of war added to the depression which prevailed previous to that event, has in no way disturbed the equanimity of "Canada's Only Mutual." The only perceptible effect was in the amount of new business written. Instead of the usual 10 per cent. to 20 per cent. increase in the amount of new business written, this year on account of the heavy weather they have contented themselves with duplicating the amount written in 1913 with a small margin in favour of 1914. The actual figures are for 1913, $14,400,734, and for 1914, $14,525,411. This result, achieved without special campaigning in such a year as 1914, shows what a strong place the Mutual holds in the confidence of the Canadian public. The total insurance in force now amounts to $94,477,309.

The most notable feature in the experience of the Mutual during the past year was the amount of surplus earned. The large increase is probably due to a favourable mortality couple with the high interest it was possible for the Company to command. In any case, it is a matter for sincere gratification for all the policyholders of the Company, because it is upon good results in this respect that the Company's ability rests to continue the payment of liberal dividends to the policy-holders. The Company's reputation for careful, economical management is well known, and that its policy in this respect has been maintained is evidenced by the low ratio of expense to income, which, coupled with the two factors just noted, resulted in the handsome surplus earnings of $1,038,778.14, an increase over the preceding year of $183,615.14.

Altogether the past year has been one which may be contemplated by the policyholders with entire satisfaction and clearly shows that The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada occupies a place in the very first class of solid and permanent institutions.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD.

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

CAUCUS WAS HEARD

Premier Borden Was Non-Committal as to What Transpired in the Conservative Gathering

LASTED THREE HOURS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 10.—"We had a little talk on the session, the war and the problems arising out of the war," said Premier Borden blandly to the newspapermen at the conclusion of a caucus of the members of the Conservative party which, for length of duration, was almost a record breaker for the present parliament. The caucus lasted from 10 o'clock until after 1, under the presidency of J. E. Armstrong, of East Lambton.

When the roll was called at the assembling of caucus there was scarcely a Conservative member of either House missing. The Minister of Militia, General Sam Hughes, in full uniform, shouldered his way to the front, and, it is stated, was the centre of a good deal of the discussion, which ensued. But these were no casualties, and the Minister emerged at the conclusion seemingly unruffled. The meeting throughout was punctuated with the clapping of hands.

Premier Borden made a lengthy speech to his followers and urged upon them the harmonious support of the Government at the present time. Among the subjects discussed were war contracts, militia affairs generally, and the question of a political truce.

MUD KNEE-DEEP BUT SOLDIERS SEEM TO THRIVE IN IT

Mud and Water So Deep That If One Was to Lie Down He Would Be Drowned—Never Seem to Have Colds

CALAIS, Feb. 9 — His American rubber boots and his clothes were caked in the mud of the trenches, and you could smell horse, gasoline, and gunpowder when he entered the compartment of the train. He was a human whiff straight from the battle lines, and he was so delighted with the prospect of his six-day leave of absence that, in spite of being an English major, and therefore one of the most silent men on earth, he wanted to talk. He began about the weather, and, from that shifted to the mud in the trenches.

"These American rubber waders are the only things to keep out the water," he said. (Waders is the English name for rubber boots). "The only trouble with them is that sometimes the water in the trenches is so deep that it overtops the waders and you slosh around with them full of mud and water. They ought to come up to your hips."

"How much mud and water do you really have in the trenches?"

Trenches Cure Indigestion.

"My dear man, some of my troops have spent five or six days in mud above their knees. It was so deep that they could not lie down without drowning in it. And what's worse, some nights it was so cold that a skim of ice froze over the water as the men stood in it. These men did not have waders. They were not protected from the icy water in any way."

"Don't they die of colds?"

"No, it's most extraordinary, but men who have had stomach trouble and had to be careful of their eating before they went into the trenches find, after a week or so, that their stomachs become fine and strong. They can eat anything and as much as they want. They don't get much exercise, but the open-air life makes new men of them.

"You see, really we're in winter quarters. So are the Germans. I don't suppose the Generals on either side intended that there should be any lull in the fighing this winter, but nature had its way. We couldn't fight if we wanted to. I've been in an important part of the line and we haven't done any real fighting for six weeks.

Nothing but Barb-Wire Fences.

It's a wonderful sight though — the trench country. All you can see are barb-wire fences The trenches are so well made that you can't distinguish them from even ground at a distance. There's utter silence most of the time. It is at night that we have lively times. Each side is expecting the other to pour out of the trenches and make an attack; the situation is always very tense in the darkness.

"I'm not saying that the men don't go to sleep, but there are lookouts whose nerves are strained to high C all the time. The slightest movement of any sort in the direction of the enemy's trenches sets the lookout firing. It may have been only a weed stirring in the wind, but that's enough for him. The men all jump up and begin firing immediately, whether they see anything or not. The firing runs down the trench sometimes for miles. This is because we are afraid the Germans may rush from their trenches and charge us.

"Then the Germans wake up. They are afraid that all the noise means that 'we' are charging 'them.' They match us in noise-making. They shoot into the darkness, even though they may see nothing."

"This may go on for ten or fifteen minutes, and then an astonishing thing happens — a great bomb of white light explodes between the two trenches. That's a bomb of good cheer even if the enemy did fire it. It means that the Germans are not charging. These white bombs have come to be taken as a signal from the enemy—and the Germans take the same signal from us—that there are to be no charges and that the nervous sentry who fired the first alarming shot was mistaken.

"It was all a mistake. Let's quit firing and go to sleep again" is what the German white bomb tells us, or what our white bomb may tell the Germans. And the firing gradually dies out; silence falls again on the trenches, and it isn't until daybreak that we really begin shooting again.

Daybreak Shooting Inevitable.

"I've never been able to explain the shooting at daybreak. It always opens up, whether the officers start it or not. The men do it themselves. I suppose, perhaps, they do it to make sure with their officers for what's going to happen at 7 o'clock."

"What does happen at 7 o'clock?"

"Why, they all stop fighting until breakfast is over. One man after another lays down his rifle, and begins to eat the food that has been brought to him, via the communicating trenches. And you can't hear any shooting until eight o'clock. Both the English and the German officers, by a tacit understanding, give their men from seven to eight o'clock for eating and smoking.

"These English and German soldiers know each other by face and even by name. And the astonishing thing is that they don't hate each other. You can't keep up that feeling of blind hatred between the trenches. You know that Christmas truce was a bad thing for the soldiers, from a military standpoint."

And then the Major said an astonishing thing.

"If you wanted to end this war, all you'd have to do would be to let the men have another truce or two like that Christmas one. They'd get to talking to each other and suddenly they'd decide that the whole business was foolishness, and they'd lay down their guns and go back home".

THE PRICE OF SUGAR AND TEA

In an article yesterday on an advance in the price of sugar and flour the Examiner misquoted Mr. R. C. Braund in his estimate of the amount of sugar produced in the world. The approximate production is eighteen million tons, half of which is produced in Germany, Austria, Russia, Belgium and France, the countries in the war zone, outside Great Britain. This half is beet sugar. The other half is produced outside the war zone, including Canada and the United States and is principally cane sugar.

The general situation looks very strong just now. Conditions in the American raw sugar markets are given by refiners as the reason for the advance, and the feeling that another war tax will be placed upon the commodity has also led to the firmness, and should this materialise, an immediate advance would follow. How much further this influence will carry is hard to say.

Tea Holds Interest

Tea holds the interest, next to sugar. Ceylon and Japan blacks are high, and liable to go higher, owing to difficulty in shipping from Calcutta and Colombo. Shipments are expected to be delayed, resulting in a stiffer market.

Since the embargo was taken off in England, the market has strengthened considerably.

Strength in Molasses.

Strength is shown in molasses. The firm raw sugar market has been an effect on the price of new crop molasses. Buying has not commenced yet, and is late compared with previous years. This is partly due to the fact that freight rates have not yet been fixed between Barbadoes and Montreal. Spot stocks are changing hands at good figures.

Bigger Demand for Coffee.

The coffee business has improved, as importers have no desire to be overwhelmed with business the way they were in August, they are beginning to feel a bigger demand from the trade.

Fruits Fairly Active.

Dried fruits continue fairly active. A good demand is being felt here for prunes, seeded raisins and Valencias.

Currants are reported very firm in the primary market, but are slow here. Prunes continue strong for reasons indicated before.

The past week has seen some further demand for rice accountable by the fact that wholesalers have been buying freely. There has not been a rush, but a much better demand than has been felt for some weeks past. Retailers are also buying fairly well in rice. Sago and tapioca are in fair demand.

SAME CONDITIONS EXIST, ETC.

Mayor Walters also pointed out this morning that there was a feeling among City Hall officials that if the School Board wanted to it could collect its own taxes, not depending on the city for such. Later in the day, the Provincial statutes were searched and no trace could be found of any clause giving the Board of Education such power. It was pointed out by other parties that if the Council had to give the school authorities what they asked for there would be no necessity of a clause allowing them to gather in their own rates.

The Finance Committee wants $40,000 more than it spent during 1914, when it was given $411,600. The trustees maintain that they need every cent of this to run the schools properly and emphasize that the law is behind them, making it compulsory for the Controllers and aldermen to give them the amount without any pruning. If this is done, the 20-mill rate will be increased from five and eight-tenth to six and two-tenth mills.

Like a gigantic shovel suspended between wheels, is a street cleaning implement that two Indians men have invented.

PRESENTATIONS TO TREVOR L. CUFFE

Loyal Order of Moose and Members of Post Office Staff Gave Him Pin and Watch

Mr. Trevor L. Cuffe, who enlisted with the 8th Mounted Rifles, Third Overseas Contingent, has been presented with a wrist watch by Mr. Edgar, on behalf of the post office staff, with which he has been connected for the past three years.

Mr. Cuffe, who is a member of the local lodge, Order of Moose, is to be looked after by that body, too. He was presented with a Moose pin and his standing is to be kept in the lodge during his absence.

The following is a copy of the letter which accompanied the pin:

To Bro. T. L. Cuffe—

Dear Bro. Cuffe: At a meeting of the Loyal Order of Moose, held in their rooms on the evening of the third inst., the following resolution was passed:

Moved by Bro. Mayor Buller and seconded by Bro. E. H. Bartlett, that the treasurer be authorized to procure a suitable momento for presentation to Bro. Cuffe, as a slight token of esteem during his absence for military duty; also that this lodge agrees to keep in good standing during his absence, praying that God's blessing may rest upon him and that he may have a safe and speedy return.

Signed on behalf of the lodge.

J. EDGAR, Treasurer.

ADDRESSES ON THE BOOK OF REVELATIONS

Interest in the address on the Book of Revelation, delivered by Evangelist Mr. R. Irving, in the Gospel Hall, is growing. About twice the number listened to him last evening as were out to hear him the previous night. Mr. Irving has consented to remain all week and will continue the meetings each night except Saturday. Meetings at 8 o'clock.

Come and hear these seasonable talks from this so much neglected the Book of Revelation. "Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written therein, for the time is at hand."—Rev. 1-3.

RESIGNS AFTER TEN YEARS AS TREASURER

Mr. John Crane's Resignation Much Regretted by Board of Managers at St. Paul's

At the inaugural meeting of the Board of Managers of St. Paul's church held last evening, Mr. John Crane resigned as treasurer, after ten years' service.

The following officers and committees were elected:

Chairman—Mr. A. P. McLean (re-elected.)

Secretary—Mr. C. H. Patterson.

Treasurer—Mr. W. A. Logan.

Pew Committee—Messrs. A. P. McLean, Jas. Connal, J. A. Johnston.

Finance committee—Messrs. W. A. Logan, John Crane, Robt. Harstone.

Property committee — Messrs. Wm. Scott, T. A. S. Hay, F. Sollitt.

Envelope committee— Messrs. S. J. Keyes, C. H. Patterson, W. S. Ferguson.

The resignation of Mr. Crane, after ten years' service as treasurer, was much regretted by the Board, who fully appreciated his services.

Said Farewell To Corp. Chas. Dummitt

Last evening, after drill at the Armouries, No. 5 Company visited Coleman Bros. grill room and enjoyed refreshments. The guest of the evening was Corporal Chas. Dummitt, who is a volunteer in the Mounted Rifles of the Third Contingent.

Five brothers of the Dummitt family belong to No. 5 Company, Charlie being the second one to volunteer for Overseas service. His brother, Ernest, is with the first contingent. Col. Sergt. Fred Dummitt and Sergt. H. Dummitt still remain with the Company.

A pleasant time was spent in songs and speeches and Corporal Dummitt was made to feel that he carried with him the best wishes of the Company members. Other guests were Sergt.-Instructor Biggs and Sergt. Elliott of the Mounted Rifles, and Quartermaster Sergt. Edwards of the 57th Regiment.

The proceedings ended with the singing of God Save the King

The lid of a new carrying case for motion picture films is provided with straps to raise a reel part way out of the case as it is lifted.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Old Country Soccer News

At a meeting of the Council of the Irish Football Association, held at Belfast, a long discussion took place relative to the action of the Scottish Association, which, on the day following the International Board meeting, held in London, on Dec. 3, had interviewed the War Office and disagreed with the decision of the International Board. It was reported that the Secretary of the I.F.A. had, on behalf of the delegates, wired to the Football Association, disagreeing with the attitude of the Scottish Association, and this, on a motion, was unanimously endorsed.

Commissions for Sports.

The London Gazette contains the notification that commissions have been given to several noted sportsmen. First among these may be mentioned S. M. J. Woods, the old Cambridge University and Somerset cricketer, who is gazetted as a lieutenant in the new army. Another well-known cricketer whose name appears in the Gazette is E. W. Dillon, the Kent County man, and Harlequins' international three-quarter, who is promoted from 2nd lieutenant to be lieutenant in the 4th Royal West Kent Regiment.

T. M. Mavrogordato, the well-known lawn tennis player, especially good on hard courts, receives a commission as lieutenant in the Army Service Corps. In the 13th Royal Warwick, A B. Sale, the old 'Varsity weight-putter, is appointed lieutenant. J. E. S. Pethick, the Malvern cricketer; H L. Hollis, who played at three-quarter in the L.C.C. Rugby team, and G. L. Crowe, the Worcester cricketer, are also in the list of newly commissioned officers.

Bristol Strike.

It has transpired that all the professionals of the Bristol Rover Club signed a "round robin" and went on strike. In September the professionals agreed to a reduction of wages all round, but they demanded that arrears should be made up, alleging that Chaddick, who recently joined the army, had been paid his balance. The directors, however, declined to give way, and the players eventually decided to turn out for the Cup-tie with Southend United, which had to be postponed one week.

Old Country Pars.

The ball which was used in the match between Brighton and Hove and Lincoln City in the F. A. Cup-tie was presented to Mr. Noah Clark one of the directors, who has for many years been a staunch supporter of the club. He has since sent the ball to Gunner Higham, the club's left-half back, who is at the front.

It is understood that Orme (Millwall) and Jonas (Clapton Orient), who had a pronounced difference of opinion at New Cross towards the close of the Cup-tie, and were sent off the field, have tendered an unreserved apology to each other with regrets for the momentary loss of temper. Both players are members of the Footballers' Battalion, and they are now "chumming" together. The players have furnished to the Football Association their accounts of what happened.

Gunner Herbert Smart, an Aston Villa player, who is serving at the front with the Royal Field Artillery, has been promoted bombardier. In the course of a long letter he says: "Roll on the time when I return, although I would not care to be at home at such a time as this, as I am sure England will need every man she can get before this war is over."

BOWLING

Excitement prevailed last night when the Examiner and Beginners met in what may prove to be the deciding games of the series. Only after a lot of hard shooting did the Beginners succeed in taking two out of the three. The first game was very close, and not decided until the last frame. The other two were productive of some good rolling, the Beginners spilling them for 576 in the second, with the Examiner 578 in the third. Glover of the Examiner had a good string with 224, and is now tied with Cottrel of the C.G.E. Shop for high single. Cairns fell but five short of making a record for three consecutive games.

The score was as follows:

Beginners.	1	2	3	Total
Flowers	154	192	141	—487
Hardill	170	182	180	—532
Dawson	166	202	167	—535

SCHOOL REPORTS

The following is a report of S. S. No. 3, South Monaghan, for the month of January, by percentage:

"AMERICA"

The management of the Grand Opera House feels that for next Friday and Saturday, Feb. 12th and 13th, matinee and night, it has a treat in store for the amusement seekers of Peterborough, when "America," the greatest of all the New York Hippodrome's famous productions, comes to fill a special engagement.

Everybody has heard of the New York Hippodrome and of the wonderful spectacles staged there by its staff of master producers. Perhaps some people, at some time or other, had a wish to be able to see for themselves a Hippodrome production.

It is impossible to enumerate the host of features that crowd the seven realistic reels from start to finish. There are no pauses. It is one continuous gasp of astonishment.

By special arrangement the prices have been set at 10c. and 15c. for the matinees and 10c., 15c. and 25c. for the night performances, so that all may take advantage of the opportunity to see the New York Hippodrome production in their own city.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Since Dec. 26 to date, 150 cases of typhoid fever have developed in Brockville and eight deaths have occurred.

The death took place suddenly yesterday morning of Mrs. Karn, 69, wife of D. W. Karn, the former organ manufacturer of Woodstock.

Carrie Davies, the girl charged with the murder of Charles A. Massey, collapsed yesterday when the charge was read to her in the woman's court in Toronto.

It was rumored yesterday that the Grand Trunk Railway will make Guelph a divisional point, and that a large number of men and their families would move there.

The family of Frank Mailhott, residing on Havelock street, Brockville, were overcome by coal gas escaping from a stove yesterday morning. The awakening of Miss Liberty, a sister of the Mrs. Mailhott, saved their lives.

There will be no strike of the Yorkshire coal miners, as had been feared. At a conference attended by the mine owners and representatives of the men yesterday the owners conceded the men's demand for an advance in wages until the end of the war.

The German postal authorities have announced that the German wireless system may no longer be used for the transmission of private messages. This interdiction applies even to private messages intended for warships and other vessels at sea.

Charles Driscoll, a soldier, was sentenced to two years in Kingston penitentiary by Magistrate Denison in Toronto yesterday, on a charge of breaking into the premises of the Reliable Cleaning Co., King street, and with stealing a number of feathers, furs and clothing.

A LETTER FROM WARDEN KINDRED

In Regard to the Recent Discussion on the House of Refuge Question

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Owing to the publicity given by your valuable paper to a matter with regard to the management of the House of Refuge, which was under discussion at the last session of the County Council, and the scathing criticisms which some of the members of Council have received, as a result, I would beg permission to make a few observations relative to the matter.

I am somewhat surprised that your reporter should not have given all the details in regard to the case, when he made the attempt to write it up at all. Was it because some of the older and more experienced county fathers had intimated to him that their names were not to be mentioned in the discussion? Peculiar, was it not, that these members, at whose instance the discussion took place, and they do not live a hundred miles from my friend Mr. R. N. Scott, were not represented as having anything to say whatever, but the onus of the whole question was thrown on the poor, misguided and, I suppose, illiterate members from the East Riding, who, according to the same correspondent, have always been looking for trouble since the opening of the house seven or eight years ago.

The grievances, which were supposed to exist, were complained of by members, formerly on the Board of Management, and in their opinion was a matter for discussion in Council. As none of the members quoted in your scribe's report ever sat on such committee, why should any fair and competent newspaperman write so as to leave only those members open to criticism?

Personally, I know nothing wrong with the way affairs have been conducted in the house, not having been on any committee by which I could become conversant with the same.

The whole matter was of small moment, and I am satisfied should never have appeared in print, but it is remarkable how sensitive are the feelings of some of your correspondents, and the way they rise in righteous indignation over a few inoffensive remarks of individual members in private session. It is surely to laugh. —I am, very respectfully yours,

H. C. KINDRED.

HOCKEY

After a swift and scientific game, the score of the Hack Men and Express Men ended in a tie of 1—1. The Express Men claim their failure to win was caused by the absence of their two best men, A. Reid and Foster. The game was highly interesting and was interspersed with first-class acrobatic feats. It is rumoured that they will meet again in the near future.

Special Car For Oshawa Bonspiel

Mr. McNabb of the G.T.R., is trying to arrange for a special car for the accommodation of the curlers from this section who will attend the Oshawa bonspiel. The local club will be represented by five or six rinks. Lindsay, Millbrook, Port Hope and other clubs are going and a special car will likely be secured.

MINE IS FLOODED.

Twenty Men Are Drowned Near Nanaimo, B.C.

NANAIMO, B.C., Feb. 10.—Twenty-one men employed in the mine of the Pacific Coast Coal Mines, Limited, at South Wellington, seven miles from Nanaimo, were drowned by a rush of water yesterday.

Evidently one of the old flooded workings of the Alexandra mine, which has not been operating for years, was broken into by the men in the South Wellington, which adjoins it on a lower level.

Among the victims of the disaster are Joseph Foy, manager of the mine, and David Nillerat, fire boss. Foy was on the surface at the time, but on hearing that the old workings were being tapped, he went below ground with the intention of getting all of the men to the surface. He opened a trap door of the old stope and was met by a flood of water which hurled him against the timbers. His body has not yet been recovered.

Major Morrison-Bell Safe.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—Major Arthur C. Morrison-Bell of the Scots' Guards, who recently was reported missing in France, is a prisoner in Germany. Mrs. Morrison-Bell yesterday received a letter from her husband announcing his safety.

Major Morrison-Bell is a Conservative member of the House of Commons. He saw service in the South African war, and was aide de camp to the Governor-General of Canada in 1900-04.

Judgment Awarded

imprisonment on default provided in By-law No. 1617 is attacked. A reading of that by-law shows the offending clause to apply more to the collateral matters of receptacles, etc., than to the collection of the rate and in any case that clause if fatal (and I do not think it is), is not in the by-law under which this collection is made. The levying by-law is No. 1618, and it is not impeached at all and as I see it, is unimpeachable. Moreover this by-law is not quashed nor has any application to quash it been made. This complicates the plaintiffs difficulties in this action—the by-law being now valid and subsisting.

On the other hand the assessment of the church is too high. When no taxation was called for, no one thought or cared about the amount of assessment. It was $94,000.00 in the year complained of: it has since been reduced to $85,000.00. I suggested a refund of the difference, some $20 or $30.60. The city authorities were inclined to accede to the suggestion but it was rejected by the church.

The action fails and is dismissed with costs if asked.

SUCCEEDS LANGELIER.

Hon. P. E. Leblanc Is Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec.

OTTAWA, Feb. 10.—Pierre Evariste Leblanc, K.C., of Montreal, a former leader of the Conservative party in Quebec and an ex-Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, has been appointed Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, in succession to the late Sir Francois Langelier.

Lieutenant-Governor Leblanc was born at St. Martin, Laval County, Que., in 1854, and he was educated at St. Martin Academy and Jacques Cartier Normal School, Montreal. He was for many years a school teacher and was called to the Quebec Bar in 1879. He sat in the Legislature from 1884 to 1908, when he was defeated by only four votes. He was Speaker of the Legislative Assembly under the de Boucherville, Taillon and Flynn Governments.

Would Hang Raiders In Public.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—Lord Charles Beresford is going to put a question to Premier Asquith in the House of Commons to-day, in which he will demand that Great Britain treat German raiders on undefended places as pirates, and, after a trial by court-martial, hang them in public for the murder of women and children. This applies to raids from the air, as well as by sea.

Lord Charles asserts that the Government should adopt this plan in the future, and no longer treat such raiders as honorable foes.

Col. House Not Seeking Peace.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10. — President Wilson emphasized yesterday that Col. E. M. House, his close personal friend, had not gone to Europe to seek to bring about peace as his personal representative. He said Col. House frequently visited Europe, and that on his recent trip he was entrusted with seeking information regarding various questions, including that of American relief work.

MINE IS DESTROYED.

Elaborate German Subterranean Tunnel Blown Up by French.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—Subterranean fighting—the most terrible form of warfare yet introduced — has taken rank with the heavy guns for destructive power. As an advanced military art it has surpassed aviation, and today neither commander attempts an attack of importance without utilising in his strategy the sappers with their tunneling tools and high explosive mines.

Immediately following the blowing up of the road in front of the La Boisselle barracks by German sappers, who burrowed a great distance beneath the town to plant and explode their mines, only to be caught in their own trap when they charged the French, last night's communique from Paris reported a further disaster to German mining operations.

Before Fay, southwest of Peronne, in the coal region of Santerre, the Germans were utilising the mine workings for the purpose of underlaying the French positions with explosive mines. French sappers, anticipating such an attempt, had placed electrically controlled mines in the various galleries of the upper levels of the mine. When the German sappers started through one of the galleries Monday afternoon the French mines were exploded and the German soldiers trapped at their work. A number of them are believed to have been killed.

Allies Win In Flanders.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 10.—The Belgian towns of Passchendaele and Langemarck have been captured by the allies, according to a despatch received here from Sluis yesterday.

It says that the Belgian troops took these places with the assistance of a large force of British troops after a hard fight with the Germans.

Langemarck is north and Passchendaele is northeast of Ypres. Their occupation would imperil the German army whose centre rests on Roulers.

ITALY IN NO HURRY.

If She Intervenes It Will Not Be In Immediate Future.

LONDON, Feb. 10. — The London Daily Telegraph has the following from its correspondent in Rome:

The military preparations of Italy are now terminated, but her intervention in the struggle, except in an unforeseen contingency, is not imminent for several reasons.

First, because of the season.

Next, because it does not appear that the general war situation will undergo any very rapid change.

Lastly, because of the approaching reopening of the Chamber of Deputies.

Intervention at this juncture, while not appearing justified sufficiently by objective reasons, might be interpreted as a Parliamentary devise to evade the decision of the Chamber on certain acts of the Ministry not strictly in harmony with the attitude of Italy considered from the standpoint of the different groups of belligerents.

A Ministerial crisis does not seem probable, but cannot be wholly left out of account. The Government is in several ways shown indecision, and has given cause for criticism in its economic measures, especially in the matter of provision of grain and coal. This will form a subject of serious discussion in the chamber, and may even lead to a party vote. This is a true reading of the present situation in Italy.

FRANCE HAS SEVERAL FAMOUS CATHEDRALS

The One Destroyed at Rheims Excelled in the Matter of Age by Notre Dame in Paris

Well might the world stand aghast at Germany's crowning infamy, the destruction of Rheims Cathedral, for our Teuton foes reduced to ruins a sacred edifice which all other nations venerated. Rheims Cathedral was the Westminster Abbey of France, but although not quite so rich in historical and Royal interest, the cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris is more ancient than that of Rheims, the main building having been begun in the twelfth century. It is said that if the pillars of Notre Dame could speak they might tell the whole history of France, although the only coronation celebrated there was that of Henry VI. of England in 1431.

Perhaps the finest feature of the Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris is the Sainte Chapelle, built by St. Louis in 1245-8, for the reception of the various relics which he brought from the Holy Land. This chapel is, perhaps, the greatest existing masterpiece of Gothic art, and was restored by Napoleon III. at a cost of $250,000.

Amiens Cathedral is another of France's thirteenth-century churches, to which the world pays annual visits. This was the church which sent Ruskin into raptures, and which he and other people have described as "the finest existing mediæval structure." Its incomparable facade, galleries filled with the statues of kings, its superb windows and tapestries, and above all its beautiful choir-stalls and chapels, make the Amiens Cathedral incomparable in many respects.

Of special historical interest to British people is the cathedral of Rouen, for it was there that the heart of Richard Cœur de Lion was buried prior to its being removed to the extensive Museum of Antiquities. Another interesting fact regarding the Rouen Cathedral is that the notable south tower was built at the end of the fifteenth century with what was termed "indulgence" money, received by the church for permission to eat butter during Lent. The splendors of the south transept, its rose windows and wonderful sculpture, have excited the admiration of all lovers of the beautiful.

Neither should one forget the glorious cathedral of Chartres, built chiefly between 1194 and 1260. It is noted for its solidity as well as beauty, one of its spires—there are two—being generally regarded as the most beautiful on the continent. Like most other famous French cathedrals, it boasts some magnificent rose windows. Over 160 of the latter retain their thirteenth-century glass, forming a display of jewelled color unequalled elsewhere.

A series of magnificent sculptures of the life of Christ and the Virgin provide a fascinating sight, while the great triple porches of the transepts, covered with sculpture, are matchless.

The development of the steam turbine has made possible electric generators more than twice the size formerly used.

Turks In Precipitate Retreat.

CAIRO, Feb. 10.—There has been no further fighting, and a reconnaissance in force has established the fact that the Turks beat a most precipitate retreat. The force which was attacked must now be a considerable distance on its way back to Palestine.

Five Local Boys On The Movie Field

The Ohio Moving Picture Bulletin has an item referring to the five sons of Mr. Peter Thompson, local plumbing inspector, accompanied by a picture of the Thompson brothers. The item is as follows:

It is mighty seldom that we find five brothers in a family, all of whom are in the same business. And we imagine that in the moving picture business another family like the one pictured will be pretty hard to find. Probably every man in motion pictures in Ohio knows one or more of the Thompson brothers. They are,

James Thompson, manager of the Eclair and Venice Theatres and booking for the Temple, Manhattan, Eclair and Temple Theatres.

C. G. Thompson, manager of the Victor Film Service. Also general manager of the United Film Service, Cleveland.

Stanley Thompson, manager of the Roma Theatre, Youngstown, Ohio.

L. C. Thompson, road representative of the Apex Feature Service, Cleveland. He was formerly manager of the Globe and Princess Theatres, Cleveland, and of the Majestic Theatre, Lorain.

BIRDS HAVE REACHED CONNECTICUT IN THEIR FLIGHT TO THE NORTH

YANTIC, Conn., Feb. 10.—Hundreds of crows were circling over this place yesterday, flying off in a northerly direction, and such birds as bluejays, jincos, wakeups, brown creepers, woodpeckers and two kinds of sparrows were observed. The native kingfisher, a bird that is seldom seen here before late in March or April, also arrived, and more than a score of them were seen about the Yantic River and mill pond. In one corner of the pond, where the ice was gone, more than sixty ducks were counted. All these signs appear to bear out the ground hog in its opinion that the backbone of winter is broken and that spring will be early this year.

Appeal For Annulment Is Dismissed

PARIS, Feb. 10.—Rome advices say that Count Boni De Castellane's appeal to the Vatican to annul his wedding to Anna Gould, now Duchess of Talleyrand, has been rejected by the Rota Tribunal.

If he could have had religious wedding ceremony set aside as illegal he would have been able to marry again, and also would have secured possession of his three children.

He has been endeavouring to have the marriage declared illegal since 1910.

The wedding took place in New York on March 4, 1895. Later the Countess divorced him and on July 7, 1906, she married Prince Helie De Sagan, Duke of Talleyrand.

The first concert by the Salvation Army Band, under the direction of the new leader, Bandmaster Beer, will be held in the Temple on Monday night next. A grand programme has been arranged, and the citizens are promised a musical treat. The band will be assisted by the Songsters' Brigade, and the programme will include vocal numbers, brass and saxophone quartettes, solos and other arrangements of the instruments in addition to the band selections. Adj. Green will preside. It is expected that Bandmaster Beer will be heard in cornet solo work.

STEAMER AT FALMOUTH.

Britain Has Taken No Action Yet Regarding Wilhelmina.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—It is now understood the Government will not hold the Wilhelmina itself for a prize court, but will send the cargo of grain there in order to have it legally disposed of. The steamer put in at Falmouth yesterday, but no official action was taken. There was once an intention of simply purchasing the cargo, but this appears to be abandoned. Should the owners of the cargo, however, accept the Belgium relief commissions offer of purchase the British Government will assent. The German proclamation whereby the Government took over all the foodstuffs created a legal presumption that the Wilhelmina's food would reach Germany.

Germany's decree is regarded here as a monumental blunder. England was facing the problem of making food absolute contraband when the decree saved the Government from taking such a drastic and unprecedented step. There is not the slightest doubt there of the complete correctness of England's position. The case is one of great importance, however, and the attitude of America is awaited with interest.

The Allocation of Seats

Mr. G. A. Gillespie Will Be Initiated Into the Mysteries of Provincial Government From the Back Row of the Opposition Benches

TORONTO, Feb. 10—The seating of the Legislative Chamber for the coming session has now been allocated, and quite a number of changes are noticeable. To the right of the new Speaker, Hon. David Jamieson, come in order, Hon W. H. Hearst, Hon. J. J. Foy, Hon. R. A. Pyne and Hon. W. J. Hanna, which in comparison with last year shows the new Premier in the late Sir James Whitney's place, and Mr. Hanna occupying the seat vacated by Dr. Reaume, the former Minister of Public Works.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., for West Peterborough has been allotted a seat in the back row of the Opposition benches in company with John Grieve (North Middlesex), N. Parliament (Prince Edward), L. P. Wigle (South Essex), W. R. Ferguson, N. Richardson, Malcolm Lang (Cochrane), S. Duchare (North Essex), and T. S. Davidson (North Brant).

FEUD TO BE AIRED IN POLICE COURT

Otonabee Men Faced Two Charges This Morning—Bail Fixed at $200 Each—To Be Tried Tuesday

Two young men from Otonabee appeared in police court this morning on two charges, namely: "Committing wilful injury to a cutter and harness, the property of a neighbour, to the extent of ten dollars, contrary to the criminal code," and "unlawfully posting for transmission or delivery by or through the post to the same neighbour, a letter of an indecent, or immoral or scurrilous character, contrary to the criminal code."

They were remanded on bail of $200 each on two sureties to the amount of $100 until next Tuesday, Feb. 16.

Mr. G. W. Hatton represented the Crown, Mr. Widdifield of Messrs. Gordon and Widdifield, the private prosecutors, and Mr. F. D. Kerr, of Messrs. Peck, Kerr and McElderry, for the defendants.

The case arises out of a neighbour's feud. The last charge is a very serious one. The defendants are alleged to have posted letters to a neighbour referring to members of his household in an indecent manner.

Mr. J. W. Flavelle Is Interested

In Increased Crop Production—Was Born Near Peterborough

Mr. J. W. Flavelle, who has been taking an active interest in the propaganda for increased production, was one of the principal speakers at the Agricultural Association Banquet just held in Toronto. Mr. Flavelle was born near Peterborough, in 1856, and educated at the public and grammar schools of that town. As a young man he moved to Toronto and entered commercial life, eventually becoming president of the William Davies Company, president of the Harris Abattoir Company, president of the National Trust, director of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and of many other corporations. Through his association with the packing industry he has naturally been brought into close touch with the farming community and for many years has urged that the farmers raise more stock. Mr. Flavelle is a generous contributor to religious, philanthropic and educational work. His donations to the Toronto General Hospital, to Victoria College, the University of Toronto and the Methodist Church have been unusually large.—Journal of Commerce.

Death From Spinal Meningitis

Mystery Regarding Lindsay Man's Demise Cleared Up

LINDSAY, Feb. 10.—According to instructions given by Crown Attorney T. H. Stinson, Dr. Jeffers conducted an investigation in regard to clearing up the mystery surrounding the death of the late Jeremiah Cleary.

Rumours around town had it that the deceased came to his death through sundry methods of abuse and blows received, which were of a violent nature. One report stated that both his arms were broken and a final kick in the jaw ended his life. Those reports are erroneous and the fallacy of such statements are borne out by the report of two of Lindsay's leading physicians, Dr. Jeffers, jail surgeon, and Dr. J. McAlpine, M.H.O.

Dr. Jeffers said that he was asked to make an investigation so that the community might disabuse their minds of the idea that foul play had been used in connection with the death of Cleary or corroborate the statements. "I went to the cemetery, where the dead man's body had been placed in the vault, he said, and made an examination of the remains but could find no marks of violence on the body. The cause of the man's death was spinal meningitis."

Both physicians spoken of above saw Cleary on Saturday, Feb. 6th, half an hour before his demise and concurred in one opinion that his life was quickly ebbing away.

Using "trackless trolleys," electric freight waggons and even a snow plow have been operated in Austria successfully.

Five Per Cent Dividend Declared to Shareholders

Annual Meeting of the Stony Lake Cottagers' Association Was Held on Tuesday—Officers Were Re-elected

The annual meeting of the Stony Lake Cottagers' Association was held on Tuesday afternoon in the offices of Hall & Hall. Although a large block of the stock is held in Toronto none of the members from the Queen City were present. The reports of the secretary-treasurer presented a very satisfactory statement for the operations during 1914 with a good profit recorded. A dividend of 5 per cent. was declared on the capital stock.

A change was made in the by-law to enable the annual meeting to be held in Peterborough instead of Toronto.

The following directors were elected for 1915: Messrs. S. Henderson, H. Sutherland, Jas. Acton, A. Addison, of Toronto; Wm. Irwin, H. W. Stock, R. Neill, E. H. D. Hall, John Nugent, and J. D. Collins, of Peterborough.

Mr. John Crane was appointed shareholders' auditor, and Mr. W. G. Ferguson as the directors' auditor.

Officers Re-elected.

Following the general meeting of the Association, the directors assembled for the election of officers. The board of 1914 was re-elected as follows:

President—Robert Neill.
Vice-President—H. W. Stock.
Secretary-Treasurer—Felix Brownscombe.

The year just closed was regarded as being quite successful, and it is hoped the coming summer will prove equally satisfactory in the number of visitors to the lakes.

ELECTED TO THE DIRECTORATE

At the annual meeting of the Gordon-Davies Company, Ltd., which was held in Haileybury yesterday, Mr. Wm. McCracken, Manager of the Peterborough Branch, was elected to the directorate.

CHARGE AGAINST PETERBORO PLUMBER

Of Undertaking Work in Lindsay Contrary to the By-law

LINDSAY, Feb. 10.—Mr. George Brenton, of Peterborough, will appear before P. M. Jackson to-day to answer to a charge of violating town by-law No. 869, which does not permit an outside plumber doing work in Lindsay. The charge is preferred against him by Inspector R. Douglas.

One clause in the by-law reads that any plumber who shall not have a place of business in town, or who does not have a residence therein, cannot undertake such work.

Mr. Brenton was engaged on a building being erected by Mr. James Bogue.

Officers Entertained

Were Guests of Peterboro' Club at a Smoker Last Night

The officers in the City of the Third Overseas Contingent were entertained at a smoker held in their honour in the Peterborough Club last evening. The privileges of the Club were extended to the guests for the evening.

There was an informal programme of toasts and music, the toast to the members of the Third Overseas Contingent being proposed by Mr. J. E. L. Goodwill and responded to by some of the officers.

Mr. W. H. Denham, Vice-President of the Club, presided as chairman and toastmaster.

Among those present were Major Medd, Capt. Nelson, Capt. Spencer, an Lieuts. Johnston, Rogers and Sneath.
